NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Cadet Richard B. Sheridan, 21-year-old Army football star and honor student at the United States Military Academy at West Point, died late today—a victim of the game in which he excelled.

His death, a tragic sequel to Saturday's football game between Army and Yale, occurred at 5:05 p. m., less than three hours after his mother and brother had completed a 1,000-mile trip from the south to be at his side. It was nearly 48 hours to the hour after he had been hurried to New Haven hospital from the Yale bowl with a broken neck.

Newspapers were notified of the cadet's death by Major Philip B. Fleming, graduate director of athletics at West Point. From Saturday afternoon until he brought the news of Sheridan's death to newspapers, Major Fleming had been in almost constant attendance at the hospital.

Mrs. R. B. Sheridan, mother of the cadet, and another son, Gerald, who had accompanied her north from Greenville, S. C., were in the hospital when Sheridan died. They arrived here at 2:10 p. m. in an automobile escorted by police from the Pennsylvania station in New York where they had left the train.

Professor R. Selden Rose, chairman of the board of control of the Yale Athletic Association, and John M. Cates, director of athletics at Yale, were among those at the bedside when Sheridan died. Captain Albie Booth, of the Yale football team, rushed to the hospital from the practice field as soon as he received word of the death.

Immediately after the cadet's death, Mrs. Sheridan, her son, Major H. L. Mumma, provost marshal at the military academy, and Captain and Mrs. W. W. Warner left for West Point. Major Mumma, a friend of the Sheridan family; Captain Warner, a faculty member at the academy, and the latter's wife had accompanied Mrs. Sheridan and her son to this city from New York.

Major Fleming announced Sheridan's body would be sent to West Point by train tomorrow morning. It will be accompanied by Major Fleming; Major Ralph Sasse, Army football coach, and other West Point officials. Military services will be held at the academy.

While despatching of saving the cadet's life, physicians had resorted to every means known to medical science to thwart death. An emergency operation was performed Saturday night.

RUSSELL TO RULE ON SAUNDERS PLEA

Governor Will Announce Decision This Morning on Request for Stay.

Governor Richard B. Russell Jr. will announce this morning, following a hearing Monday afternoon, whether he will grant the appeal of counsel for W. E. Saunders, convicted city councilman, for a stay of a 2-year chain gang sentence until an appeal for commutation can be made before the state prison commission.

Remittitur from the court of appeals in both the Saunders and T. J. Norman cases were received at the Fulton courthouse Saturday, and Monday Norman surrendered to the sheriff. It was reported at the courthouse that he would be assigned to the Barrow county chain gang, but Vivian Stanley, member of the commission, said Monday afternoon the former banker has not been assigned. Norman was convicted of misapplication of funds.

Last week Governor Russell, appealed to by Fulton and Floyd county friends of Saunders, declined to stay the execution of the chain gang sentence, imposed following conviction on bribery charges growing out of the city hall graft investigation, until the commission has passed on the case. He reopened the case Monday when asked to do so by Judge G. A. Johns, vice chairman of the commission. Counsel for the convicted man will ask the prison commission to recommend commutation of the prison sentence to a fine.

J. S. Slicer, former president of the Colonial Trust Company, of which Norman was vice president, whose 1-to-3-year prison sentence was commuted by former Governor L. G. Hardman to a fine of $250, also was convicted of misapplication of funds.

Probe of Third Degree 'Boomerangs' in Capital

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The investigation of third degree methods employed by Washington police became a boomerang. Three men held for questioning in connection with several local holdups defied police and refused to say anything.

"You guys are just a bunch of coppers," one of them said. "You can't do anything to us. We know the situation in Washington and you guys are afraid to use the strong-arm stuff any longer."

The three men refused to say anything when questioned about recent bank robbery at Hiawatha, Kansas.

LARGE MAJORITY FOR MACDONALD EXPECTED TODAY

Sweeping Victory for National Cabinet Forecast as Englishmen Go to Polling Places.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Great Britain's 30,000,000 voters will decide in the general election tomorrow whether Ramsay MacDonald's national government, born of the nation's financial necessity last August, shall continue to rule the land.

King George came back to Buckingham today from a triumphal tour of the election returns, and party leaders voted their final optimistic prophecies after the manner of political generalizations the world over.

Under the guise of insurance policy and dealings on the stock exchange, Englishmen satisfied their love for wagering on the results, with the odds largely in favor of the national government.

The consensus of political observers gave the government a majority of 150 to 200 in the house of commons, which would be ample to satisfy Prime Minister MacDonald's demand for a "doctor's mandate" to prescribe legislative remedies for the nation's financial and economic ailments.

On the whole, the three weeks' campaign has been fought much less savagely than had been predicted. The most bitter onslaughts have been interchanged by the split sections of the labor party.

Thus Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer in the labor and national governments, has turned the full power of his invective against his life-long labor colleagues who now are the opponents of the MacDonald ministry.

Mr. Snowden's final message to the nation was: "Make sure that the men who run away are overwhelmed and defeated." He predicted they would be. By the men who ran away, he meant those who quit Mr. MacDonald's labor cabinet, refusing to go along with the prime minister into the national emergency government.

Atlanta will know the pinch of human suffering this fall and winter, the privations, despair and family breakdown to an extent never observed before unless a fuller response be made to the appeal of the Community Chest and the employment emergency committee, the relief campaign workers were warned Monday.

Charles J. Currie, chairman of the individual canvass, told the workers that although the requirements for relief and social service this year are double those of last year, with a goal of $800,000 set for the Chest and emergency committee, the individual subscriptions are lagging behind those of 1930.

At the moment of his report there had been 2,071 individual subscriptions, totaling $22,248 for the Chest and 568, for $3,703, for the emergency fund, compared to 2,707 subscriptions, totaling $31,770, for the Chest and 568, for $3,703, for the emergency fund, at the end of the same period last year.

"This is a need and an emergency more bitter than any other Atlanta has known," said Mr. Currie. "The relief of a public disaster will result if the amount of money sought is not raised. Atlanta cannot fail because failure will be a confession of inability to take care of its human obligations. Enthusiasm and energy and resourcefulness on the part of our workers are necessary. We cannot rest on the job is done."

The entire campaign organization reported Monday afternoon having obtained subscriptions of $52,390 since the report Friday, making the total.

Los Angeles To Pick Up Plane In Flight High Over Atlanta As 'Navy Day' Feature Today

Giant Dirigible To Arrive Over City at 11:30 O'Clock This Morning—Rear Admiral J. J. Raby Will Be Honor Guest at Banquet.

Spectacular recognition of Atlanta's prize-winning naval reserve unit will be given today, official Navy Day, when the giant dirigible Los Angeles and navy fighting airplanes will perform stunts seldom seen except at naval aviation stations. The huge sky ship is scheduled to arrive at 11:30 o'clock this morning from Parris Island, S. C., where it was moored Monday night.

One of the most interesting of various air performances will be the picking up of a navy fighting plane by the dirigible. At some favorable hour Lieutenant D. D. Harrison, who arrived from Lakehurst, N. J., late Monday afternoon, will fly the plane beneath the Los Angeles and make contact with the mother ship. Later, over the heart of the city, the air plane will be released. The dirigible will fly over Atlanta for approximately an hour.

As the dirigible nears Atlanta it will notify American Airways, Inc., at Candler field by radio, and Lieutenant Harrison will take off with other airplanes to form an escort in the flight over Atlanta. Radio communication with the ship will be continued through the day.

Ten planes, comprising the air corps reserve unit quartered at Candler field, will fly in formation to form an honorary escort for the Los Angeles on its flight over the city today. The flight, composed of service type planes, will be manned by Lieutenant R. R. Brown, air officer for the fourth corps area, flying the lead ship, and the following reserve officers: Lieutenants E. C. Davis, Hugh DuBoise and L. Neuberger and Captain J. P. Ficklin. The second flight, made up of army training ships, will have the following air corps reserve pilots: Major William L. Plummer, Captain F. F. Hughes and Lieutenants F. T. Milstead, E. K. Davis and James D'Arcy.

The Los Angeles took off from Lakehurst, N. J., Monday morning and spent the night moored at Parris Island, S. C. A radio dispatch Monday said the dirigible would pass over Milledgeville at 5 o'clock (C. S. T.) this morning. Time of passage over other cities in Georgia was given as:

JAPANESE SCORN EDICT OF LEAGUE FOR COTTON, GRAIN

Resolution on Evacuation Not Binding, Tokyo Declares.

TOKYO, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Japan tonight rejected as not binding the League of Nations resolution calling for evacuation of Manchuria by November 16, and reiterated the contention that the Manchurian situation is a local question to be settled only by direct Sino-Japanese negotiations.

The Japanese military grip on communications in southern Manchuria was stretched meanwhile into Mongolia by stationing of troops along the Suihsingkaichien-Tsaoan railway.

A formal statement approved by a special cabinet meeting tonight stressed the Japanese "five fundamental principles" for Manchuria settlement, insisted again the outbreak there was caused by a "provocative attack" by Chinese soldiers on Japanese property, and questioned the advisability of "hasty action" on the league's part in the face of possible solution eventually by direct negotiations between China and Japan.

The statement, intended for worldwide distribution as a studied explanation of Japan's Manchurian policy, was cables to foreign embassies and legations, intended for publication in the world's capitals.

It explained that due to the failure of the league council to obtain a unanimous vote on the evacuation resolution—the Japanese negative vote making the count 13 to 1—the resolution was not binding in any manner whatever.

The five fundamental principles were restated:

"1—Mutual Sino-Japanese pledge of non-aggression and guaranty of each other's territorial integrity.

"2—China must abandon the anti-Japanese boycott and all other forms of anti-Japanese propaganda.

"3—China must assure the safety of Japanese lives and property in Manchuria.

"4—Competition to services of Manchurian railways must be eliminated.

"5—China must recognize existing Japanese treaty rights in Manchuria, including Korean and Japanese land leases."

Official circles made clear Japan has no intention of carrying out the evacuation unless the Chinese in advance offer the guarantee of protection for lives and property which

GERMANY, ITALY ACHIEVE ACCORD ON RELATIONS

Far-Reaching Agreement On Mutual Problems Reported by Grandi and Bruening.

BERLIN, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Far-reaching agreement on measures necessary to deal with the political and economic questions facing the world has been achieved by Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister, and Chancellor Heinrich Bruening, an official communiqué said tonight.

The statement, made at the conclusion of the second day of Signor Grandi's visit here, did not mention these measures in detail.

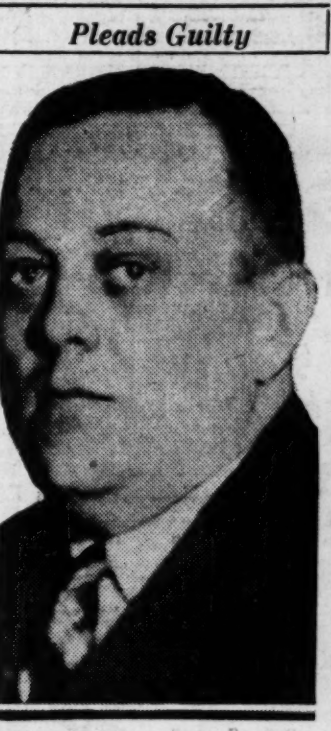

The statement, made at the conclusion of the second day of Signor Grandi's visit here, did not mention these measures in detail.

The discussion was conducted with extreme frankness and the most friendly feelings, it was explained, and both statesmen agree that effective measures to combat the world crisis are impossible without systematic cooperation among the nations involved.

This cooperation, the communiqué said, must be based on mutual confidence and respect.

Earlier in the day the Italian foreign minister told German newspaper correspondents that the most important thing to be accomplished now is "overcoming the state of mind which dates back to the World War and getting ready for more intimate and fruitful co-operation."

He refused to comment on the Hoover-Laval conversations. After the press conference he was received by President Paul von Hindenburg.

FRANKLIN L. DODGE JR.

DODGE ADMITS PERJURY CHARGE

Former U. S. Official Sentenced to 30 Months by Augusta Judge.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Franklin L. Dodge Jr., former department of justice agent, who several years ago was named in sensational charges by George Remus, former Cincinnati bootleg king, was sentenced today to 30 months in prison for perjury.

Dodge, a resident of Lansing, Mich., pleaded guilty in federal court here to the perjury charge, which grew out of his testimony in a liquor trial at Savannah, Ga.

Judge W. H. Barrett was told by Dodge that he was unable to pay a fine. The judge pointed out that the maximum sentence in the case was five years, but that because of Dodge's record in apprehending liquor law violators in 1923 he would cut the maximum sentence in half.

Remus' charges against the agent were made shortly after the liquor baron finished serving a penitentiary sentence several years ago for violating the liquor laws. Remus charged Dodge had perjured himself and that Dodge was a rival for Mrs. Remus' affections. The liquor dealer told of trips he said Dodge and Mrs. Remus had made together.

Remus shot his wife to death in October, 1927, was adjudged insane and liberated from a state hospital shortly afterward.

In May, 1930, Dodge testified in Savannah that he did not know of any liquor activities on the part of George Brown, who was on trial. In 1923 he had served in the conviction of William H. Haar at Savannah on liquor law violation charges. At the Haar trial Dodge testified Haar had been associated with Brown, who has since died.

Judge Barrett said "if it were not for the service he has rendered the government, it would not be amiss to impose the maximum sentence of five years" on Dodge. "The offense," the judge added, "was committed by a man of high character."

BRUENING PLANS EARLY DISCUSSION OF OLD PROBLEM

German Chancellor Will Lose No Time in Beginning Negotiations on Movement for Revision of War Burdens.

CONFERENCE SEEN AS BEST METHOD

Meeting of Interested Nations Viewed as Most Efficient Means for Achieving Change.

BY LOUIS F. LOCHNER.

BERLIN, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The foreign office made it plain today that Chancellor Heinrich Bruening, acting on the suggestion of President Hoover and Premier Laval, will reopen the reparations question.

"You may rest assured," a foreign office spokesman said, "that Dr. Bruening will lose no time entering into diplomatic negotiations with the other powers."

"From these negotiations it will become apparent how the initiative can best be taken and by whom. The chancellor still believes an international conference is the best means."

This announcement was the official German reaction to the recommendation of President Hoover and the French statesman, made in their joint statement issued Sunday evening in Washington.

Discussing the need for an agreement covering inter-governmental obligations at the conclusion of the Hoover year, they declared "the initiative in this matter should be taken at an early date by the European powers principally concerned."

The foreign office spokesman said the government wholly disagreed with the gloomy views some newspapers are expressing concerning the results of the Washington meeting.

"We know that America retains her warm interest in us and do not fear that she will let Europe stew in its own juice," he asserted.

German in responsible positions are genuinely glad that Mr. Hoover was able to learn the French attitude at first hand.

While some editors again raise the question of a visit by Dr. Bruening to America at the earliest opportunity, in government circles it is emphasized that he has such tremendous problems to face at home he cannot find time to cross the ocean.

The impending Washington visit of Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister, therefore assumes ever greater importance. For Grandi, now in Berlin, is learning at first hand of the state of affairs in Germany.

Germany at first was not inclined to read in the Hoover-Laval statement any expectation that the next move was to come from Berlin. American press comments called her, however, quickly brought home to German

BEAVERS' STATUS AGAIN TAKEN UP

Police Committee Meets With Mayor; Members Decline To Talk on Plans

Determined effort to solve this week the police committee met Monday at the outgrowth of a conference between Mayor James L. Key and the police committee.

Although the mayor and the five members of the committee declined to comment on discussions in the session, which was held behind closed doors, the mayor said another conference is planned when he returns from a speaking engagement today at Jessup. It is probable that the discussion will take place some time Thursday before the regular meeting of the police committee Thursday night at the station.

Alderman Alvin L. Richards, chairman of the committee, has announced that some definite action may be expected some time this week. It is expected the committee will bring action to a halt.

Members of the committee requested Chief James L. Beavers to quit several weeks ago, and at that time, Beavers asked for time to think the problem over. He has since indicated that he will not retire voluntarily, but will do so in order which it expected the committee will bring action to a halt.

All members of the committee attended the meeting Monday afternoon in the mayor's office. In addition to Richards, the following were present: Alderman J. Charlie Murphy, vice chairman; G. Everett Millican, and Farris A. Mitchell, and Councilman William M. Rogers.

Several members of the department have been mentioned as possible choice as Beavers' successor, while two or three outsiders have been named in current gossip in police circles.

No intimation as to the humor of the committee was obtainable from interviews with those attending the conference. All were reticent concerning any discussion of what happened.

Man Wins Court Battle For Confiscated Liquor

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—John Strong's long struggle to force dry agents who raided his premises at Easton, Mass., without a search warrant, to return his liquor succeeded today before the supreme court.

Four agents appeared at Strong's home in December, 1928, and asked permission to search the premises and house. They had no search warrant and Strong said "no."

The raiders did not go into the house but insisted they had the right to search his barn and premises. They found some liquor in a cellar next to barn and carried it away. Strong never was prosecuted.

Laval Pays High Tribute To U. S. on Eve of Sailing

BY MAURICE DUHAMEL.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Premier Pierre Laval, of France, bade farewell to the United States tonight, happy in the expressed belief that his visit to President Hoover had resulted in a clearer understanding of the "reparative interests and common duties of France and the United States."

"Even if our conversations in Washington had had no other results," he said at a banquet of the French Chamber of Commerce, "they would have fulfilled great hopes. This is the moral benefit of our meeting."

"But we have accomplished more. By seeking the most constructive methods for restoring economic stability and confidence, we have done our duty in the cause of international solidarity."

"Our effort has not been in vain. We have come to know one another better. Henceforth we know where we stand, we know what we

Increasing Appeals for Aid
Attest to Relief Fund Need

All day and every day they file into the little office on the third floor at 11 Pryor street, S. W.—men and women, weariness and hopelessness in the lines of their faces. There seems to be a common carriage for them all, shoulders drooping as if under a burden, as if wining under a blow; head lowered; steps faltering; and they have come here as the last resort of the beaten. They are the unemployed who have come at last to the end of their rope and who now are asking for the bare necessities of life.

And this is the Central Application bureau, maintained by the Community Chest and Emergency Relief Committee, where applicants for emergency relief are received, and from which they are sent to the chest agency which best can serve their need.

There was one despairing breadwinner Monday afternoon, a man who in normal times would be the steady, substantial, self-respecting head of a thriving home. The anguish of this necessity of asking for help is plainly apparent in his tightened lips. But what can he do?

"Nine Children in House."

"There are nine children in my house," he told Mrs. D. R. Paige, who hears the pitiful stories. "The oldest is my boy, he's 21. Then there's my big girl, she's 19. They have both been working, but now they are laid off. The rest of them are too little."

"And here I am. Been working 15 years in one place, but six weeks ago they had to lay me off. With nine children, I couldn't lay by much and everything is gone. There isn't anything to eat in the house."

A red penciled notation, "Urgent," was marked on his card after Mrs. Paige verified his story of steady and dependable employment. Because his case involved a family in need, it was like that which went over America like a wave some weeks ago.

Worth while to you

... AN EVENT OF CITY-WIDE IMPORTANCE INVITING YOUR PARTICIPATION. COMING!

In any event, if the American bankers had felt perfectly free to speak their minds to the French, they probably would have spoken somewhat as follows: "We are glad to have your deposits. At the same time we did not solicit them and can get along quite comfortably without them. We don't mind sending gold to Europe. On the contrary, it is our wish and our advantage to do so. We do not, however, like sudden withdrawals of large quantities. If you wish to leave your deposits with us, we should like to be assured they will not be withdrawn suddenly without notice."

Something like this has actually been effected, as an incident of the visit of M. Laval and his financial advisers, and the French deposits in American banks are now attended by terms fixing definite future dates before which they cannot be withdrawn.

This is but one of several events of the past few days which have brought practically to an end a general movement not only in France but in most of Europe which expressed itself in the sale of American securities and otherwise in some strain upon the American credit structure.

This favorable development in Europe is, however, slight compared to the organization all over the United States of the local branches of the National Credit Corporation proposed by President Hoover three weeks ago. The effect of this organization upon local banks everywhere may be suggested in part by a supposititious illustration. A bank in Detroit or Grand Rapids or Battle Creek, Mich., might hold a mortgage for $1,000, signed by Henry Ford, and secured by a deed to all Ford's real estate, together with the entire capital stock of the Ford Motor Company, as collateral. The bank holding such a decidedly prime security cannot rediscount it with the federal reserve system, because the system properly confines its rediscounting, speaking loosely, to securities which automatically liquidate themselves through the completion of ordinary commercial transactions associated with the sale of commodities.

The embarrassment to local banks all over the country, due to having no place to discount securities not conforming to the federal reserve system's rules about "eligible paper," was very great. It has accounted for the closing of some banks, and for the inability of nearly all banks to have enough cash to lend to their customers for business purposes. This jam is now ended by the setting up of the National Credit Corporation. There may not be many Henry Ford notes, but there are billions of sound securities recently "frozen" which the new institution will discount.

Without suggesting that the creation of this institution accounts for all of the favorable developments of the past few weeks, those developments are genuinely remarkable. Bank failures and bank runs have diminished, and scared heads of banks are be-

PLAQUE AT TUSKEGEE HONORS H. B. FRISSELL

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Unveiling of a plaque in memory of Dr. Hollis B. Frissell, former president of Hampton Institute, marked the closing today of a week's session of 300 Jeanes fund workers assembled from 15 southern states.

Dr. James Hardy Dillard, former president of the Jeanes and Slater funds, made the principal address.

George Foster Peabody was represented by Joseph H. Stewart, of the University of Georgia, who, in presenting the gift of Dr. Peabody, said: "Dr. Peabody has been a trustee of Tuskegee and Hampton over 35 years and has been a trustee of the University of Georgia for 25 years. His whole life has been devoted to his fellow man. He has been your friend and the friend of Georgia and a friend of Hampton."

Turning to the successor of Booker T. Washington, Dr. Stewart remarked that he had met the present Tuskegee head, then Mayor Robert R. Moton, in 1905, and had predicted at the time the Hampton commandant would perform a great service for his people.

MAYORS ORGANIZE CO-ORDINATING BODY

BEAUFORT, S. C., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Mayors of six cities in Georgia, South Carolina and Florida met here Monday and organized the "Coastal Co-ordinating Organization." John T. Alsop, mayor of Jacksonville, was named president.

The organization was formed, leaders said, for the purpose of giving joint consideration to problems affecting the coastal section.

Mayor W. R. Bristol, of Beaufort, was host to the meeting at the city hall. The visiting mayors included Mayor Hoyne, Savannah, Ga.; Mayor Jennings, Augusta, Ga.; Mayor Alsop, Mayor Stoney, Charleston, S. C., and Mayor Kaminsky, of Georgetown, South Carolina.

M. O. Dunning, of Savannah, was named chairman of the co-ordinating committee. Mayor-elect R. B. Maybank, of Charleston, was chosen vice president of the organization and second vice presidents were named as follows: Mayor Hoyne, Mayor Jennings, Mayor Bristol and Mayor Kaminsky. Senator W. Brantley Harvey, of Beaufort, was named secretary; Calhoun Thomas, Beaufort, treasurer, and E. George Butler, Savannah, chairman of the executive committee. Herschel V. Jenkins was named director of the publicity committee and Mayor Stoney was appointed general counsel.

The next meeting will be held in Beaufort, November 9.

HELPLESS BLIMP FINALLY BERTHED

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(AP)—A 125-foot blimp which rode out a 25-mile gale for two days and a night was berthed safely tonight at Holmes Airport, Queens, after several futile attempts had been made to put it in the hangar.

The ship, named the Columbia, which carries sightseers over Manhattan in fair weather, had been aloft, buffeted by high winds, since 10 a. m. yesterday. For 31 hours its crew of four, by skillful maneuvering, kept it from being blown out to sea or dashed against the spires of the Metropolitan skyscrapers.

A ground crew of 20 men finally towed the craft into its home berth at 5:45 p. m.

"It looked bad at times," said Captain Frank Trotter, chief pilot, "but we knew if our fuel did not give out or our motors stall, everything would come out all right. And it behaved well all the time. Of course, we got pretty badly pitched about once in awhile, and two of the boys had attacks of airsickness. However, I guess we could have stayed up a couple of days more, if we had to."

WET VIRGINIANS GRANTED CHARTER

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 26.—(AP)—The Virginia Association Against the Eighteenth Amendment today was granted a charter by the state corporation commission.

General W. H. Cocke, former superintendent of the Virginia Military Institute, is named as president; Alexander Weddell, of Richmond, former consul general to Mexico City, vice president, and John B. Minor, Richmond attorney, secretary and treasurer. Directors include one from each congressional district in the state.

According to its charter the organization proposes "to unite Virginians in the cause of restoring and defending the principles upon which our government is founded, whereby fundamental rights essential to liberty were reserved to the people of the several states."

BOND MESSENGER, $76,000 MISSING

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Carrying bonds valued at $76,000, most of them negotiable, Louis Geminier, 31, a messenger, disappeared today, officials of the brokerage firm of Ernst & Co. told police.

He failed to deliver any of the bonds at their destinations, they said. Geminier had been placed on the firm's staff of messengers as an extra, but was to have been given a permanent assignment.

In addition to 75 bonds, each worth $1,000, Geminier carried $500 bonds and stock valued at $945.

Origin of Earth, Other Planets Laid to Sun-and-Star Collision

BY F. B. COLTON.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—A terrific collision of the sun with a passing star was advanced tonight as the cause of the birth of the earth and other planets by Professor Willem De Sitter, noted Dutch astronomer.

The passing star, he said, pulled material off the sun, and the larger fragments became the planets. The momentum of the star, transmitted by the collision, started the sun and planets all whirling in the same direction through space.

Such a collision, he continued, is the only satisfactory way of explaining why the sun and all the planets revolve in the same direction, and why their orbits are almost circular and on almost the same plane or level. He spoke before the Washington Academy of Sciences and the Society of Sigma Xi.

The satellites of the planets—such as the moon—were born in similar fashion, he said. They were pulled off from the planets by the sun's attraction, as the planets were drawn from the sun.

After the star pulled a huge filament of matter out from the sun, planets circled about the sun, following an elliptical path, like a flattened circle. Gradually, however, their orbits became more like a true circle, due to friction from the gaseous material out in space. This friction now has "rounded out" the planets' orbits until they are almost perfect circles.

When the planets were following their early elliptical orbits they were much nearer the sun at some times than at others. At one of these times of passing near the sun, its attraction pulled off satellites from the planets. The satellites began circling the planets as the planets circled the sun.

Through mathematics and geology the "collision theory" has been checked and found satisfactory, Professor De Sitter said. The time required for the gaseous material out in space to "round out" the orbit of the planet mercury from its original elliptical shape to its present circular path has been calculated by mathematicians. It corresponds, they have discovered, to the age of the earth as calculated by geologists.

The collision theory, Professor De Sitter asserted, supplants the former belief that the sun and planets were condensed from a gaseous nebula and the planets thrown off from the sun by centrifugal force due to the rotation of the nebula.

Mathematicians have shown, he declared, that a formation like the solar system, with a central sun surrounded by several small planets, could not be formed through rotation.

Professor De Sitter is director of the oldest observatory in the world, the Sterrewacht, at Leyden, Holland. He is the author of one of the three great theories of the structure of the universe; proponents of the other two are Einstein and Abbe Le Maitre, of Belgium.

Life 'Restored' Briefly To Boy Believed Dead
CLEVELAND, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Artificial respiration administered after he seemingly was dead prolonged the life of nine-year-old Peter Allen for 20 minutes today, but then proved unavailing.

The boy died of respiratory paralysis, the cause of which was to be determined later today by a further examination.

When stethoscopes failed to find any beat of the lad's heart, surgeons opened a hole into his throat, inserted tubes, and then manually forced the lungs to breathe. The boy's heart responded for a short time only, and then the last spark of life died out.

2 TRIMMERS BURIED IN SLIDE OF COAL
NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Two coal trimmers were buried under several tons of coal in the lower hold of the steamship Nitouian of the Levant line, loading at the Seventh street wharf, today.

One of them, Will Roan, was rescued alive but severely hurt, but the other, Charles Williams, was dead when fellow workers reached him.

CLARENCE ALLEN, BANKER, IS KILLED

President of Macon Bank, Ex-Atlantan, Crossing Crash Victim.

Clarence E. Allen, 45, president of the First National Bank & Trust Company, of Macon, and former Atlanta banker, was killed Monday morning in a crash between his automobile and the Dixie Flyer near Forest Park, while on his way home after a week-end visit to Atlanta.

He became president of the Continental Trust Company of Macon on moving to that city, and when the First National Bank of Atlanta took over the Continental Trust and formed the First National of Macon, he was continued as head of the institution. The tragedy occurred at Rock Cut, a mile and a half below Forest Park. Mr. Allen apparently not hearing the warning bell which, according to railroad officials, was ringing. The body was carried to Macon on the Flamingo, following identification through papers found in the pockets.

Mr. Allen visited his Atlanta brothers and sisters over the week-end, and left his wife and one son at the home of a brother here when he started back to Macon. In addition to his wife, he is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Ruth Upchurch and Miss Helen Allen, of Atlanta; Miss Martha Allen, of Macon, and Mrs. Clarence Wellborn, of Memphis; three sons, C. E. Allen Jr., Fred Allen and Luther Allen; one sister, Mrs. W. A. Sims, of Atlanta; and seven brothers, Fred L. Allen, of Knoxville, Tenn.; G. W. Allen, A. A. Allen, C. Ernest Allen and C. G. Allen, of Atlanta; R. M. Allen, of New York, and J. W.

It's great to feel that way... and you do... when the blood has the "feel" of enough rich red cells

REGARDLESS of age—he fortified with plenty of "red blood." That's p-e-l-l-happines.

So frequently work, worry, colds and sickness reduce the red-cell count in the blood... then our spirits go down as the blood cells are lowered.

The process may be so gradual that we wonder "what is the matter." It is well to give thought to those invisible—yet precious red-blood-cells—the "ships" if you please, that "sail" in the blood, carrying nourishment to all parts of the body.

"That tired feeling" may be a warning... so are pimples, boils and paleness. Why not take steps to overcome this trouble? A general run-down condition means a lack of normal resistance to infection and disease. A lagging appetite often leads to underweight and ill health.

You cannot be low in strength and be happy—let's be happy.

For generations S.S.S. as a tonic has been helping people gain New Strength, better health and happiness. Its successful record of over 100 years in restoring strength and vitality to the blood surely warrants your giving it a good trial.

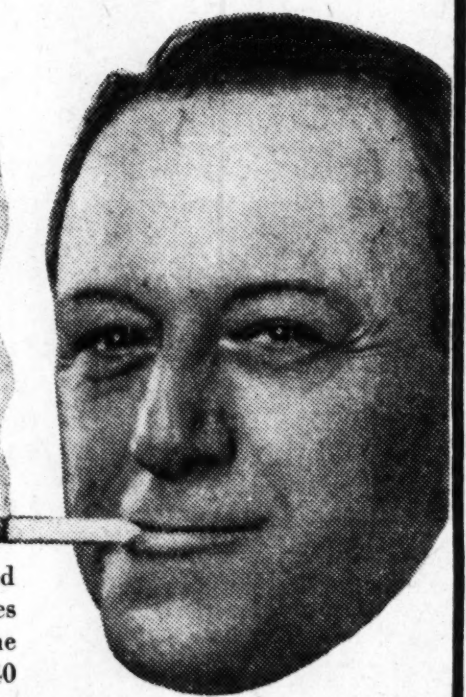

Why not start taking S.S.S. today?—the larger size represents a price saving.

Why you should be interested in your Blood Count: (Left) Microscopic view of healthy red-blood-cells. They carry nourishment and oxygen to every part of the body—they also remove impurities from the tissues. (Right) Weak red-blood-cells—only 60 per cent of normal strength. Such a condition is often responsible for body weakness, paleness, sallow complexion, pimples and boils.

"I ROLL MY OWN and get THAT GOOD READY-MADE TASTE!"

"I CAN'T see the sense in these hard times of paying 15¢ to smoke 20 ready-made cigarettes when for a dime I get from TARGET 30 to 40 smokes with the same ready-made taste. "I just switched to TARGET, bought a genuine TARGET Roller and rolled a supply each day before I went to work. Say! Most of the boys prefer them to the ready-mades they were smoking before they followed my lead. "When you use TARGET, the real cigarette tobacco, you get a fine blend of Virginia, Burley, and Turkish, prepared and cut exactly the same as ready-mades and wrapped in moisture-proof Cellophane to keep it fresh. And what's more, you get 40 fine gummed cigarette papers free with every pack. Real papers—the kind ready-mades use—that you can't even buy elsewhere. "Better get hep to TARGET, men, and save jack and still get that real cigarette taste like I do!"

AND GET THIS! The United States Government tax on 20 cigarettes amounts to 6¢. On 20 cigarettes you roll from Target tobacco the tax is just about 1¢. And where there is a state tax on cigarettes, you save just that much more! No wonder you get such value for a dime!

MONEY-BACK GUARANTEE Buy a package of TARGET right now. Roll 15 or 20 cigarettes. If you don't say they're the best smokes you ever rolled, return the half-empty package to your dealer and he will return your dime!

ATLANTA TO SEE HUGE DIRIGIBLE

Macon, at 5:45 a. m.; Shellman at 7:45 a. m.; Fort Benning at 8:45 and Columbus at 9 o'clock.

Rear Admiral J. J. Raby, of Charleston, arrived in Atlanta Monday and today at noon will be a guest of Lieutenant Harry F. Dobbs, commander of the Atlanta naval reserve battalion, and the Rotary Club at luncheon.

The Atlanta naval reserve unit, which will be officially recognized at 6 o'clock tonight in a banquet at the Georgia Tech naval reserve unit, and Lieutenant L. D. Causey, recruiting officer for the southeast, and a drill squad also will be guests.

At 6 o'clock tonight a banquet for the Atlanta battalion will be held at the Biltmore hotel, attended by Admiral Raby, his staff; Governor Richard B. Russell; Major General Frank McCoy, commander of the fourth corps area; local civic leaders and others. A banquet for the enlisted and commanding personnel of the unit was held Monday night at the Georgian Terrace.

The achievement of the Atlanta naval reserve unit in winning first prize for efficiency in the nation this year will be officially recognized at 6 o'clock tonight in a banquet at the Georgia Tech naval reserve unit, which will be officially recognized at 6 o'clock tonight in a banquet at the Georgian Terrace.

Named Vice President. When the Atlanta and Lowry bank purchased the Continental Trust Company and shortly afterwards a portion of the assets of the old Fourth National bank of Atlanta, Mr. Allen showed such a remarkable understanding of the situation and was so helpful in the working out of matters incident to this purchase that he was made a vice president of the Continental.

Mr. Allen took a leading part in the work of the Grant Park Baptist church here and later transferred his membership to the Tabernacle Baptist church where he taught a Bible class.

Friends of the banker said that a memory hard to equal and the ability to judge human nature were the factors in the rise of Mr. Allen. Realizing that his education was limited, he set to work at nights on correspondence courses on credits and general business subjects, it was said.

and then Sheridan was placed in a respirator where he remained until his death.

FULL MILITARY HONORS PLANNED FOR FUNERAL WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 26.—(P)—An Army football squad, carrying on, hoping for the best, drilled with the stoicism of soldiers a Cadet "Dick" Sheridan died this afternoon in a New Haven hospital.

His teammates did not know as they went through their maneuvers that the little and who suffered a broken neck after a diving tackle late in the Yale game had passed away. Later they met with their officers and heard the news that "the Point" has been waiting and dreading to hear since Saturday night.

Second only in every mind to the sadness and regret over Sheridan's death was the conjecture as to what course Army would pursue with respect to the games remaining on the football schedule. Decision as to whether or not the schedule will be played out remains in the hands of Major General William R. Smith, superintendent of the academy.

The feeling among the officers was that Army, committed to a schedule that includes such major contests as an invasion of Pittsburgh November 14 and battles Notre Dame and Navy in New York November 28 and December 12, respectively, would carry on.

Precedent in the history of Army football, going back 22 years to the only previous death from gridiron combat, would indicate cancellation of the remainder of the schedule, but it is also pointed out that the situation has changed mightily since Cadet Ben Byrne, a tackle, died after an injury similar to Sheridan's in the Harvard game of 1909.

Army cancelled the remainder of that season's schedule, but at that time Army played its games at West Point and there was no such thing as gate receipts. It is estimated that in addition to all the preparations that have been made, the inconveniences that would be done opponents, about $1,000,000 in receipts would be involved in the cancellation of the Pittsburgh, Notre Dame and Navy games, in addition to the contests here with Colorado College Saturday, Louisiana State November 7, and Ursinus November 21.

Of this sum at least $400,000, the estimated receipts of the Navy game, are scheduled to be turned over to charity, for relief of the unemployed.

A polo schedule was completed six years ago despite the death of a cadet player during the season.

Tonight the universal hope on the plans was that Mrs. R. B. Sheridan, mother of the cadet, would consent to his burial here beside other soldier heroes.

If Mrs. Sheridan consents to Dick's burial here, the brown-haired youngster, whose popularity was such that he was president of his class, the second year men, would lie in state in the old cadet chapel and receive a soldier's burial, with his own company firing a volley over his grave and one of his comrades sounding taps.

Sheridan, 21 years old, was an honor student, and one of the most popular cadets on the plains. He was the lightest man on the Army squad—140 pounds—a graduate of the Augusta Junior College, Augusta, Ga., and he won his West Point appointment from army ranks in which he served after graduation.

WORKED HIS WAY UP INTO MILITARY ACADEMY. AUGUSTA, Ga., Oct. 26.—(P)—Richard Brinsley Sheridan, Army football player, who died today from injuries received in the Yale-Army game Saturday, was a student at Augusta Junior College for two years and was one of the student body's most active members.

Soon after entering Augusta Junior College, Sheridan was elected president of his class and treasurer of student council. He was a lieutenant colonel on the college cadet corps and a member of the varsity football and basketball teams.

Following graduation he joined the regular army and was assigned to duty at Fort Benning, Ga. Later he went to Fort McPherson, Ga. He was assigned to West Point in 1929.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 26.—(P)—The Yale University Athletic Association board of control tonight adopted the following resolution: "The Yale Athletic Association records with a deep sense of sorrow the death of Cadet Richard Brinsley Sheridan and extends to his associates and family the sincerest expressions of its sympathy in their grief."

a policy of international co-operation, he felt certain he was serving the cause of peace without sacrificing the fundamental interests of France.

W. P. Castle Jr., undersecretary of state, bade an official farewell to the premier at the dinner, at which Marshal Petain, of France, and also General Pershing were guests.

"We must not look for miracles in the shape of economic or any other panacea," Castle warned. "The world cannot be remade in a few hours' talk and if it could be, wise men would not attempt it lest the world be remade wrong."

"What can be done... is to search out and remove the causes in which our two nations can co-operate in the restoration of economic strength and the maintenance of peace."

Castle said that all the world would be richer for the premier's visit, because it had brought "a real and living understanding."

At 10 o'clock Laval, 19-year-old daughter of the premier, waved her hand tonight over a silver globe atop the Empire State building and the Statue of Liberty as she sailed for France.

As a farewell gesture of good-will before sailing for home, the French girl turned on a new flood lighting system which increases the illumination of the famous statue, a gift from the people of her nation 45 years ago Wednesday.

A flare bomb from an army plane momentarily lighted the harbor around the statue of the goddess, as a signal for Joseph to pass her hand over the globe.

Then, as if by magic, myriads of lights suddenly engulfed the statue. The unsightly double chin, thin, and crooked feet, which marred its beauty under the old lighting system, had disappeared.

The new equipment will enable the statue to be seen for great distances even on foggy nights.

The whistle of a 60-mile wind mingled with her voice in the microphone as she said, "I wish to take this opportunity, she said, "to thank the people of the United States for their good wishes, and I only regret that because of my sailing for home tonight, I will not be able to visit all parts of your wonderful country."

"I think fifth Avenue is a dream," she exclaimed. "It is beautiful and lively."

The premier returned to his hotel to rest and prepare a night address for a banquet of the French Chamber of Commerce after visiting the Empire State building under escort of former Governor Alfred E. Smith.

EDITOR AND WIFE PRAISE FERRAC FOR NEW HEALTH Judge J. D. Lamar Gets His First Relief From Natural Product.

There is perhaps no better known or more popular citizen of Lowndes County than Judge J. D. Lamar, editor of The Lowndes Signal, of Fort Deposit, Ala. Judge Lamar made the following unsolicited statement regarding his experience with Ferrac, the natural prescription of nature, that seems to have almost no limit to its powers to overcome ailments where all other medicines and treatments tried have utterly failed to give relief. Read what he says:

"For months I had been a sufferer with terribly disordered kidneys and became very despondent over my condition. I tried practically every medicine and treatment that I thought would help me, but seemed to grow slowly but steadily worse. When put on the kidneys developed (so diagnosed by the best medical advice obtainable) I realized that my condition was very serious, and I spent many weeks in a hospital without relief. Finally it was suggested I try Ferrac, and after the first bottle my improvement was very noticeable. I continued with this remarkable natural medicine, and to my delight, it completely overcame every sign of my trouble and my kidneys seem in as fine condition as they ever were in my life. Mrs. Lamar was a chronic sufferer with stomach trouble, or indigestion, and for a long time was kept on a very severe diet. She also took Ferrac, and I am happy to say that every trace of her trouble has disappeared.

"I feel that after all this remarkable product has done for both myself and Mrs. Lamar, that it is nothing more than my duty to help others by making this statement."

Without alcohol, opiates, herbs or barks, without drugs of any kind, as harmless as the driven snow, but powerful in its efficacy, Ferrac sweeps on day by day to new triumphs! Frequently referred to as one of the chemical marvels of the world—unchanged by man but given to suffering humanity exactly as nature compounded it hundreds of thousands of years ago. For stomach trouble, kidney disorders, gall bladder ailments, high blood pressure, gastritis, constipation, rheumatism and kindred ailments, count no case hopeless until you have tried nature's own prescription, Ferrac. It is on sale at Jacobs' Pharmacy, 1010 Peachtree St., Atlanta, and by leading druggists elsewhere. (adv.)

Admiring eyes of thousands of Atlanta citizens will gaze upward at the silver lines of a giant cruiser of the skies today—but the most interesting gaze will be that of Ansel Franklin Carroll, of Mansfield, as he watches the Los Angeles circle the city.

For Carroll, a strapping aviation sailor—as he is called by sea sailors—is a member of the crew of the navy dirigible. He has been on leave, visiting his mother, Mrs. Vera Franklin Carroll, in Mansfield, since October 10. When he learned the Los Angeles would visit Atlanta today, he made all haste to be here and greet her.

Aviation Mechanic's Mate Carroll, as he is designated in the navy, has been on earth only 20 years, but with part of that time spent in the service of Uncle Sam, is a traveled and air-seasoned youth. He grew up in the little town of Mansfield with dreams of one day becoming an aviator.

Looking down upon earth-bound people may have given Sailor Carroll a superiority complex, so to speak. He is positive that the Los Angeles is the best dirigible in the world and he intends to remain attached to her if possible.

"No, I don't care for a transfer to the Akron," he said, "because I think our ship is the greatest of all." The personal pride Carroll has in his ship is human and warm. When he speaks of the great cigar-shaped body and the powerful but delicate engines, he does so with the air of one thoroughly in love with his chief interest. Like the automaton who spent his vacation riding a street car, the sailor hopes the Los Angeles will be grounded here so that he may go aboard.

Two years of special training in two aviation schools were spent by Carroll following his enlistment January 14, 1923. He joined the Los Angeles crew April 30 of this year. His first enlistment will end January 13, 1933, but he intends to reenlist, he said.

Since Carroll became attached to ern seaboard, and once, due to bad weather, the dirigible was moored to a steamship four days off Montauk Point, Long Island. Carroll said that was his most interesting experience.

"My greatest thrill came," he said, "when a young student officer nearly fell from the ship when he was shining down the sides to a control room."

Carroll will return to his ship October 30, when his furlough is over, and he declared himself to be anxious to get back.

14-Act Trilogy By Gene O'Neill Well Received

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(P)—Gene O'Neill exceeds even "Strange Interlude" in the length of his new play, "Mourning Becomes Electra," which opened at the Guild theater tonight.

Playgoers were in the theater at 4 p. m. for the curtain of the first play of this 14-act trilogy. The first play is "The Home-coming," in four acts, followed by an hour's dinner intermission. The last two plays, "The Haunted" and "The Hunted," are of five acts each.

O'Neill does not use either aside speeches or masks in this new drama. He takes the mood of his theme from the Greek tragedy, "Electra," placing his scene in a New England seaport at the close of the Civil War.

The play opens with the return of General Mammam from the war to learn that his wife is preparing to elope with his brother's son. His daughter, Lavina, discovers that her mother poisons her father.

When Mammam's son returns from the war he refuses to believe his sister's accusations against his mother. In the end she furnishes definite proof and the mother commits suicide. The son, hounded by a mother fixation just as the daughter was by a father fixation, kills himself.

At the last, Lavina, the Electra of the play, is the solitary remnant of a family so relentlessly pursued by its fate.

Allice Brady, Alla Nazimova and Earl Larimore received ovations from the first afternoon-night audience.

Life of Thomas A. Edison

BY DAVID WILSON.

(Copyright for The Constitution and The N. A. A. N. E., Inc.)

Chapter IX.

A Piece of Thread Glows.

Thomas Edison stood, in the early fall of 1878, upon the threshold of his greatest contribution to mankind. In three years of inconceivably hard work he was to create this electric lighting industry as we know it today; not merely to invent a few contrivances for it, but actually to build from its foundations an industry which half a century later was to dominate America.

From a dozen different standpoints the feat is unparalleled. Edison at this time was described by contemporaries as a good-natured, frequently smiling, at times preoccupied man, idolized by the men who worked with him. He was only 31; his hair still was jet-black, and a lock of it habitually hung down over his forehead. His hands seemed to impress both the men he worked with and casual visitors. They were strong looking, narrow, long-fingered. The fingers were stained all over with chemicals.

Edison had done a life-time's work and he seemed to realize fully that in the next 10 years he would achieve accomplishments enough for another lifetime.

Terrific Pace.

Once he was inspired to take up the electric light he plunged in with all his energy and pulled his assistants in with him. He started another of those frequent Menlo Park crises of labor—18, 20, 24 hours a day; sleep snatched on a table or a couch; food gobbled in odd moments. By October 5, 1878, he had obtained his first patent, but it was an unimportant one; the date is of interest chiefly as marking the speed with which Edison moved once he had started seriously upon the study.

Edison always received the credit due him for creating the incandescent bulb after dozens of other inventors had given it up as hopeless. Its invention was a typical Edison accomplishment, the result of trying everything until something was found which worked.

But the incandescent bulb, though in perfecting it Edison sent men all over the world and tested elaborately thousands of materials, was merely the first and by no means the greatest step in changing the world from oil and gas to an era of turning switches and pressing buttons to make light and heat and to run machinery. Here was the problem as briefly stated by Albert B. Herrick, who worked with the wizard at Menlo Park:

Many Tasks.

"Lamps must be lighted and extinguished separately. He must find a filament, unlike platinum, that would become luminous without melting when under the electric charge. And when all this was done he had to invent an adequate generator to produce the electric current; to create a better type of regulator; to make a meter by which the amount of electric current could be measured; to conceive and design the proposed central station where current could be generated on a great scale."

And in every one of these problems there cropped up a dozen or a hundred minor problems that had to be solved. Even after the electric bulb was invented and its manufacture was started, it was necessary to build, piece by piece, in the Menlo Park machine shop, all the machinery for making power available to consumers where they wanted it, for not one item of importance could be purchased ready made or adapted from some existing purpose. Edison was building from the bottom.

With all these problems to face, by December 31, 1879, Edison was able to demonstrate a marvelous display of electric lights. By 1881 he was actually starting work on the Pearl street station of the New York Edison Company in New York city, the first central electric power generating station in the United States.

In 1882, four years after Edison started work on the problem, electric power for lighting was being furnished commercially to clients in New York, and the whole theory of the practicability of electricity had been revolutionized.

But in mid-September, 1878, all Edison had had to go on was the memory of a few desultory and highly unsuccessful experiments with carbon filaments, and the knowledge that the ranking physicists of the world were sure electric power would never be made practically available for low-powered lights for household use.

Theoretical Problem. Edison's first problem was largely theoretical. Up to that time arc lights had always been connected in series with the batteries of dynamos which operated them. That is to say, simply, a single wire ran from the dynamo through one or more lights and back to the dynamo, completing the circuit. If the circuit was broken at one light, all other lights on that circuit went out.

The multiple arc system of wiring was wholly unknown; Edison devised it to fit his needs. By this system individual lights on a circuit are connected across the two wires which connect with the two poles of the dynamo. The turning on of a light completes the circuit, but if one light on the circuit goes out the others are not affected. It is perfectly simple—now.

That much accomplished, Edison concentrated on a filament lamp to replace the arc. He sought a hair-size wire which would heat readily to light-giving incandescence without melting. Others had been unable to find it, but he was convinced that if the filament were placed in a glass bulb from which the air had been removed as nearly completely as possible, the problem would be solved.

He cast around for an adequate vacuum pump; there was none. So, in that off-hand way he had of getting what he needed, he invented one that completely outclassed any used up to that time.

Metals Fail.

Edison started work with platinum wires in glass bulbs; they always burned out as soon as a strong current passed through. Other metals then available were equally useless. Six months were wasted in futile experiments with wires before Edison abandoned that whole line of investigation and started work on carbon filaments.

Carbon was theoretically the ideal substance for incandescent lighting, but obtaining a carbon filament that would stand the strain of sealing in a bulb, and then could be jarred as much as a bulb would be jarred in practical use, seemed almost hopeless. For weeks Edison passed his time carbonizing various substances that could be shaped into a loop, heating them until all the original substance was gone and only carbon remained. None would work.

One day as he pondered over the problem, his restless fingers plucked from a frayed cuff a thread of cotton. It was something that had not been tried. Edison put it into the furnace and soon had his carbon loop; but it broke as he tried to seal it in the vacuum bulb.

He sent to the stock-room for cotton thread; for once, the stock-room fell down. While a messenger hastened to the Edison home in search of help from Mrs. Edison's work basket, Edison tried more samples from his clothes; all of them broke. The spool of thread arrived. It was almost exhausted before, at last, a carbon loop was sealed safely inside a bulb. It was placed in the test socket; the current was turned on. The carbon grew red, then yellow, and gave off a soft, pleasant light.

It burned 40 hours. In principle, the problem of the incandescent lamp was solved, though the problem of making a lamp which would stand up under practical use had hardly begun. The date was October 21, 1879, a little more than a year after the light experiments started.

FOUL PLAY HINTED IN LAKE MYSTERY

Search for the bodies of two Atlanta white men and two Jasper county negroes continued Monday at Jackson dam in the Ocmulgee river without success as the possibility of foul play was injected in the mysterious disappearance of the men.

Sheriff W. D. Pope, of Butts county, said that he suspects that the men were not accidentally drowned but were the victims of foul play. His suspicions were aroused by an examination of the boat. A tin can in the bottom of the craft was upright, and he is convinced that the boat did not capsize, Sheriff Pope said. He added that he could find no motive for violence.

W. H. Wilson, clerk of the county commission, of Jackson, Monday said that there was some doubt as to whether the men were drowned, as was first believed, or whether they may have met with foul play.

The missing white men, Bernald Gaston, 28, employee of the state highway department, and C. C. Smith, employee of an oil concern, left a fishing club eight miles from Jackson with the two negroes, Lucien Grimes and Willie Willis, in a boat powered with an outboard motor. The boat later was found drifting partly filled with water.

Wilson said that certain reported circumstances of the case suggested to him the possibility of foul play. The bateau was found half a mile down the river from where the men started the trip, there was only a little water in it and articles in the boat were in an orderly arrangement, Wilson said. A hat of one of the negroes was found floating nearby.

CAPONE'S JOURNEY AGAIN IS DELAYED

Appellate Court To Rule on Defense Contentions This Afternoon.

CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Alphonse Capone remained in the Cook county jail tonight, saved another day from Leavenworth prison by a brief order of the United States circuit of appeals.

Three circuit judges heard the gangster's lawyers plead for his freedom while he appeals his conviction as an income tax dodger, heard a federal prosecutor say he should be put away immediately for the good of the public and told the United States marshal to wait at least another day before starting for the federal penitentiary with Capone.

The judges said they would announce their decision on a writ of superseas and an appeal bond at 2 o'clock tomorrow.

So, for the second time, Capone's train reservations were cancelled. The first delay was Saturday afternoon. Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, who sentenced the gang chief to 11 years' imprisonment, told the marshal to wait until today to permit his lawyers to appeal to the higher court for bond.

2 MILTON COUNTIANS ON LOWRY'S TICKET

Two Milton county men have been placed on the ticket with Sheriff James I. Lowry subject to the primary next March. It was announced from the sheriff's office Monday.

The two who will run with the sheriff when he seeks renomination are T. L. Carroll and Roger Bagwell. Both of the men, who will seek berths as deputy sheriffs, were active in the election that resulted in the forthcoming merger of Fulton and Milton counties. Carroll is well known in Fulton county, having been salesman with the John Silvey company for 15 years. Bagwell is a Milton county farmer.

Two 'Minnie Balls,' Welded in Collision, Found at Kennesaw

Not all the bullets fired by the armies of Sherman and Johnston during the Battle of Kennesaw Mountain found their targets of flesh and bones or whistled through the air to bury themselves in the earth. Two of the famous "Minnie balls" used in the War Between the States had a different fate. They struck head-on in mid-air and became welded together in one crumpled mass of lead.

This oddity is owned by L. M. Channell, of Marietta, who found it on Cheatham's hill, near Kennesaw mountain. The leaden pellets mutually testify that a federal and a Confederate soldier fired their rifles in the same direction at approximately the same moment, perhaps at each other. Thousands of the "Minnie balls" have been found on the Kennesaw battlefield since the sixties by souvenir hunters, but never, so far as is known, has anyone found two such bullets, Channell said.

War Between the States. A wardrobe, owned by him, had a hole torn through the door by one of the "Minnie balls." The piece of furniture is more than 100 years old, he said.

BAGGIORE WILL SING IN ATLANTA TONIGHT

Great Tenor To Substitute for Claudia Muzio, Arrival in U. S. Delayed.

The delayed arrival in America of Claudia Muzio, celebrated Italian dramatic soprano, and her difficulty in getting her trunk through the customs office redounds to the benefit of Atlanta music lovers. Mrs. W. H. Bedard, president of the Music Study Club, announced Monday night.

Muzio was to have sung tonight at Wesley Memorial auditorium. Her tardiness in reaching this country has delayed her Atlanta appearance until January, and tonight Attilio Baggiore, leading tenor of the Royal Opera of Rome, will sing for Atlantans.

"Thus, we will have the benefit of five concerts this season instead of four, by obtaining in addition to our other outstanding artists the noted Baggiore," Mrs. Bedard said. "Otherwise, we would have missed Baggiore entirely, but the great resources of the Civic Concert Service, of Chicago, have turned what first appeared to be our bad luck into our extremely good fortune, because we will hear Baggiore and Muzio, too."

Baggiore will sing at 8:30 o'clock tonight in the first concert of the season of the Civic Music Association, sponsored by the Atlanta Music Club. A real treat is in store for those who attend, judging by the quality of Baggiore's voice as heard over the radio recently, Mrs. Bedard said.

George Ramey Jr. To Exhibit Oil Paintings, Water Colors

George W. Ramey Jr., young artist, who will exhibit his works Wednesday at the Studio Club, is shown above with several pieces of his collection.

George W. Ramey Jr., Atlanta artist, will exhibit oil paintings and water colors at the Studio Club, 104 1-2 Forsyth street, N. W., from 4 until 6 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

The collection which will be on exhibition comprises chiefly still life and landscape subjects, although there are several portraits. Mr. Ramey's work is in the modern manner, using broad technique and clear, strong colors. He has a strong decorative sense and a beautifully educated taste controls his work.

Oil paintings in the exhibit are rather a departure for the artist, who heretofore usually has exhibited batiks or water colors. In the last exhibition of Georgia arts sponsored by Devison-Paxton Company, he won the prize with his batik of white geese.

The artist graduated in architecture from Georgia School of Technology and has been connected with the firm of Edwards and Sayward.

He studied abroad in 1927, when he first became interested in oil painting. He was president of the Studio Club for the past two years and has contributed much to the development of the Little Theater of that organization. He is one of the most active members of the Beaux Arts group.

TWO FLORIDA GIRLS KILLED IN ACCIDENT

TAMPA, Fla., Oct. 26.—(P)—Two prominent Tarpon Springs girls being driven by automobile to Southern College at Lakeland early today were killed when the car left the road and overturned. The driver is unconscious in a hospital. The accident was said by traffic officers to be due to heavy smoke from woods fires.

The girls were Laura Register, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Lake Register, and Melissa Vinson, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. K. Vinson. Mr. Vinson owns Vinson's Funeral Home. The bodies were brought here.

The driver was Victor G. Campbell, an employee of Mr. Vinson.

HOFFMAN ASSERTS HE HAD 'ISLE SOLD'

Defendant Testifies in Federal Court Deal Failed
When He Was Arrested in Miami.

Edward F. Hoffman testified in his own trial for mail fraud in federal court Monday that the fraudulent representations concerning prospects for sale of the Isle of Wight, off the Georgia coast, to John Ringling, circus magnate, were made by Dr. J. H. Walton, of Decatur, a principal government witness.

The government charges Hoffman, former welfare worker and inmate of the federal prison, obtained several thousand dollars "expense money" from Walton, Attorney-General George M. Napier and others to carry out the deal, claiming that he was a close personal friend of Ringling.

Hoffman testified he never had claimed to know Ringling, that he never had claimed to be in touch with him, and that the only thing he did in that connection was to "alibi for Dr. Walton" without committing himself, when the retired physician made reference to dealings with Ringling.

The government charged Hoffman sent communications signed "Gallagher" to Dr. Walton, in reference to the deal, claiming that "Gallagher" was being Ringling's secretary. Several letters and telegrams introduced by the government mentioned "Gallagher" and a man referred to only as "John." Prosecutors said the reference to "John" was made to convince Walton of progress in dealings with Ringling.

Hoffman testified that Gallagher was Richard Gallagher, a show owner, and John was his elder brother, associated with him in the show business. He said he had actually consummated a sale to the Gallaghers and had a check for $125,000 from them to apply on the deal when he was arrested on the present charges in Miami, Fla. He said he returned the check and could not remember what bank it was drawn on.

Questioned by Clint Hager, district attorney, on why he did not produce the Gallaghers to back his story, Hoffman said he had no money to bring any witnesses into court. He charged Dr. Walton had "blackmailed" him of all the money he had and offered to explain how, but the court ruled against admission of his story.

Hoffman said the first he heard of the Ringling connection with the island was when Dr. Walton told Attorney-General Napier that he (Walton) actually had sold the place to the circus owner as a new winter headquarters. He said Walton later admitted to him that he told the story to keep Napier in the dark as to whom he was actually dealing with, and to stall off his creditors. He said he stood by mute on several occasions when his witnesses were asked questions.

E. J. Bergstrom, Savannah prohibition agent who owns the island, and from whom it was proposed to buy it for $125,000 for resale, testified Hoffman represented himself as being in touch with Ringling.

Dr. Walton identified the telegrams signed Hoffman in regard to the deal, and said the Ringling story was told to him by Hoffman. The defendant said many of his telegrams to the retired physician had been mailed to him by Walton to be sent back for the purpose of "stalling off" Walton's creditors.

Hoffman said he had introduced the Gallaghers to Dr. Walton, but the physician denied it. The defendant claimed Dr. Walton had commissioned him to sell the island to anyone who would buy it, and offered to pay expenses. He said he spent $20 of his own money on the deal for each dollar Dr. Walton repaid him.

The defendant claimed Dr. Walton had commissioned him to sell the island to anyone who would buy it, and offered to pay expenses. He said he spent $20 of his own money on the deal for each dollar Dr. Walton repaid him.

To test the question, the government selected two cases from Butte, Mont., where in February, 1930, two soft drink parlors operated separately by George Lewis and George Anderson, were raided and the furnishings of the rooms were seized as well as the intoxicating liquor found.

Edward Ryan claims ownership of the Brunswick bar seized in the Lewis place, which the government described as a barroom with swinging doors. The ninth circuit court of appeals held that personal property could be confiscated in places where liquor was being manufactured. It ruled, however, the internal revenue law under which the government operated did not warrant seizure and confiscation of personal property where liquor was unlawfully sold but not manufactured.

Assistant Attorney General Youngquist who argued the case for the government was asked by one member of the court whether the government claimed it could seize the personal property on customers found in bootleg establishments.

Youngquist replied that no such construction was asked, explaining that the government insisted it only had the right to seize personal property found in the room where illicit liquor was sold.

CYPRISANS PROTEST BY SALT MAKING

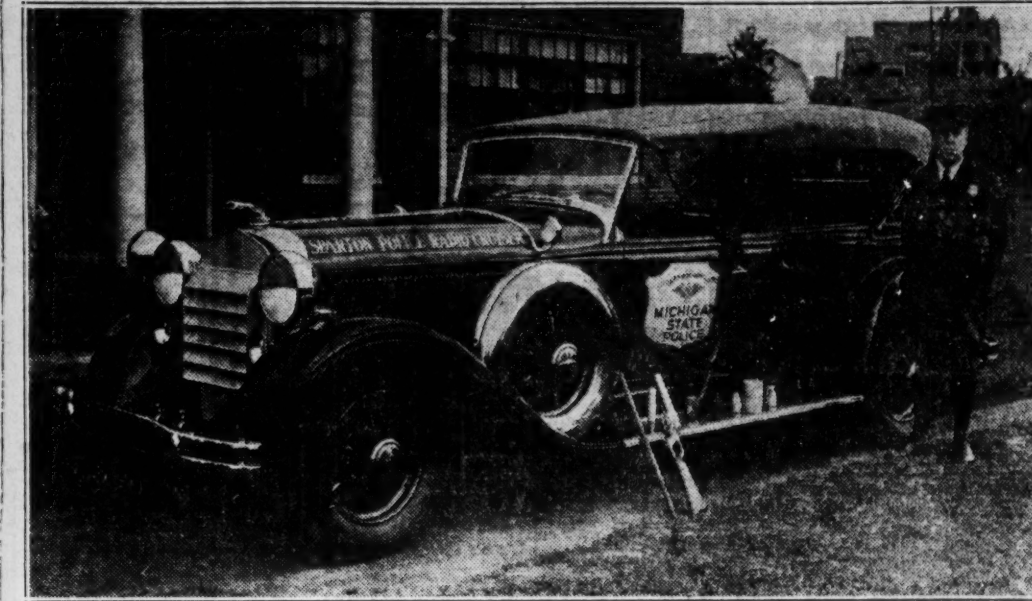

LANARKA, Island of Cyprus, Oct. 26.—(P)—Emulating Mahatma Gandhi's tactics in India, a great crowd gathered today at the salt lake near Limassol and proceeded to make salt.

In this British crown island as in India, the government has a monopoly of salt manufacture. Last week there were serious disorders here when a section of the people, agitating for union with Greece, burned government house at Nicosia. British warships were sent at the governor's request and half a dozen leaders of the uprising were arrested.

Troops were sent into the area at once and the situation, which up to today appeared quiet, was tense.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—(P)—This was Mahatma Gandhi's day of silence and no comment was available from him on developments in the Island of Cyprus where a crowd made salt in defiance of the government monopoly.

Powerful Radio Cruiser of Michigan Police Will Be Demonstrated to Atlantans Today

Officials of the Atlanta police department, members of the Atlanta police committee of council and newspapermen tonight will ride the giant Police Radio Cruiser, shown above, developed to combat organized crime, when it is placed into service for a local demonstration. The car is a variable flying arsenal, capable of a speed of 110 miles an hour. John Dixon, veteran police officer in charge of the demonstration tour, is shown with the car. It carries machine guns, rifles, tear gas bombs and hand grenades in addition to standard equipment.

Atlanta today will get its first official glimpse of the last word in police cruiser equipment when the giant flying arsenal of the Michigan state police, on a demonstration tour, will go into service here for two days.

Members of the police committee of council have surveyed the machine and have agreed to a demonstration tonight and Wednesday. The cruising nemesis of crime will roam Atlanta streets, as do the other smaller police cars, but will be ready to dash at 110 miles an hour to any point where there is danger or threat of violence. It was said by R. W. Billingsley, southeastern district manager of the Sparks-Withington Company, of Jackson, Mich., distributors of the car's radio equipment.

The car, a Lincoln, has been built especially to aid in the war on gangsters and the spread of crime. It is equipped with long and short wave radio receiving sets, a police siren, spot and search lights, a Thompson machine gun, tear bombs and hand grenades, a 30-caliber and a 12-gauge rifle, danger flares, fire extinguishers, a first aid kit and two service revolvers in addition to the equipment which the crew ordinarily would carry.

The car is on a tour of the United States for demonstration purposes only at this time and is in charge of John J. Dixon, veteran police officer. Vice President Curtis rode in it while it was at Washington, it was said. It is now on its way east following a demonstration at the St. Petersburg (Fla.) convention of the International Association of Police Chiefs.

High Praise to Atlanta Penny Club Given by National Radio Speaker

Glowing tribute was paid to the Penny Club and its originator, Mrs. Thomas K. Glenn, by Mrs. Ida Bailey Allen over the Columbia Broadcasting System Monday morning in a talk before the National Homemakers Club of New York.

Describing the club as one of the most unusual and most practical of all the plans and methods thus far advanced to help the unemployed, Mrs. Allen stated that this was a way for all women to aid in President Hoover's relief movement. "It is a plan especially designed for the homemaker," she said.

Citing one example whereby work would be created for some of the 6,000,000 unemployed men and women in the United States, the speaker pointed out that if churches and other organizations saved pennies for a short period such repair work on buildings as painting, etc., could be done, giving employment to many.

Mrs. Allen compared present times with those of 1917 to 1921, when husbands, brothers, and loved ones were in need. "Women rose to that occasion," she said, "and saved to send food across to them. They are rising to this as well. Women from all over the nation now have an opportunity to help in a small way, she asserted, and are glad of that opportunity."

Mrs. Glenn, wife of a prominent Atlanta banker, Mrs. Allen told her radio audience, conceived the idea for the penny-meal donation after a talk with Mayor James L. Key and a committee on unemployment relief.

A Atlanta woman figured that if 50,000 people gave one cent per meal three times a day, $1,500 daily or $45,000 a month would be raised. Pledges were distributed to families through school children and newspapers, and boxes to receive the contribution were placed all over the city in public spots, in theaters, office buildings, restaurants, churches, etc.

Everyone is urged to give and to do his bit. "A glorious plan . . . a magnificent undertaking," Mrs. Allen calls it. The idea has spread rapidly, many other cities adopting it as soon as its success was assured by the reception it was given here.

HOOVER PRAISES RADIO FOR AVOIDING POLITICS

Decision Not To Have Government Broadcasting
Lauded by President.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—(P)—A decision reached early in the life of the radio industry not to have governmental broadcasting supported by a tax upon the listener was praised today by President Hoover as having avoided dangerous political and social pitfalls.

This message was broadcast by the chief executive in a radio address today directed particularly to the National Broadcasters' Association meeting at Detroit. He spoke from the cabinet room of the White House.

The president recalled his close association with the radio industry while he was secretary of commerce and referred to the decision made at that time to license broadcasting channels to private enterprise under governmental supervision.

This and other decisions, he said, had acted to preserve "free speech to the country."

$2,300 Contest Spreads Joy, Inspires Its Many Followers

Dr. Kennedy Tells of Health Benefits of Old Sayings Game; No. 49 'Easy.'

A thought for contestants: (Describe success and you shall command it.—Italian.)

BY THE PROVERB EDITOR.

Cares and worries, aches and pains have been weighed and tossed overboard by Captain Happiness, the genial skipper of the good ship Proverb Contest—so say his passenger-contestants. Not a day goes by without several letters from readers who tell of the mental relief and physical tonic afforded by the glorious game of old sayings.

More than 400 Georgia ministers have pointed out the spiritual value of this joyful $2,300 contest. Monday when the proverb editor interviewed Dr. John P. Kennedy, city health officer, he took occasion to point out its physical value. "The proverb contest," said Dr. Kennedy, "is a splendid diversion. It keeps the mind pleasantly occupied, and, therefore, those who are burdened with worries or beset by pain, will find it a source of relief."

It is a well-known fact that a person whose mind is untroubled is likely to enjoy full health or be more quickly restored to physical vigor.

The proverb contest is synonymous with golden opportunity. The first prize of $1,000 alone is enough to make a substantial down payment on a home, or to refund one's taxes, and many a large and prosperous business has been started with less capital than that.

The liberal conditions of the proverb contest have greatly added to its popularity. There are no subscriptions to get. Contestants need not even be subscribers to The Constitution in order to win any of the 30 generous cash prizes. There is no money to pay or collect. No votes or points are needed.

Contestants should have very little difficulty in finding the old saying that fits picture No. 49. It's an easy one.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Question: "I am not yet 21. Can I (in order) in a scrap book with loose-leaf note patches? Will they be accepted? And will you please tell me how long after the contest is over before the judges announce the winners?"

Answer: You may, if you wish, paste your pictures in a scrap-book. Immediately after December 7, when all of the sets of pictures and answers are in, the judges will begin their work. Bearing in mind that "Haste makes waste," they will make no attempt to announce the winners in record time. They will check twice every set that is submitted, and their first consideration will be accuracy rather than speed. Every answer and every picture submitted will be painstakingly and unobtrusively examined. The names of the winners will be made known as early as possible before Christmas.

A Great Dramatic Star

Comes Back

The proximity of our home office to Hollywood often brings us interesting inside stories of the screen colony there that do not find their way into general circulation. This story of a great star who came back is one of them.

A few years ago he was press-agent as "The Screen's Greatest Lover." He was, in picture parlance, "good box office." His pictures paid the producers, and the producers paid him $10,000 a week.

Then the talkies came in. The great star of the silent drama did not do so well in sound. Others began to take his place as the screen's best lover. It looked like the beginning of the old, old story all over again. But it wasn't. The same old story for him. He still had his contract, paying him $10,000 a week; he had the lesson of many another fading star to draw upon, and he had the courage to make a fresh start.

Today this man has a million dollars in a protected investment fund that he cannot touch, and each week all of his $10,000 salary, aside from a moderate living allowance, goes into this fund. He is not broken, either in finances or in spirit, and friends and critics predict that his best work on the screen still lies ahead of him. His protected income fund will give him the courage and the time he needs to come back.

Not many of us can make a million our mark. All of us, however, can have something substantial in a protected income fund to fall back on, if we start today, building up with one of the numerous Pacific Mutual income plans. You will find one of these plans ideally suited to your situation, and if you will phone me or return the coupon below, I will gladly tell you about it, without the slightest obligation on your part.

take part in the proverb contest? H. A. C.

Answer: You are eligible. There are no age restrictions.

This Will Be Satisfactory.

Question: "Another letter from one who is immensely interested in the contest. Will you please tell me if it will be all right to paste the proverbs leaf note patches? Will they be accepted? And will you please tell me how long after the contest is over before the judges announce the winners?"

Answer: You may, if you wish, paste your pictures in a scrap-book. Immediately after December 7, when all of the sets of pictures and answers are in, the judges will begin their work. Bearing in mind that "Haste makes waste," they will make no attempt to announce the winners in record time. They will check twice every set that is submitted, and their first consideration will be accuracy rather than speed. Every answer and every picture submitted will be painstakingly and unobtrusively examined. The names of the winners will be made known as early as possible before Christmas.

Duplicates Obtainable.

Question: "How can I obtain pictures from No. 15 through No. 38, and from No. 40 through No. 46? I saved all of these and while I was out of town the housekeeper misplaced them.—Mrs. J. B. Whitehall, N. C."

Answer: If you are unable to get the missing pictures from the copies of The Constitution delivered to your friends or neighbors, they may be had easily by writing in. Single copies of back pictures are 5 cents, the single issue price of The Constitution in which they were published. Any 8 of the pictures may be had for 30 cents, or from No. 1 to No. 40 for $1.25.

You are missing altogether 31 pictures. If you will send us $1.20, and an additional 2 cents for postage, we will be glad to mail you these 31 pictures, and an extra one of any number you may want.

Question: "Being an elderly rheumatic shut-in, the proverb contest furnishes me much amusement and instruction, as well as hope for a prize. May I suggest that you put on another one?—Mrs. R. N. S."

Answer: Believe us, we are delighted to learn that the proverb contest is serving to ease your pain, and providing entertainment. In the future The Constitution may conduct another similar contest.

Yes, This Will Be Done.

Question: "Please be good enough to answer this through your daily column: Whether you will print, after the prizes are awarded, the correct answers?—A Contestant."

Answer: The correct answers for all of the pictures will be published after the announcement of the winners.

No Difference.

Question: "Does it make any difference if all words of a proverb are started with capitals, like this 'All Roses Have Thorns'?—Mrs. F. E. H."

Answer: Any accepted form of capitalization may be used.

You Can Win.

Question: "I am just an ordinary housewife with only a grade-school education. I'm not a genius and I have never before taken part in or won a contest of any kind. Do you think I have a chance in the proverb contest?—Mrs. P. N. L."

Answer: You don't have to have a bulging forehead or be a genius in order to win the first prize of $1,000, or any of the other 29 proverb contest prizes. Just plain, everyday "house" sense will lead you to the answers and prizes. If you fail to solve some of the pictures, don't give up. Probably no contestant will succeed in finding all of the correct answers. This is one contest in which a college professor has no advantage over a housewife, and where a corporation president is on the same footing with a farmer.

Anonymous letters from contestants who ask interesting questions frequently cannot, because of limited space, be answered in this column. Contestants can only be assured of a reply when they sign their names and addresses. Only their initials will be used if their questions are answered here.

INVESTIGATION SEEN

IN FOSHAY PROCEDURE

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 26.—(AP)—An inquiry into the handling of the jury that was unable to agree in the trial of W. B. Foshay and six associates on mail fraud charges, was planned today by federal officials.

The jury was discharged Friday after deliberating eight days without reaching a verdict. It had been locked up during the trial. Yesterday Fred Horowitz, special government prosecutor, said he had learned Mrs. Genovese Clark, only woman on the jury, had been visited at least once a week by her husband.

It also was reported that other members of the jury were permitted to have visitors without proper authorization.

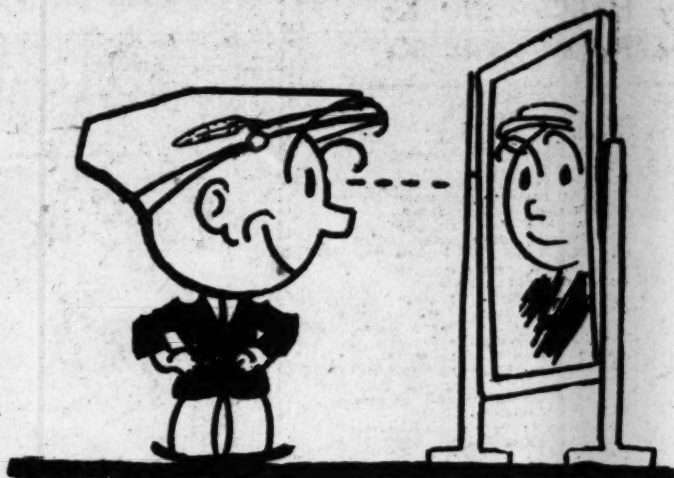

INSANE MAN ATTACKS

FAMILY, KILLS SELF

JEFFERSON, Ohio, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Driven insane by financial troubles, Jay E. Orford, 39, a garage owner, today clubbed to death his eight-month-old baby, cut and seriously wounded his wife, Nora, 38, clubbed his son, Norman, 12, set their apartment afire, and then committed suicide. Doctors said Mrs. Orford and Norman will recover.

Mrs. Orford's screams brought help from Clifford Hall.

Don't let this picture "stump" you. If you cannot recall the old saying that fits it, or any of the other pictures of the series, call at the office of The Constitution and obtain one of the helpful and valuable reference lists of 2,000 proverbs. Or a copy of this interesting list may be had by mail by writing to the Proverb Editor, The Atlanta Constitution, Atlanta, Ga., and enclosing a two-cent stamp for return postage.

Instructions. The total prize money to be awarded Proverb Contest entrants is $2,300. The first prize is $1,000; the second, $500; the third, $250; the fourth, $100, and the fifth, $50. The supplemental prizes consist of ten prizes of $25 each and fifteen prizes of $10 each. There is no charge to take part in the contest and it is not necessary for contestants to register. There are no subscriptions to get, and non-subscribers are invited to take part. There will be no tie-breaking series of pictures and no extra work will be required. The correct answers are what count. The proverb pictures and answers are to be submitted until all of the pictures have been published. Three competent and impartial judges, not employed by The Constitution, will decide the winners.

Fifth Dimension Is Postulated In Latest Einstein Problem

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE.

Associated Press Science Editor.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Announcement of existence of a fifth dimension that is at least sufficiently real to be used in mathematics, is made by Professor Albert Einstein.

The name and the nature of the new dimension he does not explain, the announcement being a preliminary report, issued through the Josiah Macy Jr. Foundation here, which has financed some of Einstein's recent work.

This fifth dimension is employed in a new set of mathematics to demonstrate the existence of a relation between gravitation and electricity.

Two years ago Einstein announced to the scientific world a series of super-geometrical equations which showed there is a connection between these two forces of creation.

But these Einstein equations failed to work "rigorously," a year ago, Professor Einstein reported that he had been able to revise these equations so that they worked better. Both these sets of mathematics used parallel lines, which in a strange and unexpected fashion did not always remain parallel.

In adopting the fifth dimension mathematics, Einstein is turning his back on both the former equations as explanations of gravitational-electrical kinship. In doing this he follows exact scientific practice.

The scientific rule is to "publish" work as soon as it is reasonably far along. This publication is intended both to permit other scientists to profit by the new information, and to enable them to shoot holes in any errors it may contain. Much of the progress of science has been made through use of this sharp-shooting practice.

Einstein still is following the trail of an explanation of the mysterious link suspected to exist between gravitation and electricity. He says that his earlier conceptions of the parallelism as the explanation now appears to have been in the wrong direction.

Assumption as a new dimension mathematics is a well-established practice, sometimes running up the count of the dimensions to nine.

SUSPECT IDENTIFIED

IN MIAMI SHOOTING

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Clifford Stewart, 30, was identified at county jail today by Mrs. J. E. Vice as the man who fired several revolver shots through a window at her home Thursday night in what police termed a hijacking battle.

Stewart was picked by the woman from a lineup of 25 prisoners.

TRADE BARS URGED FOR PHILIPPINES

Hurley Recommendations Seen as Prerequisite To Island Independence.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Export restrictions by the Philippines on products competing with American commodities, as a prerequisite to independence, will be a major point in a formal report on the islands to be submitted to President Hoover by Secretary Hurley.

Just back from a tour of the islands, during which he delved into the economic and political situations, the secretary of war today gave the president a preliminary summary of his conclusions.

After the conference he was silent on the question of independence, but said he would make in his formal report a definite recommendation for or against freedom for the islands. While there was no statement by the secretary as to what his attitude would be, the intimation was he opposed independence under the present circumstances.

The important problems before the two was searching for a successor to Dwight F. Davis, governor-general of the islands and former secretary of the war.

He has asked for leave of absence. Mrs. Davis is ill in Paris and he wishes to join her there. He probably will not return to Washington some time after December 1.

Theodore Roosevelt, governor-general of Porto Rico, has been talked of as likely to succeed Davis. He has been at the White House several times of late.

Equally important as the economic phases under consideration by Hurley is the matter of Philippine emigration to the United States. Those in favor of restricting it contend the Philippine legislature should be persuaded to limit emigration voluntarily to prevent further ingress of labor into the United States, for the present at least.

The secretary has asked the labor department for further data on the subject for incorporation in his conclusions of his formal report.

There was no authoritative interpretation of the secretary's views on the economic angles of the situation. Those who have studied the question, however, are convinced that any form of autonomy for the islands should be preceded by cessation of competition between Philippine exports to the United States and domestic American products.

One of these products is sugar. Previous limitations on the amounts of duty-free Philippine sugar which could be admitted to the United States were removed in 1913, as were restrictions on cigars and tobacco.

Another is copra, or dried coconut meat, from which coconut oil is pressed. This is characterized as a competitor of domestic vegetable oils.

The secretary found the islands in the control of the organized sentiment favoring independence.

American business firms and sections of the country which feel the competition from these products should be granted independence—in which case tariffs to neutralize the competition could be imposed.

Missing Baron Falls Heir To Substantial Fortune

CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Conditions for Baron Giorgio Mario Suriani have changed, but he may not be aware of it.

The baron, who offered his hand and his sixteenth century Neapolitan title to any eligible lady with a dowry of $100,000 without receiving any offers, has come into some $5,000,000 lira, or $250,000, Leslie G. Agasim, an attorney, said last night.

But the baron is missing from Chicago. He left his last known Chicago address about three weeks ago, which prompted Agasim to insert an ad in a newspaper offering a reward for information as to his whereabouts.

PAPER COMPANY BUYS COMMERCIAL APPEAL

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Control of the Commercial Appeal, Memphis morning newspaper, and its afternoon companion, the Evening Appeal, was sold today to federal receivers for the Minnesota & Ontario Paper Co., of Minneapolis.

The $100,000, subject to approval by the chancery court at Nashville.

The entire outstanding capital stock of the Memphis Commercial Appeal, Inc., consisting of 20,000 shares of $100 par value preferred and 550,000 shares of no par value common, was auctioned off at a foreclosure sale to satisfy a $1,500,000 claim of the M. & O. against Southern Publishers, Inc., a holding company, now in receivership.

The newspaper properties are encumbered by debenture bonds against the Memphis Commercial Appeal, Inc., totaling about $2,220,000, and approximately $500,000 of other direct liabilities.

When Southern Publishers, Inc., sold $1,500,000 of its own debentures to the M. & O. Paper Company, it pledged the stock of the Memphis Commercial Appeal, Inc., as collateral to secure them. The holding company, prior to going into receivership last December 23, was controlled by Colonel Luke Lea, Nashville publisher, and Rogers Caldwell, investment banker.

Captain Gus T. Fitzhugh, of Memphis, attorney for the M. & O., made the $1,000,000 bid on behalf of E. W. Decker, Charles R. Fowler, and E. W. Bachus, appointed receivers for the paper company by the United States district court at Minneapolis.

The sale was held in the offices of the Nashville Trust Company, conducted by W. W. McNeilly, vice president, and when he accepted the receivers' bid Captain Fitzhugh tendered a $500,000 debenture. This was the smallest denomination bond issued by Southern Publishers, Inc. He had another $1,000,000 debenture in his pocket.

VIRGINIA ATTORNEY FOUND SHOT TO DEATH

LAWRENCEVILLE, Va., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Edward P. Buford, 68, president of the Virginia Bar Association in 1922-23, was found dead today in his home with a pistol by his side. Death was caused by a bullet wound.

Members of the family found him dead after hearing the discharge of the weapon.

Mr. Buford was president of the Brunswick Bank and Trust Company and a senior member of a law firm.

WHITEHALL BRIDGE REBUILDING URGED

Mayor Key Asks Finance Committee To Approve Reconstruction Plans.

Mayor James L. Key Monday urged that the finance committee of council approve plans for reconstruction of the old Whitehall street viaduct, for the three following reasons:

1. Relief of the present acute unemployment situation.

2. Improvement of the appearance of downtown Atlanta.

3. Because under engineer's estimates about 30 per cent in rebuilding costs can be saved through taking advantage of the prevailing market prices.

Members of the finance committee are slated to meet this week to consider a council resolution which has the unanimous endorsement of the bridge committee, Clarke Donaldson, chief of construction, and C. E. Kauffmann, assistant chief in charge of bridges. The paper contemplates taking advantage of the offer of John W. Grant, Atlanta financier, to lend Atlanta half the cost of the project for 15 months without interest, full-ton county commissioners to bear the other half of the expense by taking advantage of a similar offer from the First National bank, through John K. Otley, president.

The bridge was built in 1901 and engineers say it must be replaced within the next three or four years as a matter of safety. It is estimated that 30 per cent can be saved if it is rebuilt immediately.

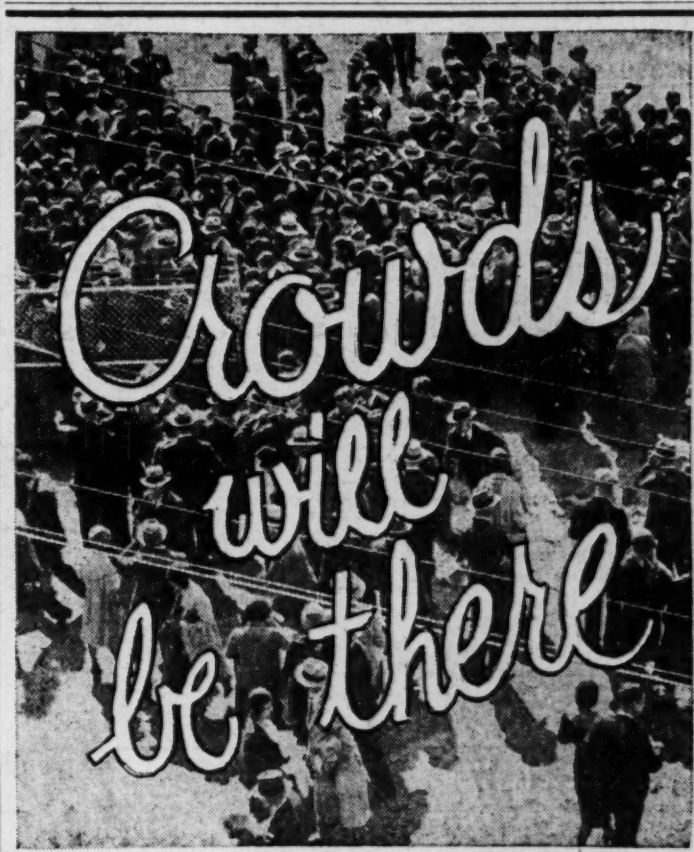

"All cities must consider their appearance," Key said. "The new bridge would complete modernization of our downtown viaduct system. It also would be of material assistance in meeting our employment problem. In addition it can be built now at a saving."

Alderman J. Charlie Murphy, chairman of the finance committee to which the bridge committee resolution was referred, indicated a meeting of the finance group will be held this week to consider the measure.

Gray Hair

Best Remedy is Made At Home

To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Shake well. Rub on hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. It imparts color to streaked, faded or gray hair and makes it soft and glossy. Barbo will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

HOOVER APPROVES STRONG U. S. NAVY

President Declares Sea Defense 'First Necessity' of America.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The maintenance of a navy so strong and efficient that no enemy could ever invade this country was named today by President Hoover as "the first necessity" of the American government.

At the same time, the president, who has called for disarmament many times, termed this minimum a maximum as well. Our armed forces, he said, must be reduced to the lowest point that security will permit. Meanwhile, it developed that the administration plans to send a favorable reply before the week is out to a League of Nations request for participation in an immediate one-year disarmament holiday. More than 50 nations have been asked to join.

The president's statement was issued to call attention to tomorrow's celebration of Navy Day. Officers and men of the United States sea forces throughout the world will recognize it. The army, too, will make a bow to its brother service.

After holding for the necessity of a sufficient armed force to repulse any invasion of this country, the chief executive said he had been informed by commanding officers that "we are maintaining that strength and efficiency."

"Ours is a force of defense, not offense," he said. "To maintain less than that strength is to destroy national safety; to maintain greater forces is not only economic injury to our people but a threat against our neighbors and would be righteous cause for ill-will amongst them."

Only last night, in a radio address, Mr. Hoover called for universal disarmament.

ARMY EXPERTS TEST AIR-COOLED ENGINES

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 26.—(Special.)—An order just placed with the Franklin Automobile Company for a 150-horsepower air-cooled engine to be built to special specifications of government engineers, for use in an army ten-ton truck, makes the eleventh order received by the local plant for air-cooled power units to undergo rigid test service in various branches of the mechanized force.

Seven engines are in use of the tank division and 60 have been delivered to the quartermaster's department at Camp Holabird. The seven-ton light tank is the unit now powered by the air-cooled motors and the same size power plant is also operating a variety of armored cars, cargo trucks, crash trucks and ambulances.

The air-cooled power units have figured all summer in the maneuvers conducted at Fort Eustis.

Tests by the American army on these engines have lasted several months. Through S. B. Dodge, head of the Franklin distributorship here, it was learned that published reports in technical circles have disclosed a high standard of performance under a wide variety of conditions. The record of a motor which duplicates those purchased by the government, recently driven for 104 miles in Death Valley without a stop, with the car in low gear, was cited by Mr. Dodge as one of the reasons for consideration of air-cooling in military service, especially under arid conditions and difficult terrain.

MEETING PLANNED ON DISARMAMENT

Atlanta will be one of a group of 38 cities in the United States to unite on Armistice Day, November 11, in a disarmament program, according to Mrs. Sinclair Jacobs, member of the arrangements committee. Mrs. J. N. McEachern is chairman of the committee, and plans for the day will be announced within a few days.

The purpose of the meetings, as defined by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, is "to present to American public opinion the problems which confront the coming disarmament conference in February, 1932, and to emphasize the extreme importance that conference."

Other southern cities to participate in the plans are Augusta, Houston, Texas; Charlottesville, Va.; Lynchburg, Va.; Baltimore, Md., and Richmond, Va.

ROOSEVELT IGNORES SMITH'S CRITICISM

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Governor Roosevelt tonight in a radio address waved aside former Governor Alfred E. Smith's objections to the proposed reforestation amendment to the state constitution, declaring it was the "moral duty" of New York voters to sanction the proposal.

The governor asserted the proposal "is a sound business policy." He did not mention his long-ago political ally.

Roosevelt supported his contention by citing legislation enacted under Smith's governorship as a precedent for committing the state to a long-term expenditure of funds.

Former Governor Smith first voiced publicly his opposition to the amendment in a speech at Tammany Hall. He later issued a statement advising the voters to "throw it out the window."

Aligned with the democratic governor in support of the proposal are W. Kingsland Macy, republican state chairman, and Nathan L. Miller, the last republican governor.

The governor explained that the amendment provides for appropriations of $19,000,000 to be spent over a period of 11 years for the purchase and reforestation of abandoned farm lands.

ACCIDENT VICTIMS STILL IN HOSPITAL

Conditions of persons seriously injured in automobile accidents Sunday were reported unchanged Monday.

Ralph Steel, of Crooked road, and Bill Swann, of DeFoor place, who were injured when an automobile driven by Robert Dixon of 146 DeFoor avenue, blew a tire and swerved a tree on Howell Mill road, are in Grady hospital.

Claude Walton, of 1583 Gordon street, whose car hit a street car at Mitchell and Spring streets, and Emerson Bledsoe, of 1125 Peachtree street, who was hurt in a crash near Stockbridge, also are in Grady.

STATE BUDGET PLAN IN EFFECT JANUARY 1

All state spending agencies were notified Monday by State Auditor Tom Wisdom that Governor Richard B. Russell Jr., under the provisions of the 1931 budget law, will assume control of appropriations to departments and institutions effective January 1 next.

Twenty days before the beginning of each quarter, the auditor has advised, the spending agency must submit a requisition for its apportionment of the yearly appropriation and explain in detail what it is to be spent for.

The approval of the governor to budgeted items in the future will be necessary before the treasury will honor warrants. Payments to obligees, however, will continue to be made by the department head after such approval has been obtained.

MEMPHIS EX-SHERIFF KILLED IN ACCIDENT

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 26.—(AP)—William S. Knight, former sheriff of Shelby county, was killed almost instantly on a highway near here today when his automobile left the road and crashed into a row of steel mill receptacles.

Knight, a former president of the Tennessee and Mississippi Peace Officers' Association, retired from the sheriff's office here September 1, 1930, after more than seven years in office. Prior to his election as sheriff he served several terms as a justice of the peace.

A few years ago he organized the Knight Chemical Company, which he was operating at the time of his death. In addition, he operated four truck farms here and a gravel pit at Camden, Tenn. He was 58 years old.

MAJOR YORK BURIED IN HAVANA CEMETERY

HAVANA, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Major Augustus W. York, of Marietta, Ga., who died yesterday after several weeks' illness, was buried today in Colon cemetery.

He came to Cuba with the American army during the Spanish-American War and remained as a Cuban soldier. He became a major in 1919 and several times was decorated by the Cuban government.

CHAIN STORE TAX UPHELD BY U. S.

North Carolina's Right To Impose Special Levy Approved by Court.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—North Carolina's chain store tax was stamped "constitutional" today by the supreme court.

The decision was the second of recent months in which the tribunal had upheld the authority of the state to impose a special levy upon this type of merchandising establishment.

Late last spring the court sustained such a tax as levied by Indiana, in one of the five-to-four decisions that served to bring into prominence a new alignment of fundamental opinion among the members of the bench.

The division on the North Carolina tax, although announced as seven-to-two, was in effect another five-to-four verdict. Associate Justices Van Devanter and Sutherland, who voted against the Indiana levy felt that the decision in that case should rule today and so joined the majority.

Today's dissenters were Associate Justices Butler and McReynolds. Justices Van Devanter, Sutherland, Butler and McReynolds, with the late Chief Justice Taft and Associate Justice Sanford, for years formed a majority controlling the court's opinions.

During this period the phrase "Holmes, Brandeis and Stone dissenting" gained its wide familiarity in juridical annals.

Chief Justice Hughes and Associate Justice Roberts, who succeeded Taft and Sanford, have shown a distinct tendency to align themselves with the old dissenting minority, thus placing the Holmes and Brandeis school of thought popularly labeled "liberal" in the majority.

The court today formally dismissed a case brought by Mississippi to test its tax on chain stores. The case is still pending in the lower courts and until they have disposed of it the supreme court felt it could not take it under consideration. When the court has followed the usual channels of lower court procedure then it may be brought without prejudice before the highest tribunal.

sent at once to the Family Welfare Society. Early today a visitor will be in the home, ascertaining its need and an order for groceries will be given.

The breadwinner himself will be given an opportunity to pay for this relief by working at a job of "made work" in some school yard or other public construction.

Home, Furniture Gone.

Close on his heels was a man of 50. There was only he and his wife, but times were so bitterly hard and had been so long for months, that his home, his furniture and everything else was gone. He was living with his brother, his wife with her sister; but the brother and the sister now were laid off and in addition to the wretchedness of a broken home, he was hungry. None of the four had any resources.

This case was referred to the city warden's office, which in the scheme of co-operative emergency relief is handling cases of this kind.

And these, observed in the space of 10 minutes, are but two of hundreds who apply, Mrs. Page said. From December to October there were 12,447 such applicants, despairing, spiritless men and women, asking first for work, then for food for their little broods at home.

Many of these it was necessary to feed over and over, so that the actual number of orders issued and visits made were many times more than the 12,447.

Relief like this is the object of the campaign now under way in Atlanta. The Community Chest agencies furnish the service through their established machinery and in addition to their regular programs. The Emergency Relief Committee must find the money, else these thousands will famish in this teeming, wealthy city.

U. S. SEEKS MARKET FOR COTTON, GRAIN

more complex since Great Britain went off the gold standard."

He added it was immaterial to the board whether farm board stocks were bought. If a private credit corporation is set up the purchases most likely would be from normal trade channels.

The board has sold 7,500,000 bushels of wheat to Germany and the way has been left open for further negotiations.

Williams, in speaking of offers to buy, said the board has received so many that it could dispose of every bushel of wheat and every bale of cotton it owns.

"But," he explained, "the terms haven't been right."

SOUTHERN BANKERS RALLY TO COTTON HOLDING PLAN

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Nathan Adams, Dallas banker and one of the sponsors of the southern bankers' plan for holding one-fourth of this year's cotton crop until next July, said today pledges being received from Texas bankers indicated the holding plan would receive more than ample support for success.

He was awaiting a report from J. W. Hoopes, president of the Texas Bankers' Association, and sent telegrams to bankers' association presidents in Georgia, Alabama, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, North and South Carolina, Oklahoma and Tennessee, asking for reports of the total pledges in those states.

The plan, as drafted by Adams and other bankers at a conference in New Orleans October 12, called upon southern bankers to finance holding 3,500,000 bales, provided the federal farm board and affiliated agencies would agree to hold a like amount of last year's carry-over surplus until July 31, 1932.

Adams said he had the promise of Stone, of the farm board, and the assurance of President Hoover that federal agencies would extend credit leniency to cotton farmers on agricultural loans.

GEORGIA NEARS QUOTA IN HOLDING PROGRAM

The Georgia Bankers' Association announced today that it had on hand pledges from Georgia bankers to finance the holding off of the market until next July 302,622 bales of cotton. The state's quota, said Haynes McFadden, secretary of the association, is 350,000 bales.

The pledges represent the willingness of the signing banks to carry cotton as security for loans until July, 1932.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Thomas Bowron, president of the Alabama Bankers' Association, today announced pledges to finance the holding of 188,000 bales of cotton off the market until next July had been received from 40 per cent of the state's banks.

Mr. Bowron said additional pledges were coming in and that when all the banks have been heard from he hopes the state's quota of 350,000 bales would be covered.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 26.—(AP)—A. C. Burchett, president of the Tennessee Bankers' Association, today estimated that west Tennessee bankers would finance the holding of 500,000 bales of cotton this year.

Burchett said no effort would be made to check the number of bales Tennessee bankers would finance since the bankers of this state merely endorsed the "general tenor" of the New Orleans plan and did not agree to pledge the holding of any definite number of bales.

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 26.—(AP)—W. L. Ward, president of the Louisiana Bankers' Association, said today that the association had received pledges for the withholding of 186,000 bales of Louisiana cotton from the market in co-operation with similar activity of other southern bankers.

Mr. Ward said he was confident that Louisiana's 200,000 bale quota would be filled.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 26.—(AP)—E. F. Crenshaw, vice president and general manager of the American Cotton Co-operative Association, today expressed gratification at the response of southern bankers to the plan to withhold 7,000,000 bales of cotton from the market at least until next July.

He said a definite announcement of the total to be financed by the banks could be expected in a day or so.

The southern bankers are pledged to financing about 3,500,000 bales with the federal farm board and co-operative withholding a like amount as an aid to price.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Approximately 175 bankers of Arkansas have signed pledges to finance this state's quota of approximately 400,000 bales as a part of the southern bankers' cotton holding movement, officials of the Arkansas Bankers' Association said today.

JACKSON, Miss., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Mississippi banks will "easily" finance this state's quota of 350,000 bales of cotton to be withheld until July 1, 1932, George B. Power, secretary of the Mississippi Bankers' Association, announced today.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Eugene P. Gum, secretary of the Oklahoma Bankers' Association, said today he was confident Oklahoma bankers would pledge approximately 250,000 bales to the movement for withholding a fourth of this year's cotton crop until July.

make up one of the "fundamental" principles.

The dispatch of additional Japanese troops into Chinese territory was cited as another failure of the Chinese to keep order.

General Shigeru Honjo, commander-in-chief of Japanese forces in Manchuria, reported Chinese bandits had destroyed railway property at various points along the Suiyunkai-Chenchiang-Taonan line and also attacked trains and stations.

Chinese station employees fled, he said, and therefore Japanese army aviators dispatched a "detachment" of the second division from Changchun, northern terminus of the South Manchurian railway and limit of the Japanese occupation, to do guard duty at various stations.

CHINESE SENTIMENT
MIXED AS TO OUTCOME

NANKING, Oct. 26.—(AP)—While Chiang Kai-shek expressed confidence that the League of Nations would see that its resolution calling for Japanese evacuation of Manchuria was carried out, other quarters tonight expressed apprehension tonight over the future.

The Central Daily News, official organ of President Chiang's Nanking regime, said the Manchurian menace to the peace of the Far East had not been removed.

The News, intimating President Chiang's speech of confidence today before leaders of the Nanking government was intended largely for foreign consumption, said only actual Japanese withdrawal from the occupied positions in Manchuria could eliminate "dangerous possibilities."

Arizona Asks Quick Action On Ruth Judd Extradition

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Her first court appearance cut short by postponement, Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd, confessed slayer of Mrs. Agnes Le Roi and Miss Hedvig Samuelson, remained in the county jail tonight while Arizona authorities sought to extradite her by Wednesday.

Attired in a long black silk dress, close-fitting turban and tweed coat, Mrs. Judd, who said she killed her two women friends in self-defense, appeared for arraignment on a fugitive murder complaint. The hearing was postponed until November 9.

Sheriff James R. McFadden, of Phoenix, said he planned to leave for Sacramento to present extradition papers to Governor James Rolph Jr. A hearing on the extradition probably will be held within 48 hours.

The strain showed plainly on Mrs. Judd as she entered the courtroom on the arm of her brother, Burton J. McKinnell, university law student. She was pale and trembling. Jail attendants said she dozed occasionally during the night, often rising belt up-right and calling for her husband, Dr. W. C. Judd.

Sheriff McFadden, who put a new interpretation on the killings, said he believed the wound in Mrs. Judd's hand, which she said was inflicted by Miss Samuelson, actually occurred when one of the shots fired by Mrs. Judd pierced Miss Samuelson's body and came out imbedding itself in the alleged slayer's hand.

Burton Judd, district attorney here, said he would ask an earlier hearing on a writ of habeas corpus set for November 3.

In Phoenix, J. J. Halloran, wealthy lumberman, whose name became involved through friendship with the three women before the bodies of Miss Samuelson and Mrs. Le Roi were sent to Los Angeles from Phoenix in trunks, issued a statement denying any knowledge of the affair.

Richard Sheridan, young West Point cadet, passed on Monday afternoon, leaving behind a world shocked at the tragedy of his death.

From some quarters will come a storm of criticism for the game that brought him to his death. Sheridan, one may be reasonably sure, would resent that. The college football game is not a dangerous game. It is no more fraught with danger than the average daily life.

All death is tragedy, if viewed as such. Sheridan met death in a headlong tackle to halt a Yale backfield man with the ball. He suffered an injury that might not come to another man in play in a quarter of a century.

That boy would not want the game, the game he loved, to suffer because of what has happened. No one knows when and where the "old fellow with the hour glass" is going to let the sands of time run out. Sheridan, one of those small fellows whose fighting hearts drive them into competition with larger and stronger men, met his end on the football field.

Sheridan was a Georgia boy. It is a strange co-incidence that almost 34 years ago to the week, another Georgia boy died from football injuries, leaving the fate of football hanging in the balance.

It was his mother who saved it. Vonabade Gammon, playing with the University of Georgia's football team in October, 1897, against the University of Virginia, was injured and subsequently died. His parents from Rome, Ga., came to Athens, and were with him at the end.

There was a storm of criticism over the state. Football was subjected to unmerciful attacks, and the fight finally reached the legislative halls. After a strenuous debate the game was officially banned. The state law lacked only the governor's signature to become official.

It was then that the dead boy's mother appeared before the governor. The story goes that the mother, stricken by the loss of her son, nevertheless pleaded for the game that her son had loved and for which he had died.

Her request was that the governor veto the bill. This he did. She then went before the legislature, and, in the name of her son who was gone, asked that they permit the game to go on. They acceded to her request and football was saved for Georgia. This possibly saved the game for the entire south. Certainly all the annals of sport contain no more dramatic incident than that of the bereaved mother pleading for the game that had taken her son.

In a final analysis of course, all the games in the world are not worth one human life. No game is greater than a life. And yet, it may be also said that it was not the game that took the boy away, but that the scheme of things which we cannot comprehend, demanded it, tragic though it seems.

"There was a veil through which I could not see;
There was a door to which I found no key."

So mused the old tentmaker centuries ago as he sat stitching his canvas and meditating on the after life. It may be that past the veil through which we cannot see and through the door to which there is no key, there is something finer and greater for those taken as were Richard Sheridan and young Gammon, the two Georgia football players who died for their schools.

JUST ABOUT RIGHT.

There was a headline in the Detroit News Sunday which told the story—that being the purpose of all good headlines. It read—"Catfish Smith Beats Vandy."

It goes in the records as Georgia having won, and of course there is that old line about team play. But it was Catfish Smith who beat Vanderbilt. It is doubtful if there is any other player in the south who can catch passes as can the Georgia end. His catch won the game. Of course two points on the safety would have won but Catfish made it respectable with that touchdown.

It is doubtful if there are two greater ends in the game today than Smith of Georgia and Dalrymple of Tulane.

GEORGIA'S BLOCKING.

Georgia's blocking on Homer Key's run in the Yale game is vividly shown in a photograph in the possession of H. J. Stegeman, Georgia's athletic director. Georgia blocked well all through the Yale game.

Photographs of the game Saturday at Athens also showed some fine blocking by Georgia and Vanderbilt. Georgia must continue this blocking. It is a large part of any offense.

Now that the enthusiasm of the game has subsided it appears that Georgia's offense had its big let-down of the season and still managed to win a football game from the most difficult foe of the year. It now remains to be seen whether Georgia can keep up a pace through the old jinx at Gainesville, the Violets at New York and the Green Wave at Athens—all in three weeks.

BUT DON'T TACKLE ALBIE.

Yale's antics, when some opposing players tackle Albie Booth, the Yale hero, with a good hard tackle, is giving the boys no end of fun.

There is no more curious condition in all the history of football than the one at New Haven. Booth, a good little halfback at his best but still not to be classed with halfbacks such as Don Zimmerman, Homer Key, Amos Leonard and a half dozen others, cannot be tackled at New Haven without bringing forth a storm of boos for the player making the tackle.

For some reason the boys who frequent the big bowl on Saturday afternoons just can't see why Booth should be treated as any other football player.

There was criticism of Catfish Smith, the great Georgia end, in some of the eastern papers after the Yale-Georgia game in which Smith made Booth's life miserable. Smith once refused to tackle Booth, but went through and hugged Booth, holding him upright until the whistle blew.

This did not please the New Haven crowd, because they felt that it was undue humiliation for Booth. The idea seems to be that little Albie Booth should be permitted to run.

W. O. McGeehan, the brilliant columnist, pokes some good-natured fun at Yale in a column written after the Yale-Army game. It reads as follows:

The night before the game a friendly Yale old grad dropped

Petrels Change Wake Forest Game Here To Nov. 13 DEMPSEY SOUGHT FOR MIAMI FIGHT

The Ruler of Tulane's Green Wave---Then and Now

and all-Western halfback of the last Minnesota football team to win gold footballs as champions of the Western conference. That year the Gophers shared honors with Illinois. Considering Tulane's great record of 25 victories and one tie in her last 26 Southern conference games, it is little wonder Bierman is something of an idol down where they sing of Lake Pontchartrain. PETRELS CHANGE GAME TO NOV. 13

Prices of Admission Cut for Wake Forest Tilt Here.

By Jimmy Jones.

Because of the hegira of football fans that will wind its way over the concrete highway to Athens on November 14 to see Georgia play Tulane, Oglethorpe University has decided to switch its game with Wake Forest, scheduled for the same date at Hernando field, to Friday.

And despite the fact that superstitious persons may think Harry Robertson is taking an awful chance with that fateful "13th," an awkward conflict of dates will be avoided thereby and Atlanta fans who would like to do so, will have a chance to witness both contests.

The change was announced yesterday by Dr. Thorne Jacobs, president of Oglethorpe, after a conference with Coach Robertson.

ADMISSION PRICE CUT. It also was decided that the admission charge for the game would be reduced to $1 and that the sum would apply to any seat in the stadium.

"I would like for Oglethorpe to have a 'dollar game' every year so that it would come within the means of every single person who would like to see the team play," Dr. Jacobs declared.

"I have noticed that several of the larger schools, including Yale, have dollar sections and that the idea has met popular favor, so I do not see why it should not result in larger crowds at our games," he added.

"We have a new stadium out here at Oglethorpe and we want more people to come out and see our team play," Dr. Jacobs concluded.

Although the Oglethorpe-Furman game of last Saturday was a very good contest to watch, scarcely more than 2,000 persons watched it. The Petrels won by that rare score of 3-0 when Clay Sybert kicked a field goal from the 31-yard line. Field goals in modern football, with the goal posts moved back, are as rare as no-hit baseball games.

Oglethorpe has not had an expert field goal kicker since Nutty Campbell used to drop-kick them across the bar.

HURT ATTENDANCE. The Georgia-Vandy game at Athens Saturday took many fans away from the city and cut down Oglethorpe's attendance. The crowd at the opening home game with Chattanooga was very satisfactory, but that which saw the Furman game was one of the smallest Oglethorpe has ever played before.

The Wake Forest game will start at 2 p. m. so as to allow plenty of time for the crowd to get back to the city before darkness.

Coch Pat Miller, of Wake Forest, is agreeable, it is understood, although he was wired last night for his official approval of the change. He had previously asked for a Friday night

Sheridan Praised By Petrel Player

Richard Sheridan, West Point cadet and football player, who died yesterday from spinal injuries suffered in the Yale game, was the embodiment of the highest ideals of youth, Jeff Bolden, Oglethorpe football player, told The Constitution last night. Bolden went to school and played football with Sheridan for two years at Richmond Academy, Augusta, Ga., the deceased's home.

At Richmond Academy Sheridan was an all-round honor student, very popular with the students, captain of the basketball team, five-letter man, and considered one of the best athletes ever developed at the school. Bolden declared, Sheridan was stationed at Fort McPherson for two years before he received his appointment to West Point.

Sheridan never commanded the weight expected of an end, the position which he continued to play at West Point, but opponents rarely ever boxed him in, Bolden said.

COMISKEY DIES AFTER ILLNESS

Owner of Chicago Sox Passes at Age of 73 Years.

By Charles Dunkley.

Associated Press Sports Writer. CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The sports world today mourned the death of one of its outstanding figures, Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the Chicago White Sox, of the American league, one of the wealthiest and most famous figures in baseball history.

"The Old Roman," as he was affectionately known, passed on in his sleep early today at his summer home at Eagle River, Wis., after a long illness. He was in his seventy-third year. With him, was his son, J. Louis Comiskey, treasurer of the White Sox, the only surviving member of the immediate family.

The body of the dead baseball magnate, the only man in major league history to rise from the ranks of a player to owner of a club, will arrive here tomorrow. Pending the return of his son and associates in the management of the club, no plans for the funeral have been made. It may be held Thursday.

"If ever a man fought to preserve the good name and the honor of our game, it was Comiskey," wired John A. Heydler, president of the National league.

HELPED FOUND AMERICAN. William Harridge, president of the American league, said the league owed Comiskey a debt of everlasting gratitude for his valuable assistance in developing the organization.

"Mr. Comiskey was one of the founders of the American league, and fought shoulder-to-shoulder with Ban Johnson for clear baseball."

Just what will happen to the vast baseball property which Comiskey left behind remained uncertain. The Sox, with a seating capacity of 52,000, is one of the monuments to the sport he left. The park, together with the franchise and club, has been variously estimated to be worth between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000.

Comiskey's son, 46 years old, has been connected with the club for 20 years in various capacities. The business management, however, has been in the hands of Harry Grabiner, who grew up with the club from a lad as office boy. He has been with the club nearly a quarter of a century.

It was shortly after the World Series in 1919, when the White Sox threw the world's championship to the Cincinnati Reds to satisfy bribing gamblers, that Comiskey, shattered in spirit and health, began to fade from baseball, leaving Grabiner in charge. He spent most of his time at his summer retreat in Wisconsin. His wife died in 1922 after an illness of several months.

AMERICAN LEADERS PASS. By a strange fate, death robbed the American league of four of its great

Bierman Cool, Calm, Never Forces Team

Reticent Bernie, Compiler of Great Record at Tulane, May Return to Minnesota.

By Ralph McGill.

Tulane's football team was ready to go out on the field to play Vanderbilt about ten days ago. The game was rated as one of the most important in the south, one with a direct bearing on the championship. The Tulane players dressed and were told to go on the field. They started out the door of the field house, yipping and shouting.

"Wait there," said the quiet coach, his voice carrying even though it wasn't raised. "Wait there."

The players came back. "Listen, gentlemen," said the quiet, soft-voiced coach, "you are going out to play an important game. Don't go out there shouting. I don't want you to do any dying for your alma mater. I don't want any noise about it."

"Football is a game of science, skill and courage. Think about your plays, not about me or your school. Now go out there like gentlemen."

That was all the incentive that Tulane players had before the game with Vanderbilt.

That is Bernie Bierman's creed. He makes no speeches. He voices no appeals. He coaches his men. Then he leaves it up to them.

The coach who has had such an unusual success in the south was the subject of a Sunday story in the New Orleans States. In writing of Bierman Meigs Frost summed him up as follows:

"He's the coach who never lost his temper."

"He's the coach who never raised his voice."

"He's the coach who never shed a tear."

"He's the coach who never appeals to sentiment; never plays emotional tricks on his team; never begs them to go out and die for dear old alma mater."

"He's the coach who never dropped a man off his squad."

"He's the coach who refuses absolutely to 'work up' the feelings of his team; to send raving out on the field a squad of emotional maniacs all 'chopped up' to 'play over their heads.'"

"He's the coach who believes that if a boy is trained right and coached right, his head functions best when he is calm and cool and collected; his body will obey that head when the need for sudden bursts of speed arises; his heart will obey that head when comes the call for courage—the elemental guts that turn defeat into victory."

Imagine that! What would become of dear old alma mater if fellows like Bierman were plentiful?

RETICENT BERNIE. Bierman had never told any of his experiences. He said there was no picture of him in existence. When Frost began to look around for material, he had to get it from old players in Minnesota who had played with Bierman. Bierman said there was no

GARDEN OFFERS JACK WINNER OF CARNERA GO

Old Mauler Will Talk Fight in Next Three Days.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Jimmie Johnston, Madison Square Garden promoter, announced today an offer of 40 per cent of the gate receipts to Jack Dempsey for a match in Miami, Fla., next February against the winner of the Primo Carnera-Victorio Campollo, heavyweight match here November 27.

The former heavyweight king, who has been staging a barnstorming trip along the Pacific coast in preparation for another comeback, will be in Chicago within three days, Johnston said, for a discussion of the match. Dempsey at the moment is hunting in Nevada.

Johnston said he had been informed that Dempsey would come east to discuss the proposition if necessary.

The Garden annually stages a heavyweight match in Miami. Until the Dempsey bout was considered it was generally understood that Max Baer would defend his title against Mickey Walker there this winter.

Illinois Bars Carnera Fight.

CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The Illinois state athletic commission today denied the Chicago Stadium Corporation permission to stage a 10-round bout between Primo Carnera, Italian giant, and Paulino Uzcudun, veteran Spaniard. The commission ruled that the match was not a suitable one.

Heeney, Bergomas Battle to Draw.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Tom Heeney, veteran New Zealand heavyweight, fought to a draw in 10 rounds with Giacomo Bergomas, giant Italian, at the St. Nicholas arena tonight. Heeney weighed 212 pounds, Bergomas 227.

Heeney went down for no count in the first round when a left caught him off balance, but there were no real knockouts.

Steve Hannas, young Passaic (N. J.) heavyweight, knocked out George Smith, of Newark, in the sixth round of the one-sided 10-round semi-final. Hannas weighed 195 pounds, Smith 186 1-2.

DIFFICULT PATH AHEAD OF TECH

Jackets, Back From Tulane, Start Work for Vandy.

By Jimmy Jones.

Georgia Tech's cup of football was still filled to overflowing, to borrow a scriptural phrase. In fact, Tech's cup of woe has been overflowing for a long while. But if we must grieve over what is behind Tech, why not save a few sniffs and a tear or so for what lies ahead of Tech?

For three games now, the summary at the end of Tech stories has been as bare of Tech touchdowns as the Sahara is of frigidities. For three straight games Tech has been defeated without scoring.

Now comes Vanderbilt who held Georgia 9-0, North Carolina who held Tennessee 7-0, Florida who beat Auburn and Pennsylvania who beat Saturday and beat Wisconsin, 27-13. We will forget California, if you please.

But with Lawrence Clinch, one of their best young tackles definitely out, the battered but unbowed young men of the Flats started working very heavily yesterday for the game with McGugin's Commodores Saturday.

Bobby Dodd and Mack Tharpe reported very favorably on Vandy's line play against the Bulldogs. Dodd thought Pete Gracely's repeated refusals to be taken out by Bulldog interference nothing short of magnificent, and that the work of Boesley, guard, who was playing out of the line was not far behind Gracely, playing low, was particularly hard to move. Mr. Bob, the Dodd, thought.

Vandy's defense against Tech was a six-man line but Tech coaches will make their plans to expect any kind of defense, for McGugin usually burns his bridges behind him. Vandy's line will be heavier and more experienced so Tech's chance will lie largely in an open attack around the ends and through the air.

Alexander plans no change in his team. It must go on as is, sink or swim, and learn by experience. He will shift another tackle into Clinch's place and that's all.

Friedman Signs For Pro Football

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(UP)—Benny Friedman, former University of Michigan all-American quarterback, who resigned the captaincy of the New York Giants professional football team to become assistant backfield coach at Yale, today signed to play with the Giants during the balance of the season.

Friedman will report for practice tomorrow morning, and will make his first appearance with the Giants Sunday. All Giants' practice sessions are held in the morning, and will not interfere with Friedman's duties at Yale.

Bozo Easy Winner In Christner Bout

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 26.—(AP) Battling Bozo, 180, of Birmingham, scored an easy 10-round victory over Meyer (K. O.) Christner, Akron, Ohio, here tonight. Christner weighed 203 pounds. Bozo found the cumbersome ex-rubber puffer an admirable target for his blows and won every round. In the semi-final Pete Firpo, Detroit featherweight, knocked out Mike Dundee, of Brooklyn, in the fourth round.

Football Fans Follow Knute Rockne's Plays

Young football players, young coaches and veteran players are following the Knute Rockne plays as run three times weekly in the sports department of The Constitution.

They are the favorite plays of Knute Rockne as presented by Slip Madigan, former Notre Dame player and now coach of the team at St. Mary's team which has won from California and Southern California.

Young players and coaches are cutting the plays out and pasting them in scrapbooks for study. Several calls have come to The Constitution asking about the plays. They appear each Tuesday, Friday and Sunday morning. Football fans are learning much about the game from a study of these plays.

Frank Speer Faces Test Tonight in Match With Tiny Roebuck

UNBEATEN LIST IN CONFERENCE DUE TO SHRINK

Kentucky, Florida Expected to Fall Before Alabama, Georgia.

By Dillon Graham, Associated Press Sports Writer.

Kentucky, Florida and Maryland, undefeated but tied in Southern conference football play, face opponents this week which may send them into the rapidly growing class of conquered teams.

Kentucky and Florida, especially, will encounter trouble. Kentucky, with victories over Washington and Lee and Virginia Polytechnic Institute and a tie with Maryland, engages Alabama at Tusculum, while Florida, with decisions over North Carolina State and Auburn and a tie with North Carolina, plays Georgia in Gainesville.

TIDE STRONG. Although decisively beaten by Tennessee, Alabama has shown much power this year and will prove a formidable foe for the Wildcats.

Florida could deliver the prize knockout of the season by a victory over Georgia, but the Alligators are accorded little chance of providing this upset. However, they were given out small chance of stopping a great Georgia team last year, and surprised with a scoreless tie.

Maryland will rank as a favorite in its contest against Virginia Polytechnic, which already has lost to Georgia and Kentucky.

Duke may offer Tennessee some difficulty, but Tulane is expected to have an easy time with the Mississippi Aggies. Louisiana State figures too strong for Sewanee.

COMPARISONS. Dixie gridiron fans today were busy comparing the Tulane-Vanderbilt and the Georgia-Vanderbilt games.

Vanderbilt lost to Tulane, 19-0, while Georgia could beat the Commodores but 9-0. However, Tulane had its full strength against a Vanderbilt eleven which was weary after its victory over Ohio State of the Big Ten.

Georgia used little but straight football against Vanderbilt at Athens Saturday, and held out its swift midline back, Homer Key, who was the outstanding backfield star against Yale and North Carolina. Vanderbilt coaches also admitted that the Commodores played much better defensive football against Georgia than they exhibited against the New Orleans team.

With both teams favored over their conference opponents of the next two weeks, it appears that the Georgia-Tulane game at Athens November 14 will go a long way toward settling the Southern conference clanship.

Women's Tourney At Ansley Today

Another of the regular monthly one-day medal play tournaments for members of the Atlanta Woman's Golf Association will be staged this morning on the Ansley Park course.

Every member of the association is urged to play as the monthly tournaments will soon be discarded because of unfavorable weather conditions.

Mrs. C. G. Clower, Ansley Park representative in the association, and Tommy Wilson, club professional, will be hosts at the tourney today.

THE SPORTLIGHT

In the passing of Charles Comiskey, the Old Roman of baseball, the game loses a veteran who goes back almost to the beginning.

Comiskey was one of the great first basemen of his time, over 40 years ago. He was the first to adopt the plan of roving off first base to cover more ground. Before that, first basemen hovered close around the bag.

Comiskey, as a major league owner, had one of the most varied careers of all the magnates. His feud with Ban Johnson was one of the most spectacular in baseball. The big shock of his life came to him in discovering that his great team of 1919 and 1920 had sold out a World Series and was still selling games. That happened to be one of the finest ball teams ever gathered together under one flag.

In recent years Comiskey's efforts to build up the White Sox had been futile. But in spite of that, one of baseball's greatest landmarks fades out in his death.

The Still Unbeaten Leaders. It is somewhat remarkable that so many football teams, from coast to coast, are still unbeaten. This includes leaders who have tackled first-class opposition and therefore have offered their heads to the battle ax and the block.

Here is a partial summary: East—Harvard, Cornell, Columbia, Yale, Michigan, Ohio State, Pennsylvania, Temple, Syracuse, Brown.

Mid West—Notre Dame, Northwestern, Kansas Aggies.

South—Georgia, Tulane, Tennessee, Kentucky, S. M. U.

Far West—St. Mary's, Stanford.

However, we must remember that though unbeaten Notre Dame, Northwestern, Fordham and Stanford have all been tied.

Among the teams that have already fallen are Southern California, Army, Pittsburgh, Yale, Tulane, Michigan, Ohio State, Purdue, Wisconsin, Illinois, Alabama, Texas, Texas A. & M., Dartmouth, Duke, Maryland, Vanderbilt, Marquette, Boston College, Haskell, Rice, Princeton, Navy, Villanova, Oregon, Oklahoma, Carnegie Tech, Michigan State and Nebraska.

Strangely enough, every team in the Western conference, with the exception of Northwestern, has known the quillotine before November's frosts have silvered the stubble.

Cornell and Columbia. It is something worth while to see two such teams as Cornell and Columbia meeting next Saturday in one of the most important games of the day, with both still unbeaten.

As an off-hand guess I should say that of the 10,000 young football players meeting next Saturday, at least 9,000 never could have entered Cornell or Columbia, or, if they did, the same percentage could not have lasted a month in the face of the scholastic requirements presented as a barrier.

Of the 434 colleges and universities which played last Saturday, not over 50 have entrance requirements and classroom demands up to the highest standards of the major minority.

It so happens that under this handicap Cornell and Columbia have two of the best teams in the country and their meeting at Ithaca on Saturday will be one of the big features of the day.

Not many games can present such backs as Viviano and Ferraro, Hewitt and Montgomery on one field.

Short Dashes. The turns and twists of fate are beyond all figuring. On two occasions

MEHRE SMILES AS FUL SQUAD REPORTS AGAIN

Cripples Miraculously Whole as Bulldogs Turn Thoughts to Florida.

By Al Smith.

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Visions of a victory over Florida in Jacksonville and a sultry November afternoon on a certain sandy field at Savannah danced before the eyes of those seniors on the Georgia football squad today. As a result, Florida's "Gators" would do well to look to their football ammunition before Saturday afternoon.

A great sophomore team, fresh from surprising victories over Yale and North Carolina on successive Saturdays, took it on the chin at Jacksonville in October of the good year 1929. A small back rightly termed "Cannon-Ball" Clyde Crabtree, and a bigger man known as Edward Sans, tore the Bulldog line to shreds that particular Saturday afternoon.

And then another Florida team, smarting from a defeat by Furman the previous Saturday, caught the Bulldogs by surprise last November 1, and when the game had ended a young fullback named Jenkins had ridden into fame on the crest of great defensive play that stopped the Bulldogs in their tracks. That game in 1930 was a 0-0 tie, one of those moral victories for Florida.

JENKINS STILL THERE. Of the three Florida backs who have spelled disaster to Georgia in the two last years, Jenkins now a tackle, is still tagging along for the "Gators." But that doesn't matter to those seniors on Harry Mehre's football squad. What really matters is that Florida hasn't lost a game to Georgia since 1927. And what matters even more to them is that they, the seniors, haven't won from Florida at all.

So there was blood on the moon as the Bulldogs practiced until the late shadows of evening fell over Sanford field today. The moon peeped above the trees before Harry Mehre sent most of his squad up the hill.

Every man on the Bulldog squad reported in uniform today, ready for a scrimmage or anything else Coach Harry might decide. Mehre smiled cheerfully when he glanced along the four lines of Bulldogs who were running down under pants in pairs.

NO CRIPPLES. "You don't see any cripples in that bunch, do you?" Jerry announced to the world at large.

And probably there won't be any cripples, unless one of the boys becomes a leg trying too hard. It was a long time, though, since Friend Harry could come down the football field without first stopping by the training quarters to see if Vernon Jones had a full supply of crutches.

There was no scrimmage for the Bulldogs today, but there was a large two-hour workout, preceded by a half-hour lecture on Florida plays. Several of the boys who played most of the Vanderbilt game were sent to exercises after the workout.

Running down under pants, receiving passes, shoving a bucking board around the field and pass offense and defense were the main dishes on the bill-of-fare for the remainder of the squad.

McClellan Hopes To Meet Bulldogs. GAINESVILLE, Fla., Oct. 26.—(AP)—"Bo" McClellan, senior halfback, may be ready for play when the University of Florida meets the University of Georgia in the "homecoming" gridiron game here Saturday.

McClellan suffered a broken leg before the present season and has been out of the game. He returned to practice today, however, and may be in condition for action against the Bulldogs.

His return, though warmly encouraged, a football camp ridden with injuries. Johnny Fountain, Homer Seay, Shaw Buck and Sam Davis, all ball carriers, are injured. Fountain and Seay are in the college infirmary because of injuries received in Florida's 13-12 victory over Auburn at Jacksonville Saturday.

Early prospects pointed to a crowd of 20,000 when "Gator meets Bulldog."

Progressives Begin Handball Tourney

With 28 participants ready, opening rounds of the annual fall handball tournament at the Jewish Progressive Club on South Street were held last night. All matches will be played on the club basketball and handball courts.

It is a handicap affair and every member of the club has an equal chance. The handicaps have been arranged according to average play for the past few months, by members of the tournament committee.

A trophy will be given to the winner of the event.

In addition to the handball tournament, there will be a plentitude of other activities at the Jewish Progressive Club during the winter months.

Basketball practice has been started with a large squad of veterans and newcomers out for the team. There will be no organized system of practice until early in November when Dave Johnston, coach of the Boys' High quintet, takes charge.

Practice for the next few weeks will consist largely of goal shooting and a general conditioning of the entire squad. The hard work will start when Coach Johnston takes the squad in hand.

J. M. Hendler, former physical director at the Y. M. C. A., has organized a businessmen's gym class which works out early each night with the squad.

Golfers Throng East Lake Links

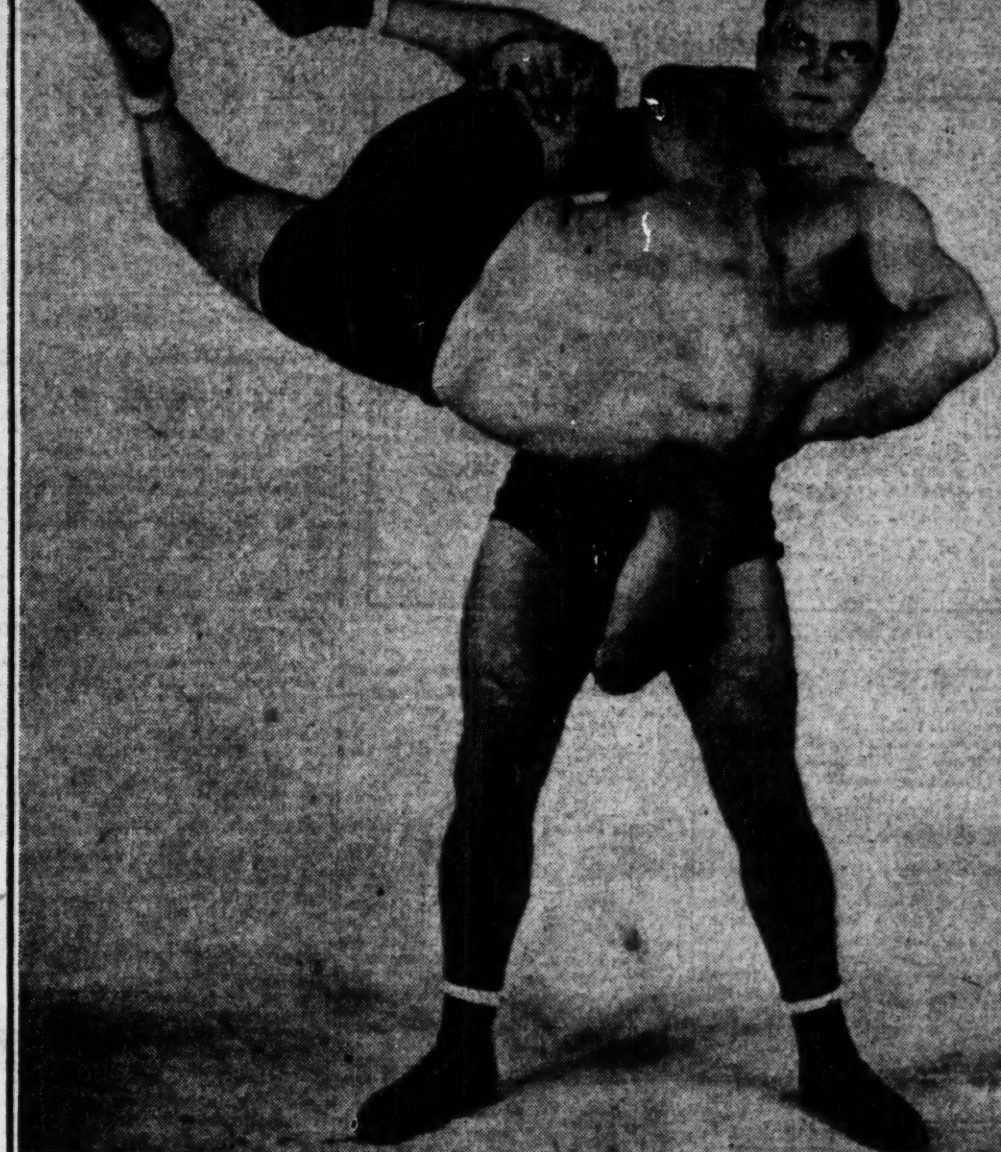

Although the summer golf season is fast fading into history, Atlanta's courses continue to hold their own, with hundreds of players taking advantage of the remaining opportunities.

During the week-end another near-record crowd for college play played throughout the city with the East Lake courses taking first honors, with 225 participants.

Bobby Jones, his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Jackson, Dick led the way at East Lake, with Big Bob, his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Black Sr. following close behind.

In a best-ball foursome, Ernie Ball and Abe Adair defeated Frank Bell and Al Thornwell. Ball and Adair had a best-ball medal round of 64.

How Would You Like To Wrestle Him?

Tiny Roebuck, the big Indian, is a tough and experienced wrestler, but he will have a rough evening tonight when he meets Frank Speer, the old football star, at the city auditorium. Speer is new to the game, but has learned fast and is one of the most powerful young men in the game. Speer is shown in action above.

FEATURE EVENT PROMISES FANS PLENTY ACTION

Vacturoff and Jennings, Indian, Meet in Semi-Windup.

One of the most blood-curdling wrestling matches Henry Weber has offered Atlanta fans in his long and successful career as a local promoter comes tonight at the auditorium when Frank Speer, former Georgia Tech football star, faces Tiny Roebuck, 245-pound Cherokee Indian, in a bout scheduled for two hours or less.

More than likely it will be less, for Speer, despite his comparative lack of experience in the game, has already developed a reputation for headlong aggressiveness and Roebuck, whose Atlanta fans have witnessed in action many times, is not one to shirk meeting his opponent half-way, or a little better.

SPEER POPULAR. The former Tech athlete, who has been wrestling professionally now about six months, naturally has lots of friends here who will turn out to see what big Frank can do against topnotch opposition. In his only former Atlanta appearance as a wrestler, Speer won his match from Cy Williams, ex-Florida tackle, when the worthy, in attempting a flying tackle, crashed headlong through the ropes and knocked himself out.

That match lasted only 10 minutes, but it was long enough to show that Speer—a splendid specimen physically and endowed with a world of courage—also has learned some of the finer points of the game. He will be the underdog tonight without question, but his great strength and willingness, plus his football training, will make him a dangerous every step of the way.

Roebuck has never failed to give satisfaction in his appearances here, and has fully lived up to his reputation as one of the half-dozen most formidable grapplers in the game. Especially is he master of the deadly croch hold and body slam, a grip which he is enabled to obtain with comparative ease on most opponents because of his extraordinary height and strength.

BEATEN TWICE. Many have been the foemen met by Roebuck in Atlanta rings, and only two—Jim London, the champion, and Pete Sauer, the No. 2 man—have been able to defeat him. It will be interesting to see what he can do tonight with the burly Speer—young, game and powerful—who will put everything he has in the effort to show good before his homefolks. In a business way, too, he realizes what a victory over Roebuck would mean to him.

An excellent semi-windup has also been provided by Matchmaker Weber, with Ivan Vacturoff, giant Russian, meeting Sun Jennings, Ojaga Indian, in a one-hour match. Vacturoff has shown to advantage here before, while Jennings, though a newcomer, has an excellent record behind him, and figures to be at least an even match for the Irate Ivan.

Tickets will be on sale until late this afternoon at the Piedmont Hotel, 1000 Peachtree Street, N. E. Ladies, as usual, will be admitted to any seat in the auditorium for 75 cents.

Not leaders this year. Ernest Sargent Barnard, successor to Ban Johnson as president of the league, died suddenly at Rochester, Minn., March 27. The next day the fiery Johnson, who with Comiskey organized the league, died in St. Louis. Jimmy McAleer, one of the early stars of the American league, and former manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, died at his home in Washington, D. C., April 29.

CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Funeral services for Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the Chicago White Sox, who died at Eagle River, Wis., early today, will be held Thursday morning at 10 o'clock from the Comiskey residence.

Mass will be said at St. Thomas the Apostle church and burial will be in Calvary cemetery. The body will lie in state at the residence until the funeral, after arriving tomorrow morning.

MAXIE WINS. CHARLESTON, S. C., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Maxie Rosenbloom, 176, of New York, light-heavyweight champion, won the decision over Russ Rowsey, 178, of Huntington, W. Va., in a 10-round fight here tonight.

in where the Army board of strategy was conferring over the slim chances of any increase in Army pay for the present.

"A word of advice," said the Yale old grad, "I advise you to tell your young men not to tackle Albie Booth."

"And why not?" asked Captain Biff Jones. "What shall we do to him, kids him?"

"I am warning you," said the old grad. "You must not tackle Albie Booth. It is not done in the Yale bowl. The University of Georgia, or rather a person known as Catfish Smith, did tackle him and he was broke as a rough player. You must not tackle Albie Booth. Mr. Booth is supposed to have the right of way in the bowl."

While Mr. Booth, the leading man of all drama in the bowl, was not present in the climactic act, he seems to have plenty of understudies. Immediately after the Army scored its touchdown the ball was kicked off to where Mr. Booth would have been if he had had his make-up on.

Of course, Mr. Booth was not there. Instead there was one Robert B. Parker, a Greenwich, Conn., boy, who was anxious to make good at Yale. He tucked the ball under his arm, taking it on his own 10-yard line. Somehow he wormed through the charge of golden Army helmets. He stiff-armed his way through the backs and soon he had a clear field for the touchdown. He flipped lightly across the Army line before the cadets could recover from their bewilderment.

A large majority of the Yale cheering section started to go wild, but the Booth boosters shushed him. To give anybody else a hand with the leading man on the sidelines seemed to be somewhat sacrilegious.

"Hush," they said, indignantly. "If Booth had that ball he would have made two touchdowns and kicked both goals."

Later in the fourth period Yale, with Laster and Crowley crashing the line of the Army, maneuvered the ball to where there was a rather difficult shot at a field goal. Mac Williamson tried it. The ball hit one of the posts and bounded back into the field.

"You see," said the Booth marching and cheering section, "If Albie had been there he would have shot it over and Yale would have won."

So the game goes down as the drama that lost its hero.

It was Mal Stevens, the Yale coach, who gave "Catfish" Smith the emotional urge to wreck Booth and the Yale team. He said before the game that he did not think Smith had made a tackle in a Yale game.

When Smith nailed Booth, the first of many tackles, he said:

"Booth, tell Stevens Smith finally made a tackle, and it was a darn hard one."

KICKERS WANTED. If that son of yours is playing around with a football, teach him to kick it.

There are not enough good kickers. There are a few punters but the old drop-kickers and the place-kickers are about gone. When they moved the goal posts back they discouraged the boys who used to practice those kicks.

The place-kick, the punt and the drop-kick are still great offensive weapons. They have been neglected too much. There is no excuse for games lost because of failure to kick goal.

It may be argued that a punter and a drop-kicker is born, not made. That may be so but any dumb guard or tackle, with a heavy foot, can be taught to place-kick.

OVERHEARD SATURDAY AT ATHENS.

First Young Lady—What does it mean when one says it is first down?

Second Young Lady—That means they have ten yards to go.

First Young Lady—Oh, and when it's second down that means they have twenty?

Second Young Lady (Puzzled)—Well, I don't know. I guess so.

TULANE STILL SHUDDERS.

Herb Caldwell, of the Memphis Commercial-Appeal, writes that if Tulane wins the championship this fall in the conference football campaign, they will have the Memphis pro team of last fall to thank.

Jerry Dalrymple, says Caldwell, wrote to Bill Banker, a former teammate then with the Memphis pros, and asked for a job.

The manager refused to take him, and Dalrymple then arranged things so he could stick. Tulane, minus Dalrymple, would be considerably weaker.

Tiger-Crimson Tilt Is Urged by Fish

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—A football game for charity between Harvard and Princeton either in New York or Boston December 5 was suggested today by Representative Fish, of New York, in a letter to the editor of the Harvard Crimson.

The New Yorker previously made the suggestion in a telegram to President Lowell, of Harvard, but was told in reply it had been decided no post-season games would be played.

In his letter to the Crimson editor Fish believes he had "every reason to believe that such a game would be welcomed by the graduates of both colleges."

date at Spiller field, but Dr. Jacobs believes firmly in playing all games on the campus.

Harry Robertson has no misgivings about playing on Friday, the 13th. "The thirteenth is no more unlucky for me than any other day," says the affable Petrel generalissimo.

BEST AT LOYOLA. Robertson, oddly enough, thought his team had played much better football in two previous games that were lost than it did against Furman.

"I believe that my boys played better against Loyola than it has all season, for, despite the fact that we lost by a touchdown, we made 17 first downs, and our offense worked fine," Robertson said.

Oglethorpe, whose teams are always interesting whether losing or winning, still has a chance to finish creditably, as it has Clemson, Wake Forest and Mercer coming in a row, not to mention the post-season game at Soldiers' Field, Chicago, with the colorful Haskell Indians.

ROBBY SEEKING SCORING PUNCH AT OGLETHORPE

Petrels' Inability To Push Over Touchdowns Worries Coach.

By Jack Troy.

With a few of the players taking the day off to see doctors about minor hurts sustained in the Furman game, a general limbering-up program was followed out for the Oglethorpe varsity yesterday as they opened a week of preparations for the Clemson game Saturday at Clemson College, S. C.

None of the players are injured seriously enough to keep them out of the Clemson game, however, and a full squad is expected to turn out for today's practice, which it is expected will see a scrimmage for the varsity against the freshmen, using Tiger players.

The Petrels will have five full days of practice at Harnett field before venturing for Clemson at 7:30 o'clock Saturday morning.

ROBBIE PLEASED.

With the idea of keeping his reserve strength in fighting trim, Coach Harry Robertson yesterday scrimmaged the second team while the varsity players ran signals.

Coach Robertson, who is highly pleased over the Furman victory, although he is not exactly satisfied with the team's inability to push over touchdowns, was not certain yesterday whether he would change the backfield against Clemson.

As the quartet of Herrin, quarterback; Anderson and Sybert, halfbacks; and Myers, fullback, functioned together so brilliantly against Furman, it is expected that the same combination will be used Saturday.

NO LINE CHANGE. As for the line, which has remained intact for the last several games, it probably will continue in the even lineup of its ways. For the Gold and Black forward wall came through with its best performance of the season last Saturday.

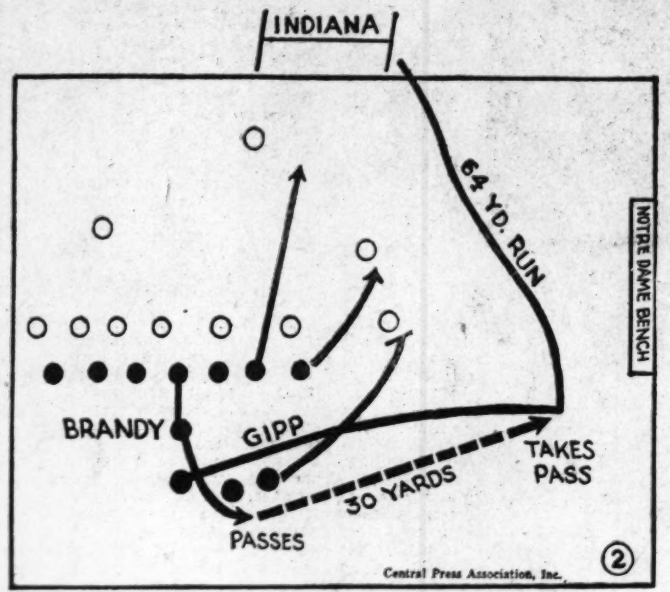

Not of least significance by any means among the improvements shown by the Petrels was their catching of passes. Sybert, crack receiver last year, apparently has returned to form, along with Captain Parker Bryant.

The submarine pass, a potent scoring weapon last year, has suddenly assumed its rightful place of importance in the offensive scheme of things.

AS YOU LIKE IT? And double and triple passes, line bucks and end runs, are functioning as you like it—if you don't like it, as Harry Robertson likes it.

It's all very lovely that these plays are functioning in such grand manner, Coach Robertson believes, but he would like to see them produce some scores. Plays that get yardage—up to a certain point—and never get scores aren't worth much to your Uncle Robby and his victory aspirations.

No a lot of attention will be devoted to packing more punch into the last-yard drives of Petrel line crack-cracks all this week.

Editor's Note: This is the second of a series of articles on "Rockne's Best Plays," written by Coach "Slip" Madigan of St. Mary's College—a pupil and close friend of the late Notre Dame football leader.

NUMBER TWO.

Knute Rockne always said his greatest human football creation was George Gipp. He developed the Four Horsemen and other great stars after Gipp's time but so far as "Rock" was concerned there was only one Gipp. He thought that up to the very last.

On the night of "Rock's" last game—Notre Dame's artistic victory over U. S. C. at Los Angeles last December—a triumph that I think "Rock" regarded as the greatest football achievement of his career, he remarked to me that "there'll never be another Gipp."

Like Rockne, Gipp had lived and like Rockne, Gipp had died. Rockne died after his greatest game, Gipp died a month after completing his brilliant gridiron career at Notre Dame. Gipp died, like Rockne, casting caution to the winds.

BROKEN SHOULDER. Gipp had broken his shoulder in the Indiana game a few weeks before but no one knew about it but Gipp until several days later. That Indiana game was a fine example of Rockne's resourcefulness in a pinch and the way he could play upon situations.

Things were breaking fine for Gipp and Notre Dame that year, 1929. Notre Dame was headed toward a national championship with only a few "setup" contests left to bar the door.

So we went down to Indianapolis one early November Saturday to pile up a big score on poor, old Indiana and continue on unobstructed toward our championship aspirations.

"BRAINS OF IRISH." Even that day Gipp was being toasted in the headlines as the "brains of the Notre Dame," and "America's gift to the gridiron," and "the greatest since Heston and Thorpe."

Well, what happened? Before we realized just what HAD happened Notre Dame was trailing 10 to 0 and "poor, old" Indiana was giving us a fine shelling.

Through superhuman efforts of Norman Barry, halfback, we managed to shove over a touchdown, but Barry gave out and we came into the fourth quarter still trailing, 10 to 6.

LOOKED TOUGH. Rockne had to reach down into his bag of tricks that day. He always kept something in reserve, but even when he sprung this one it looked tough.

"Rock" decided to play upon Gipp's All-American potentialities. Gipp hadn't been in all afternoon up to the closing minutes of play. When "Rock" finally sent George in the Indiana players swarmed all around him, patted Gipp on the back and told him how good he was.

Gipp was a born actor, born to the part he played that afternoon.

Quarterback Joe Brandy called a play and Gipp immediately yelled "Signals off!" and whispered a count signal in Brandy's ear. An inconsequential play followed.

Brandy seemed pretty sore about this. "Hey, you big prima donna," he snapped, "I'm the quarterback on this team!"

The Hoosier players across the line got a big kick out of that.

"Oh, you All-American!" they howled.

Gipp threw his headgear to the ground.

"If I can't run this team," he snorted, "I'm not going to play!" And he started across the field diagonally toward the sidelines.

As Gipp strode away with Brandy snarling—or apparently so—at him, the ball was snapped, Brandy took it, passed it to Gipp and Gipp ranced 64 yards to a touchdown. It won the game 13 to 10 and Notre Dame later won a national gridiron title.

The next morning one of the papers came out with the following headline:

"Gipp, Under the Influence of Brandy, Beats Indiana, 13 to 10."

Perez Knocks Out Genaro in Second

PARIS, Oct. 26.—(UP)—Young Perez, French flyweight, scored a surprising two-round knockout over Frankie Genaro, of New York, at the Sports palace tonight to win a claim to the world's flyweight championship. Perez, rated as a 5-to-8 underdog against the champion, took the play from Genaro at the opening of the scheduled 15-round contest. He chased the New Yorker about the ring during the first and gained confidence, went out to slug his way to victory in the second.

Genaro was recognized as champion by the National Boxing Association and the International Boxing Union and boasted a 15-round draw with Midget Wolgast, of Philadelphia, Pa., recognized as champion in New York and Philadelphia.

HARVARD. CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 26.—(UP)—Harvard regulars will make but a brief appearance Saturday in the game against University of Virginia, it was believed at Soldiers' field today. Three successive hard games follow the Virginia contest and Head Coach Eddie Casey wants his charges well-rested.

DARTMOUTH. HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 26.—(UP)—Dartmouth held its initial workout of the week today in preparation for the Yale game Saturday, but showed almost no improvement over its weird performance against Lebanon Valley. In the short drill assignments were poorly executed, and passers and receivers missed their mark frequently in the aerial rehearsal.

VIRGINIA. UNIVERSITY, Va., Oct. 26.—(P)—Virginia's first workout for the Harvard game was limited to an hour, most of which was devoted to practice on attack.

Several regulars were allowed to rest, while the remainder of the squad participated in dummy scrimmage on offense. Optimism prevailed in anticipation of the first visit to Cambridge in seven years.

W. & L. LEXINGTON, N. C., Oct. 26.—(P)—Coach Dehart gave his victorious Washington and Lee eleven a complete holiday today before beginning tomorrow on active preparation for the encounter with William and Mary at Norfolk next Saturday.

Morris, tackle, was suffering from an injured leg as a result of the Virginia fray. He was expected in the lineup for the Saturday game, however. Joe Sawyers, backfield flash, for whom time-out was taken twice Saturday, today appeared to be all right after a week-end rest.

V. P. I. BLACKSBURG, Va., Oct. 26.—(P)—Something new was tried on the Virginia Tech football team today. Captain Gene Brown went to tackle to replace Grinus, who was injured at the start of the Kentucky game Saturday and will be out for several weeks.

Wolfe took the pivot position, with Betts shifted from guard to the other tackle. Coach Neal is working for a day that will give his backs a chance to roam in the homecoming battle with Maryland this week.

ALABAMA. UNIVERSITY, Ala., Oct. 26.—(P)—Pleased with Saturday's showing against Sewanee, Coach Thomas today sent the Alabama squad through a brief workout and called it a day. The team came through Saturday's game without serious injuries.

AUBURN. AUBURN, Ala., Oct. 26.—(P)—Coach Chee Wynne was in hopes today that Tom Brown and Lindley Hatfield, his backfield aces, who are suffering injuries, will be sufficiently recovered to rejoin the team by mid-week. Today's workout was confined to unlimbering exercises.

TENNESSEE. KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 26.—(P)—It was back to fundamentals for the University of Tennessee Vols today after their poor offensive showing against North Carolina Saturday. With the exception of Gene McEver, a backfield composed of sophomores was excused with a lecture today, while the scrubs scrimmaged with a freshman team. Afterwards, all the regulars took a brief limbering-up workout. Except for Campbell, who sustained a muscle bruise, all the players came through the Princeton game unhurt, and will be in top condition for West Virginia Wesleyan Saturday.

COLUMBIA. NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(UP)—A long session in analyzing and trying to stop Cornell plays, as executed by the freshmen, featured Columbia's practice today. Coach Lou Little spent considerable time mapping out a defense for Cornell's pass attack.

TULANE. NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 26.—(UP)—Rough work for three days beginning tomorrow and an easy game with the Mississippi Aggies Saturday constitute this week's program for the Tulane Greenies, who are now pointing toward their games with Auburn and the University of Georgia on successive week-ends. Both games will be played on foreign soil.

MASTRO WINNER. HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 26.—(P)—Earl Mastro, Chicago challenger for the world featherweight championship, won a 10-round decision tonight from Midget Mike O'Dowd, of Columbia. Mastro knocked O'Dowd down three times, but could not finish him. Kid Chocolate, Cuba, knocked out Buck Oliver, of New York city, in the second round of another bout.

LOT OF RATS. Eighty-one freshmen turned out for the wrestling team at the University of Illinois.

VANDY COACH SAYS HIS BOYS WERE STRONGER

Commodores Were Much Improved at Athens Than at Nashville.

By Dan McGugin.

Football Coach, Vanderbilt University. (Copyright, 1931, by The Constitution by the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 26.—The season has progressed to a point where the defense is catching up with the offense. As a consequence there are numerous close, low-scoring games and many of the victories are due to one or two long runs. These do not result from lapses in skillful defense, but occur when everything breaks right. They are conspicuous, because consistent gains are not made, and such runs then become vital factors in victories and defeats.

To illustrate, a 90-yard run from kick-off by Yale tied the Army. Smith, of L. S. U., ran 75 yards after an intercepted pass to win over Arkansas. There are rivalries and rivalries, but none any more intense than that between L. S. U. and Arkansas, and such a rivalry is relaxed and comfortable this morning.

A 57-yard return of a punt by the brilliant Downes, of Georgia, and one or two brilliant runs from scrimmage were the reasons for Georgia's victory over Vanderbilt, 9-0. Vanderbilt held Georgia's wonderful running attack pretty well in check, being better defensively than against Tulane.

COSTLY INJURIES. Critical injuries have ruined the chances of many teams. These are not suggested as alibis, although they are heart-breaking, but merely to illustrate by Vanderbilt's experience the case of many teams.

Vanderbilt started the season with six unusually fine backfield prospects. Paul, the starliest kicker and punner, has been out of all games. Captain Leonard, considered by many the south's most dangerous man, has been out three weeks. Thomas and Close, who were so effective against Ohio State, each played only a few minutes on Saturday, due to injuries during the preceding week.

Georgia has a truly great team, and it would be interesting to analyze the possibilities of each regular team against the other.

Brilliant and consistent, Tulane drove on over Georgia Tech's young and light team. Maryland and Kentucky State kept their conference records clear. North Carolina put up a surprisingly stubborn defense against Tennessee, though the latter probably was experimenting with some of her sophomores.

HARD GAME TO LOSE. Auburn lost a 13-12 heart-breaker to Florida in a game featuring a few of the best of these teams. Auburn have done surprisingly well. Many consider Bachman, of Florida, and Wynne, of Auburn, two of the most painstaking and constructive teachers of the Notre Dame system.

Notre Dame plays for the most part are standard and many suppose each Notre Dame-coached team uses the same plan. This is not true. This is not altogether true. They change blocking assignments and otherwise mix things up, and their contests are fascinating to the experienced eye.

Credit must be given everywhere to the courage and discipline of Chuck Collins, of North Carolina. With a good team, he has been losing games because just a shade below the leaders. For training and regulation violations, grossly flagrant and repeated, he has been forced to drop otherwise brilliant men from his squad.

The alumni are petitioning their reinstatement. They should not do this. The coach must preserve his own self-respect and that of his squad. He should be free to use his honest judgment.

picture of him when he was a player. Yet he had made the official all-western team and was selected on several all-Americans as a halfback.

Plenty of pictures were found. One of them appears on this page today. Bierman was a great football player. He carried his own qualities to Tulane, and managed to impart them to his men.

Bierman has always been a pessimist. One of the phrases invented for him was "Bemoanin' Bernie." Yet, no matter what his fears, he never lets them get to his players.

Bierman would tell me that he never had them heard him urge them to play well. When they come in during the intermission at the half, there is no oration urging them on. Bierman tells them they have the plays to win. It is up to them. They are not to die for dear old Yale, not to fight for the honor of the old school, not to go out weeping and wailing.

Bierman's idea is that a cool head is the best one. He wants no team aroused to great heights, playing over its head to win a game and then slump in the next game because of the mental and nervous strain.

Whatever his plan is, no one can successfully deny that he has proved anything but a success. Since October of 1928 his team has not been defeated in a game. His squad suffered severe losses after the 1930 season, and yet this year they are back again with what looks like a better team.

Bierman's life has been an exciting one. He was an officer in the marine corps during the war. He was a great football player, a fine officer and now ranks as one of the best coaches in the game.

Reports have it that he is going back to his Alma Mater to make the Minnesota Gophers calm of mind and cool of spirit during the heat of the football games.

Or maybe he did say, and no one heard him. He is that quiet. Bierman's idea of football is best summed up in the interview he gave Frost. Calling football a "proving ground for youth," he said:

"America's football fields seem to me to be what the Sandy Hook proving grounds are to the armed forces of the United States. They're the proving grounds of American youth."

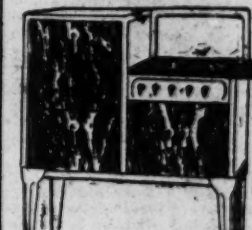

"On a football field a boy learns his strength and his weakness as he can learn it nowhere else. He can develop his strength; he can build intelligently against his weakness. That's why I've never dropped a boy off my squad who was coaching. As long as a boy is willing to subject himself to football discipline, put on the uniform and come out and work; as long as he'll stay with me, I'll stay with him."

"There's many a boy warms the bench at every game while he's in college, who does his starring in life after graduation."

Leonard White entertained 150 guests at tea Sunday, inaugurating the formal opening for the winter season of his dance studio at 805 Spring street. Pouring tea was Mrs. Eleanor White Ingram, sister of the host, and others assisting in entertaining were Mrs. William White and Miss Jane Zuber. Francis Mitchell, gifted pianist, played MacDowell's "Polonaise" and "The Spinning Song" from the "Pyring" Duetman. Miss Catherine Boswell rendered song and dance numbers.

Miss Jane King, popular debutante, was central figure at a luncheon given yesterday by Mrs. Walter Hendrix at her home on Piedmont road. The table was centered with a bowl of fall flowers in pastel shades. Miss Ruth Hendrix assisted Mrs. Hendrix in entertaining. The guests included Misses Josephine Richardson, Nancy Frederick, Louise Moore, Jane Sharp, Jaquelin Moore, Margaret Underwood, Helen Birings, Harriet Wayne, Catherine Flazler, Mary Crenshaw, Ida Thomas, Jane de Bruyn Kops, Sara Sharp, Helen Smith, Ida Nevin, Anne Ridley, Mamie Raine, Elizabeth Thompson, Anne Wynne Fleming, Violet Graham, Norma McNair and others.

Miss Violet Graham, a popular member of the Debutante Club, entertained 24 guests Sunday at tea at her home on Inman park. The guests included Mrs. Josephine Blanchard, who leaves November 1 with a tour of the world, and Robert W. Blanchard and M. Blanchard, for Fort Leavenworth, Kan. Mrs. William Graham assisted her daughter in entertaining.

Miss Bonisteel Visits Brenau.

Miss Pearl Bonisteel, of Evanston, Ill., past national president of the Delta Delta Sorority and national treasurer, arrives in Gainesville Tuesday to be guest of the Alpha Epsilon chapter at Brenau College. Officers of the local chapter are Miss Mildred Sheffield, Shelman, president; Miss Colleen Utter, Huntington, W. Va., vice president; Miss Beatrice Whiting, Ridgewood, N. J., corresponding secretary; Miss Anna Brooks, Robinson, Ill., treasurer and house president; Miss Ann Smith, Elkmont, Ala., marshal; Miss Caroline Moore, Louisville, Ky., Va. recording secretary; Miss Frances Sheffield, Shelman, historian and publicity chairman; Miss Helen Steele, Adam, N. Y., librarian; Miss Mary Margaret Engler, scholarship advisor; Miss Margaret, Miss Florence Weyandt, faculty advisor; Mrs. Lester Hosh and Mrs. Irene Strieby, of Gainesville, are province deputies for the national sorority.

Members of the chapter will honor Miss Bonisteel at a tea Tuesday at the chapter house with 80 active members, pledges, alumnae members and patronesses invited, and the night club effect will be carried out in the entertainment and decorations. Miss Florence Weyandt will be soloist and a specialty number, arranged and directed by a member of the chapter, Miss Elizabeth Ann Tompkins, of Maryville, Texas, teacher of tap dancing for Brenau, will feature a dance of six Tri Deltas wearing satin costumes of silver, gold and blue, the sorority colors. The dancers will form a delta, each holding a letter of the emblem with the solo dancer, Miss Tompkins, carrying the Greek letter insignia.

Miss Bonisteel will be honor guest at the Pan-Hellenic luncheon Wednesday, with representatives of the chapters present, and Misses Beatrice Whiting and Helen Steele have arranged specialty numbers. Mrs. Lester Hosh and Mrs. Irene Strieby, of Gainesville, are province deputies for the national sorority.

The guests included: Miss Naomi Adams, Kaigler Beaudaire, Christine Daniel, Frances Wadley, Mrs. A. C. Diven, of Mobile, Ala.; Leroy H. Leonard, E. J. Haley, Tommy Bender, Ford Merchant, J. D. Padgett and Archie Backus Jr.

JUNIOR LEAGUE JOTTINGS

BY MRS. HENRY W. GRADY JR.

When the Junior League entertains at tea at the High Museum of Art next Sunday, November 1, it will mark the first of a series of cultural affairs planned by the arts and interests chairman, Mrs. Reginald Fleet. The museum will have on exhibit it that afternoon the portraits of Mr. William Van Dresser, which are in etching, dry-point, charcoal, sanguine and pastel. Mr. and Mrs. Van Dresser, of New York and Palm Beach, are here in person, Mrs. Van Dresser being a writer of children's stories as well as the wife of a famous husband. Very fashionable they are with an imposing list of Atlanta patrons and patronesses, and the Junior League invites all those interested in things artistic to call at the museum between the hours of 3 and 5 o'clock. Mrs. Robert Foreman Jr. and Mrs. Reginald Fleet will pour tea behind a gleaming silver service, and receiving the guests will be Misses Augusta Porter, Catherine Norcross, Ellen Newell and Mesdames Turner Jones, William Parker, Green Warren, Allison Again Atlanta makes a showing in the November issue of the National Junior League Magazine. A quaint old book, "Ephraim Enconium, or the Praise of Drunkenness," by Bonifacius Olinophilus, is reviewed by Mrs. Reginald Fleet, and a modernistic and triangular lady has the name of Mrs. Rutherford Ellis beneath it. This is surprising as Martha Ellis is well known as a poetess but her artistic ability has been well hidden under a bushel. We are proud of our two appearances but wish every member would try her hand at bursting into print.

The Jottings is in receipt of a letter asking the requirements for membership in the Junior League. As we receive many inquiries of this kind we are publishing the requirements of the Atlanta League but they are practically the same throughout the Association of Junior Leagues. A girl to be eligible must first have lived in Atlanta at least six months prior to election. She must have youth, as 30 is the age limit. She must have leisure to do 90 hours' work a year required of her, and lastly, she must have friends in the League, as a letter to the membership committee proposing her name must be written by a member and countersigned by two other members. This committee each year works over a list of some 75 or 80 names and submits probably 30 or 40 of what it considers the most worthy girls to the board of directors, which in turn is compelled to ballot the list down to 20 as that is the limit per year. Then, if a girl is elected, she is invited to become a provisional member, that is, she enters a period of probation in which she demonstrates her ability to carry on the serious purpose of our local league and prepares herself for active service in the national organization.

Shrine Affairs To Take Place At Shrine Mosques

Wednesday evening, October 28, Yasrab Temple will entertain complimentary for its members and their ladies with a Halloween ball from 9 o'clock until midnight at the Shrine mosque on Peachtree street. The ball will be an exclusive Shrine affair, and Nobles are requested to wear the fee. Prizes will be presented to the lady and gentleman wearing the best costumes. Those who do not care to wear costumes may come in informal dress. Friday evening, October 30, the Oriental Club will hold its annual Halloween ball, which will be open to the public. Dancing will commence at 9 o'clock and continue until 1 o'clock. Prizes will be issued both to ladies and gentlemen for the best and most unique costumes, and souvenirs will be distributed to all who attend. The spacious ballroom will be fittingly decorated to carry out the Halloween idea and the best music the city affords will be furnished. Saturday evening, October 30, the Oriental Club holds its weekly dance from 9 o'clock until midnight. The Oriental Club orchestra will furnish the music for the formal affair which is open to the public.

Then, if a girl is elected, she is invited to become a provisional member, that is, she enters a period of probation in which she demonstrates her ability to carry on the serious purpose of our local league and prepares herself for active service in the national organization.

RICH'S FASHION FORECASTS

that have more than come true

On July 14 we predicted

a French Revolution in millinery. Current hats, though modified, still look tremendously different from last year's.

This prediction has more than come true.

On Sept. 1 we predicted that Brown would be a leading fashion. We have sold proportionally more Brown apparel this Fall than in any previous season. Evidently this prediction has more than come true.

On Sept. 22 we predicted

the vogue for color. Our bright "Clareen" dresses have swept the town, and more people own bright coats than ever before. We also were first to present the sailor—now the prevailing millinery style.

These predictions have more than come true.

On October 6 we predicted bright Football fashions. The grandstands since have been noticeably colorful, therefore this prediction has more than come true.

On October 13 we predicted

the popularity of Spanish Tile. The demand for Spanish Tile is still making fashion history, so this prediction has more than come true.

On October 20 we predicted that black would constitute the backbone of every smart wardrobe. Many fashion leaders bought black coats and dresses last week.

This prediction has more than come true.

Junior Horse Show Will Occupy Society's Attention on October 31

A tremendously important sporting event will occupy society's interest this week, with the Junior Horse Show set for Saturday, October 31, taking place at Lullwater Farms, the estate of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Candler. Spectators will be given that taste of the out-of-doors so enjoyable these heavenly autumn days, and throngs of fashionables will journey to Lullwater Farms to watch the show. The first bugle call at 1 o'clock will announce the opening of the event, and the excellent riders in the junior set will attract undivided attention until the close of the show.

It will be an exceedingly smart affair, and the Candler estate, located just beyond Emory University in Druid Hills, will provide a picturesque background for the event with the glories of the autumn spread out on the hillside. Relatives and friends of the youthful contestants will watch the show from the ringside, and among the excellent riders taking part will be Julia Block, Marion Candler, Elaine and Eleanor Terhune, Betty McDuffie, Laura Hill, Frances and Virginia Woodruff, of Columbus; Anne McGonigal, Eleanor Ringer, of Asheville; Joan Oliver, Ann Pappenhimer, Marie Pappenhimer, Anne Haverly, Anne Skidmore, Sarah Smith, Mary Jane and Nancy Hillman, Betty Gregg, Catherine Calhoun, Nancy Calhoun, Emma Bird, Emma Middlebrooks, Beverly Bailey, Mary Trammell Scott, Sally Prescott, Jane LeRoux, Elizabeth Winslow Walsh, Emily Frances Walsh, Anne Dargan, George Dargan, William Candler Jr., Henry Heinz Jr., Jack McEachern, John King, Rufus King, George McDuffie, Travers Hill, Walter Hill Jr., Jack Chambers Jr., Valdemar Gude Jr., George Bland Jr., Forrest Adams, George McGowan Jr., Otley McCarty, Clark Howell III, F. A. Savage Jr., Torrey Jacobs, Lupton Rainwater, Lee Hopping, Walker Goode, of Asheville, and others.

The horse show will be staged under the auspices of Druid Hills Garden Club of which Mrs. Walter Candler is a valued member. The committee in charge of arrangements includes Mrs. Charles M. LeRoux as chairman, assisted by Dr. and Mrs. A. L. Wheeler, Mrs. Walter Candler, Mrs. Stacey E. Hill and Miss Yolande Gwin. Trammell Scott will be ringmaster, assisted by Walter Candler, and the judges will be Caleb Horne, of Tulsa, Okla., and Gus Tolson, of Atlanta.

Riders under 18 years of age will compete for cups, ribbons and trophies to be awarded in each class, and committees have been formed to sell refreshments.

Virginia Apples

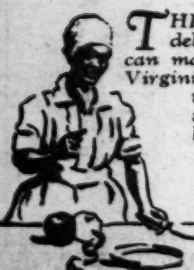

YOU may prefer the tawny gold-colored Grimes or the russet-checked Stayman or Winesap, but whether you like apples red or gold, be sure that they come from Virginia.

Nowhere else do such ideal conditions of soil and climate meet. For here is a limestone soil that furnishes the "suction" that makes Virginia Apples weigh about five pounds more than northern or western grown.

This kind of soil, combined with a long procession of sun-drenched days, gives to apples from Virginia orchards a flavor others lack. Nothing can take the place of Nature's slow way of long summers when the Staymans, Jonathans, Winesaps and other "rarities" are honeying on the trees.

Be sure to insist upon Virginia Apples, because of their greater weight, juice and flavor. Virginia Apple Growers, Staunton, Va.

THERE are more than 200 deliciously delicious desserts and salads that you can make from this delicious fruit. The Virginia Apple Cook Book, sent free, gives these recipes, many the long-guarded secrets of famous Virginia manor houses. Write for it.

How Does a Woman Champion Manage?

Women champions cannot have "off days." Day after day of practice and play, and matches that permit no postponements. Then how do they manage during menstrual periods when other women are sunk with pain? They meet these monthly emergencies with Midol, and they don't ever experience a twinge of periodic pain.

Harmless as it is, a Midol tablet blocks all possibility of periodic pain for hours at a stretch. It isn't a narcotic. But it acts in seven minutes, and lets you menstruate in comfort! Just ask the druggist for Midol.

Burgess Children's Stories

PETER GOES PHILANDERING.

By Thornton W. Burgess.

Though speechless there are speaking eyes.
To be avoided by the wise.
—Peter Rabbit.

Peter Rabbit likes to think himself wise, but he isn't. At least he isn't wise all the time nor as wise as he should be. If he was, he wouldn't get into the messes he does. Now Peter had no business to be dreaming of any eyes unless it were the loving eyes of Mrs. Peter, but he was. He sat in the dear old Briar-patch dreaming of his wife's soft, limpid eyes that he had had just a glimpse of in the moonlight the night before, eyes that he knew had been watching him and that when he saw them were filled with admiration. Who they were he didn't know and he wanted to know. This much he did know—they were the eyes of a lady Rabbit.

He went straight to the bramble-tangle where he had seen those eyes the night before, but there was no one there. Peter sighed. He knew useless it was to go looking for the owner of those eyes, for he had tried that before. So, not knowing what else to do, he sat down to wait as patiently as possible, and he took care to sit where the moonlight would fall full on him. He waited and waited and even now and then he sighed. Just what he was sighing for he didn't know.

It was just after a deeper sigh than usual that he became aware of that queer feeling of being watched. His heart gave a little bound. He sat up to his full height and slowly turned until he was gazing straight into that bramble-tangle and for a moment into that pair of soft eyes. It was only for a moment, then they vanished. Peter waited and held his breath. When he could hold it no longer he let it escape with a little sigh. Almost at once those soft eyes appeared again. This time they remained longer than before. One moment they vanished and once more without knowing it Peter sighed.

This was repeated several times with only one difference—the eyes remained a little longer each time. Finally Peter ventured a faint thump with one of his hind feet. It was the Rabbit way of greeting. There was no response, but the eyes remained watching and Peter was sure that they were filled with admiration. He ventured another thump a little louder than before and this time it was answered in kind. The little lady in the bramble-tangle was willing to be friends.

Miss Strickland To Wed Mr. Rogers

CORDELE, Ga., Oct. 26.—The wedding of Miss Kathleen Margaret Strickland and Manson Baxter Rogers will be brilliantly solemnized Wednesday, November 11, at the First Methodist church in Cordele.

The Rose Maiden Chorus will be sung prior to the wedding rites directed by Mrs. Charles Adams, with Mrs. T. M. Lambert, of Dalton, officiating the solo parts.

The bride-elect will be given in marriage by her father, John L. Strickland, and her mother, Mrs. Strickland, will act as matron of honor. Miss Ruby Strickland will be the maid of honor. The following will be bridesmaids: Miss Margaret Rogers, McDonough, sister of the bridegroom-elect; Miss Ruth Nowell and Miss Frances Gower, of Cordele, and Mrs. Mayes, of Fitzgerald. Mr. Rogers will have as his best man his brother, Frank Rogers, of McDonough, and the groomsmen will be Rupert Strickland and Harry Williams, of Cordele; Homer Harris, of Sanford, Fla., and Harris McCull of Atlanta.

The ushers will be S. L. Rysal, Pierce Hoot, Bailey Beard, Steth Hamilton, Gladstone Fleming, of Cordele, and T. M. Lambert, of Dalton.

Miss Strickland is the elder daughter of the late Zeta Tau Alpha sorority and the Cushman Dramatic Club, where she received her bachelor of oratory degree in 1930. As a member of the Zeta Tau Alpha sorority and the Cushman Dramatic Club, she was active in the life of Brenau College in Gainesville.

Her father, J. L. Strickland, is one of the most prominent businessmen of Georgia and Florida, having extensive interests in these states. Her mother is a charming woman and her only sister, Miss Ruby Strickland, a senior at Brenau, is president of the Zeta Tau Alpha sorority, and one of the most popular girls at Brenau.

Mr. Rogers is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Rogers, of McDonough, and is a member of an aristocratic family. He attended Emory University and was connected with the Universal Credit Company before going to Cordele, where he is one of the prominent businessmen.

Wedding Cake Respects Romance.

The exquisite wedding cake which graced the bride's table at the reception given by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Turner Candler at their estate, Lullwater Farms, following the wedding of their daughter, Miss Mary Candler, and Ray Edmondson, which was solemnized Wednesday, October 7, at the Glen Memorial church, rose tier on tier, and was especially designed by Mrs. Ralph W. Northcutt, of Marietta, for the fair young bride. With thoughts of the romance of this popular young couple aiding her in her work, Mrs. Northcutt created a perfect example of confectioner's art. Cupid, the roguish god of love, appeared in the creation, and graceful trellises and flowers reflected the white and green motif chosen by the bride.

Around the base of the cake was a trellis where yellow-centered roses trailed their graceful length and at the lower edge of the first tier were interwoven roses and orange blossoms in frosting beautifully executed to form perfect petals and leaves. A horseshoe for luck was added and a row of these symbols of good fortune formed of forget-me-nots with a calla lily peeping from underneath, adorned the cake. At intervals around the second tier were clusters of roses and forget-me-nots, while valley lilies chieled in delicate tracery, cascaded from the side of the cake. The third tier was outlined with hearts of rosebuds with groupings of white pansies. The top tier was encircled with valley lilies, the petals and leaves forming a perfect frame for the two wedding bells hanging in the miniature belfry atop the cake. A pair of chubby love gods held long streamers to ring the joyous wedding bells.

which it is made. The back of the waist extends to form a yoke for the skirt. The front of the skirt cuts in one with the front yoke.

The smart bolero jacket has set-in sleeves and attached collar. Spanish tile sheer treed with plain brown woolen collar, brown grosgrain ribbon bow tie and brown bone belt buckle and buttons made the original. Style No. 678 is designed in sizes 10, 12, 14, 16 and 18 years. Size 12 requires 3 yards of 39-inch material with 3-8 yard of 39-inch contrasting and 1 5/8 yards of binding.

It is very effective with the dress of brown diagonal woolen with the jacket of almond green woolen with brown collar, brown tie and almond green buttons and buckle.

Mrs. Daingerfield Is Elected President of the Planters

Mrs. L. G. Daingerfield was elected president of The Planters, a newly formed garden club organized yesterday afternoon at Mrs. Daingerfield's home on Valley road. Other officers elected were Mrs. Thornton Marye, vice president; Mrs. Henry Bernard Scott, secretary; and Mrs. Dudley Cowles, treasurer.

The membership of this latest garden club to be organized here, is composed of a group of prominent and representative Atlanta matrons, who are identified with social, cultural and civic circles. The members are Mesdames L. G. Daingerfield, Thornton Marye, H. B. Scott, Dudley Cowles, S. Y. Tupper, Harold Armstrong, E. D. Smith, J. S. Floyd, Willie Martin Hurt, Thomas K. Glenn, L. N. Conrad, Charles T. Nunnally, B. M. Grant, S. F. Boykin, Lindsey Hopkins, J. G. Oglesby, Samuel N. Evans, C. C. McGee, Hollins Randolph, Frank West and Lee Jordan.

The purpose and aim of the members, according to the rules and by-laws drawn up at yesterday's meeting, is the study and culture of flowers, the study of landscape gardening, and to assist in beautifying civic surroundings.

Mrs. Daingerfield appointed Mrs. Harold Armstrong chairman of the board; Mrs. J. G. Oglesby, program chairman; Mrs. Bryan M. Grant, plant exchange chairman; Mrs. Thornton Marye, flower show chairman; and Mrs. Samuel N. Evans, civic improvement chairman.

The club meets Monday, November 16, at the residence of Mrs. Harold Armstrong, on Cherokee road, and further plans will be made looking toward the development of the ideals of this horticultural organization.

DeKalb P.-T. A. Council To Assist Anti-Tuberculosis Association in Work

Miss Fidelia Miller, president of DeKalb County P.-T. A. council, presided at a meeting of the executive board held in Decatur Junior High school auditorium last Friday afternoon upon request of Miss Miller, Mrs. Hansford Sams, a member of the board of directors of the Atlanta Anti-Tuberculosis Association, explained how this association is helping, and can help, DeKalb county. The board voted to authorize Miss Miller to write a letter to the presidents of the parent-teacher associations of the county, requesting suggestions and co-operation in helping to rid DeKalb county of tuberculosis.

Mrs. A. B. Burruss, art and library chairman, called attention to "book week" to be observed November 15-21, stating that lists of books suitable for children may be procured from National Association of Book Publishers, 347 Fifth Avenue, New York, or of books suitable for adults, at the Decatur library. Mrs. Burruss added that book week program will be broadcast over the network of Columbia Broadcasting Company, November 18, at 2:30 o'clock and on subsequent dates which will be announced later. Asked for a report upon the summer reading, Mrs. Burruss stated that 60 certificates were awarded children who completed the summer reading requirements this year. Mrs. A. P. Milam, president of Clarkston P.-T. A., reported that Clarkston children received 48 certificates from the Carnegie library last year and this number will be exceeded this year. Dr. H. H. Ramsay, president of the P.-T. A., has a football team which has won all games played this season, and ten grades are 100 per cent in the P.-T. A. membership drive.

Midway P.-T. A. president, Mrs. Parry Hudgins, told of the interest of her organization in the Community Chest campaign and its plan to improve the school grounds. Mrs. W. G. Broach, president of Southwest DeKalb Grammar School P.-T. A., said her association is working for a luncheon for children of the primary grades; that the association upon P.-T. A. meetings is improving and that the Community Chest work is going forward, the primary grades being almost 100 per cent in contributions.

The president of Stone Mountain association, Mrs. Conley Sorrow, was enthusiastic regarding the beginning of the season's activities and said her association is expecting 200 visitors Tuesday afternoon, when the county council of Parent-Teacher Associations will be its guests.

Decatur associations reported splendid progress and gratifying results. Mrs. J. H. McKeen, chairman of the Community Chest campaign in DeKalb county, requests that 25 teachers or P.-T. A. members from the county schools attend the meeting of the Community Chest campaign committee at Decatur Presbyterian church Tuesday evening, October 27, at 8 o'clock. Mrs. J. H. McKeen, chairman of the Georgia League of Women Voters at Candler hotel, Decatur, Ga., November 4, from 10:30 to 4 o'clock.

Mrs. J. B. Richards explained that two prizes will be awarded for attendance at the county council meeting, one for the largest representation, the other to the association whose six designated delegates are present; the first award to be in percentage of attendance, the second in percentage of representation.

To End a Cough In a Hurry, Mix This at Home

To quickly end stubborn coughs due to colds, it is important to soothe the inflamed membranes, get rid of the germs and also to aid the system inwardly to help throw off the trouble. For these purposes, here is a home-made medicine, far better than anything you could buy at 3 times the cost. From any drugstore, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to fill up the pint. This takes but a moment, saves money, and makes a remedy so effective that you will never do without, once you have used it. This simple remedy does three necessary things. First, it loosens the germs and phlegm. Second, it soothes away the inflammation. Third, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This explains why it brings such quick relief, even in the obstinate coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest medicinal agents for severe coughs and bronchial irritations. Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL BY CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD: For many years I have been a reader of problem columns and I am often amused to notice that the vast majority of problems concern love and marriage and children. Why is there so little said about the questions that arise in the lives of the so-called old maids, who from preference, or from necessity, neither think nor talk about romance, women who are not concerned with the fickleness and the infidelity of man, or with the rearing of children? We do have our problems, domestic, sentimental and financial. We have our hopes and our fears and most of us our hobbies. Let us have some discussion of these topics that are of paramount importance to a relatively large group.

"OLD MAID."

ANSWER: I rather think you have answered your own question, but the letter contains some suggestive thoughts of general interest. It is love and romance and marriage that makes the world go around and it is the children that come from those marriages who keep it going. As this world whirls at great speed and at hot heat it throws the so-called old maids that are satellites to it. Are not these satellites important to the vast scheme? They certainly are.

But see her now. She arises refreshed from her own bed which she has bought and paid for. She makes her own coffee in her kitchenette and puts on her smart business clothes and goes to her office, where she meets her employer on the ground of mutual respect and independence. She dispatches the business of the day and returns to her own home to have her evening meal with or without guests, as she chooses. And ahead of her a long evening which she disposes to suit her taste. She is accountable to no one for the way she spends her time or her money. She is no bond-slave as is the woman who has given her heart to some man. She has nothing to redeem. She has given no hostages to fortune in the shape of children. She is fancy-free. She is the new woman.

for Dublin to represent the Crawford W. Long United Daughters of the Confederacy at the state convention. Mrs. Home, U. D. C. president of U. D. C. at Clarksville, Ga., will join Mrs. Matthews in Atlanta and they will be guests at the Fred Robert hotel in Dublin.

Miss Anne Maybank, of Charleston, S. C., and Miss Perrine Dixon, of New Orleans, La., were week-end guests of Mrs. Ellen Newell at her home on Clifton road in Druid Hills. Miss Dixon departs today for Montgomery, Ala., to spend several days before returning to New Orleans.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde M. Watson announce the birth of a son Wednesday, October 21, at Wesley Memorial hospital, who has been named James Flourney. Mrs. Watson was formerly Miss Carolyn Simmons.

Mr. and Mrs. William Anderson, of Knoxville, Tenn., are at the Ansley hotel, where they are attending the Anderson-Therrell wedding, which takes place at the Glenn Memorial church Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Henry M. Bird will return today to her home in Bowdon, Ga., after a visit to Mrs. Price Smith at her home on Eleventh street.

Mrs. A. C. Diven and daughter, Mary Helen, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Neil Baldwin at their home at 475 Whiteford avenue. For the past five years Mr. and Mrs. Diven have resided in Montgomery, Ala., but after November 1, will make their home in Mobile, Ala.

Major General Campbell King, U. S. A., and Mrs. King, who were among the prominent out-of-town guests attending the Mikel-Jones wedding, have returned to Fort Benning. During their stay in Atlanta they visited Major General Frank Ross McCoy, U. S. A., and Mrs. McCoy.

Mrs. J. K. Baker returned yesterday from Fort Oglethorpe, where she attended the polo game played between the McPherson squad and the Sixth cavalry squad. Lieutenant Baker returns today.

Major R. H. Howell, U. S. A., and Mrs. Howell have returned from Fort Oglethorpe, where they visited Captain T. H. De Saussure and Mrs. De Saussure.

Major Burton Lewis, U. S. A., and Mrs. Lewis, of Fort Eustis, Va., have arrived for station in Atlanta. Major Lewis will be the corps area defense officer with headquarters at Fort McPherson, replacing Major Roland Gaugler, who left last week for his new duties in Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Howard McCall has returned from Charleston, S. C., where she attended the southern divisional conference of the American Daughters of the Revolution.

Colonel Robert M. Blanchard, U. S. A., and Mrs. Blanchard accompanied by their daughters, Miss Josephine Blanchard and Miss Mary Blanchard, leave the first of November for Colonel Blanchard's new station at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

Bridge Playing Complexes

Happy is that Bridge player who has no complexes, inferiority, superiority or otherwise. Particularly happy is the Bridge player who can make his complexes serve him and not destroy him.

The story of today's hand centers around a Bridge player who suffers strongly from two complexes. The first is the "playing the hand" complex and the second the "notrump" complex. Either of these complexes, if unchecked, may be fatal.

1—A demonstration of both complexes in one bid.

Whether by chance or otherwise, South actually had stumbled into the correct contract, if in the play he could reach the heights he had attained in the bidding. At diamonds, in which the hand should normally play, only five-odd can be made against the opening lead of a club. At notrump, six-odd can be made by proper play. However, the holder of this hand failed to visualize its possibilities when the Dummy went down after West had opened a heart. Seeing only that he must somehow rid himself of the Ace and King of diamonds, South carelessly played the Knave of hearts from the Dummy and was, of course, compelled to overtake with the King in his own hand. This spelled his doom. Realizing his error almost as soon as he had made it, he sought to correct it by a very obvious trap for a weak opponent. Realizing now that he could unlock the diamonds by discarding the Ace and King on the high cards in the Dummy, he led the Queen of spades hoping that kindly adversary would win with the King and either that the club suit would not be led or that if East won the spade trick, that he also held the Ace of clubs and would not lay it down against the slam contract. East, as it happened, did hold the King of spades, but while he knew that by Question: What are the objects of scientific bidding?

Answer: 1st. Penalties. The greatest gains are made by setting opponents. Caution—beware lest you get yourself trapped!

2d. Premiums at own bid. For this object Slams may be bid when vulnerable with slightly less strength than when not vulnerable—a gambling chance.

3d. Defense—Nothing not even defense play is more difficult, more important. When opponents cannot be pushed up to the point that you may make a substantial penalty nor can you make a game, you still may be able to take a loss that will be less than their premium.

WESTINGHOUSE NAMES ADVERTISING MANAGER

Ralph Leavenworth has been appointed general advertising manager of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company. It was announced Monday by J. S. Tritle, vice president and general manager. He will have charge of all advertising and publicity activities of the company, the announcement reads, including the advertising division of the merchandising department, now centered in Mansfield, Ohio.

The business career of Mr. Leavenworth, prior to his association with the Westinghouse Company, has been one in which sales and advertising administrative work have been closely paralleled.

Graduating from Hamilton College, Clinton, N. Y., in 1914, he became associated with the Y. M. C. A. with headquarters in Cleveland and remained with that organization four years. After the war he joined the Standard Parts Company, also located in Cleveland, and except for a short period, during which he served as personnel director for a publishing firm, his advertising manager of this concern, until 1923. In that year he became an account executive for Paul Teas, Inc., an industrial advertising agency. He remained with this firm six years becoming in that time part owner of the company.

January 1, 1930, he joined the Austin Company, of Cleveland, one of the world's largest engineering and building organizations, as assistant general sales manager. In this work he served in an executive capacity on sales, administrative and advertising work concerned with this international organization.

His appointment as general advertising manager of the Westinghouse Company followed. He will have his office in the East Pittsburgh headquarters of the company.

Abe Powers Returns In Deputy's Custody

Abe Powers, who walked out of Fulton Tower five years ago after obtaining a key to the side-door, late Monday night walked back in the Tower at the front door in the custody of Deputy Sheriff Emmett L. Quinn, who brought Powers back from San Antonio, Texas.

Powers, alleged former bucco man, was a respected citizen of Texas when officers were tipped off recently as to his real identity. He will be questioned by Solicitor-General John A. Borkin for information on the whereabouts of Florio Woodward, bucco gang chief, and will be turned over to the state prison commission to finish serving his sentence.

SLAYER OF SIX GIVES SELF UP

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 26.—(AP) George Jackson, Aiken county farmer, who in a fit of murderous fury slew six of his neighbors and spread terror throughout his home community, surrendered to officers today without a show of violence.

Before a score than two dozen members of the crowd reeled the home of the officers hurried the prisoner to an automobile and brought him to the state penitentiary.

At the prison here, Jackson, worn and haggard, told officers his relatives "just dogged and dogged me until I got drunk and killed them."

NEW YORK HAILS MARSHAL PETAIN

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The city of welcomes today was accorded for the first time an opportunity to expend its cheering lungs and showering ticker tape on Marshal Henri Petain, French defender of Verdun, whose "ils ne passeront pas" at Verdun (they shall not pass) captured allied imagination and bolstered French spirit.

The marshal rode up to Battery Park in New York's official welcoming tug, the Macon. Sirens screamed over the bay, fireboats shot water sprays heavenward and the guns on Governors Island barked a 19-round salute.

Makers Of Vicks VapoRub Score Another Advance In Home-Control Of Colds

Vick Chemists Develop the Perfect Ally to Vicks VapoRub—Introduces New Idea in Preventing Colds and Makes Possible the Vick Plan to Reduce the Family "Colds-Tax."

FREE TRIAL PACKAGES!

Local Druggists Have Free Samples for Users of Vicks VapoRub

Mothers of two generations have depended on Vicks VapoRub for treating the family's colds. Now, in 26 million homes, they welcome the newly discovered VapoRub—Vicks Nose & Throat Drops—based on a new idea in preventing colds. Together, these two ideal, direct applications provide the new Vick Plan for better "Control of Colds" in the home—and further reduction of the family "Colds-Tax."

Here is the Vick "Colds-Control" Plan:

1.—Before a Cold Starts.

On exposure to colds or any of the causes that ordinarily lead to colds—(crowded indoor places—stuffy, poorly ventilated rooms—sudden temperature changes—wet and cold)—that slow down the normal functioning of the nose, Nature's marvelous first line of defense against colds—use Vicks Drops promptly. Or, if a cold actually threatens—when you feel that first stuffy, sneezy irritation of the nasal passages—a few drops up each nostril, and many annoying colds will be avoided.

2.—When a Cold Strikes.

During the day—anytime, any place—use the convenient Vicks Drops as often as needed. At night, rub Vicks VapoRub well over throat and chest and cover with warm flannel. Wear bed-clothing loose around the neck so the medicated vapors can be inhaled all night long. This gives you full 24-hour treatment. (If there is a cough, try the new Vicks Cough Drops—usually medicated with ingredients of Vicks VapoRub.)

INSTALLMENT VII.

Irma couldn't help thinking it over. It was impossible to forget Bill's little proposition. Utterly shocking or perfectly fair, depending on what sort of person you were. Irma teetered somewhere between the two opinions. She knew she should be shocked and tried very hard to be. But it simply wouldn't come off.

Wallace had invited her to Thursday evening dinner at his home. Irma had stage fright contemplating her debut at a family to which her language all right? Could it be that her whole habit of talking would prove unsuitable for the ears of little Mildred and Aunt Tessie?

Her hands were cold and she was inwardly quaking as she walked up the steps with Wallace. He rang the bell.

The door was opened by a very thin woman with her hair screwed into a tight knot on top of her head. Was this Aunt Tessie?

No, it was the maid. Irma breathed again and passed through a dark little foyer into the living room. It was so long since Irma had been to anyone's home that the Graham's living room seemed beautiful and luxurious to her. The white woodwork, the fireplace with its standard iron implements, the large wing chair by the radio, two or three etchings, a few magazines laid carefully about to create an air of cozy disorder, the coffee table in front of the divan, the assortment of lamps—just another American living room, but how was Irma to know that?

Aunt Tessie came downstairs. She was bright-eyed and soft-voiced and was painfully thin like the maid, but her hair fell in loose waves and she was pleasant enough to the eye.

"Take off your things, dear. Is it chilly out? Wallace, push that buffet around so that Miss Corbin can rest her feet."

Irma spent the next few minutes saying, "Thank you, Miss Graham." Aunt Tessie put her tray beside her, then settled herself on the lounge only to jump up immediately to close the window.

Mildred Graham was a surprise to Irma. Perhaps she had forgotten that 15 was well on the road to womanhood. Irma congratulated herself on not having brought Mildred backstage. Still there was something in that arrogant nose and strong, young chin that might have frightened even Phil. This did not look like a girl who could be had for a promise.

Irma looked at Wallace's daughter and thought of gold. Perhaps because her hair was brightly golden and flat and smooth, she felt that she was as good as married. Irma's vivid imagination saw her for a moment standing between Mildred and Wallace.

Irma crossed her knees and pulled her shabby little skirt tightly about them. She felt messy and out of place in this room with the golden child who had inherited Anne Graham's patrician features and was wearing an expensive frock to boot.

Mildred and Irma shook hands. Mildred said, "You win, daddy," and laughed pleasantly.

"Sure I win. I know a pretty girl when I see one. Didn't I pick you for a daughter?"

When there was a chance Irma told Wallace that she thought Mildred beautiful and charming. She told him again Friday night when she and Wallace sat alone in the lobby of the Bartrum house.

"Yes," Wallace conceded, "Mildred is pretty. I feel frightened when I look at her and think of facing the years between now and Mildred's marriage. She could use a big sister."

She turned to look at him. His eyes were fixed upon her pleadingly.

"What's the matter?" she asked.

"Oh, I'm crazy and conceited, I guess. I'm 39 and you're 16, but I'm wild about you, Irma. I couldn't sleep last night remembering how sweet it was to have you at our table. I thought and thought of how you looked in that big chair. I love you. I love your funny little skirt and the way you move your hands. I love the brave way you look at life and ask no quarter. Because you are such a person I know you won't laugh even if I am ridiculous. Irma would you consider marrying me?"

"Why, Wallace?"

"Don't answer now, Irma. Think it over. Here comes Bill. I'll see you tomorrow and you can tell me then."

Bill joined Irma and Wallace, talking loudly as usual. It was nice that you didn't have to listen if your brain was whirling. Irma walked between the two men. One wanted to marry her. The other didn't want to marry her. They both had asked her to stay in Thrace. She looked at the street down which they walked. This was Thrace. There could be friends here, comfort, no more tramping, no more cheap hotels and dirty restaurants. Bill or Wallace? Suppose neither? Perhaps there was success on the stage still ahead if she kept plugging toward it. Certainly she wasn't in love with either of these men though each had a charm of his own.

It was Bill whom she found herself alone with after the coffee. He had brutally manipulated that this would be so.

"Listen, baby," he said to her in the Bartrum lobby. "I have one more thing I want to tell you. You remember, don't you, that I said I liked you? Well, that doesn't mean that I'll stop if you give me the go-by. I want to tell you that I can use you at the Crystal Moon if you get sick of being abused by that mug you work for. I can use you as a special instructor and head waitress. That'll pay $25 a week, which is a darn sight more than $85 on the road, and there's commissions, gifts and tips and what not in my job, see?"

"Gosh, Bill, you're sweet." She looked up at him and felt a wave of honest liking for him engulf her.

"And I won't pester you either if you take the job, but of course I'll keep hoping."

They laughed and separated then. Irma went to her room. Bill's room. He was so nice. So was Wallace. Three kinds of offers were being made in Thrace. Maybe she'd come back some day and take one of them up, but she couldn't do it right now as Bill and Wallace seemed to think she could. Impossible to leave Phil flat without a dancing partner. Maybe she would come back and maybe she wouldn't. There was always the chance that she'd take a turn in the road some day and see her name in lights just ahead.

Saturday in the theater. Phil was still there. He had hardly spoken to her since Wednesday. That was all right, too. The less he spoke, the less they quarreled. Irma had not slept a wink. Her mind had been too busy picturing herself Wallace's wife, Bill's mistress, head hostess of the Crystal Moon.

She was in the theater early. The white satin dress looked terribly mused. Even though it had to be packed that night it should be pressed for the two Saturday shows.

She was pressing it when Phil passed her dressing room and paused in the doorway.

"What are you pressing that for? It has to be packed tonight."

"No kidding. I thought we were in stock here."

"You needn't think you're going to wear it to that dance contest tonight."

"This?" Irma flipped a disdainful finger at the ivory satin. "I wouldn't think of wearing it. The management has presented me with a black lace dress to wear."

"O, yeah?" Philippe disappeared. Irma left the make-up shelf upon which she was ironing and went to the threshold to watch him walk down the hall. There was something in the set of his shoulders and the purposefulness of his tread that aroused her curiosity. He was on the warpath. She saw him knocking on the door behind which Filmore and Madeleine dressed. He was going in there to talk about her. It would ease his poor, fevered brain to have somebody tell him that he was the whole act.

W. F. WILHOIT, 67, WARRENTON, DIES

Prominent Georgia Citizen Succumbs at Home After Long Illness.

WARRENTON, Ga., Oct. 26.—(P)—William F. Wilhoit, 67 years of age, one of Warren county's most prominent citizens, succumbed at his home here at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon after a long illness.

Mr. Wilhoit, a resident of Warrenton for more than 45 years, was a business and civic leader of this section and was well known throughout the state.

He was born September 16, 1865, in Weatherford, Texas. His parents moved here the following year. From 1890 to 1894 Mr. Wilhoit was owner and editor of the Warrenton Clipper, one of the state's leading weekly newspapers.

In 1901 he became connected with the Southern Cotton Oil Company, with headquarters in Macon, and served with this firm until 1908, when he accepted a position with the Virginia-Carolina Chemical Company in Atlanta. In 1914 Mr. Wilhoit joined the firm of the American Agricultural Company in Atlanta, but retired in 1921 because of ill health.

Mr. Wilhoit was secretary of the Kiwanis Club here until three months ago, when his illness forced him to withdraw from all civic activities. Funeral services will be conducted at the graveside in the Rose Hill cemetery at Macon Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. Wilhoit is survived by his wife, Virginia Hill Wilhoit; four sons, Lloyd A. Wilhoit, advertising manager of Davidson-Paxon Company in Atlanta and formerly city editor of The Atlanta Constitution; Jud T. Wilhoit, former state legislator, who recently was named a member of the state highway board; Frank E. Wilhoit, treasurer of the American Discount Company, Atlanta, and Bernard H. Wilhoit, assistant manager of the toy department of Davidson-Paxon Company, Atlanta; four sisters, Mrs. W. H. Bagwell, of Birmingham; Mrs. Margaret Long, of Jeffersonville, and Mrs. Clara Lockett, of Warrenton.

TUCKER CHURCH BODY TO MEET WEDNESDAY

HINSONTON, Ga., Oct. 26.—The Tucker Association, a regional organization of Baptists, established almost 40 years ago, is scheduled to meet on Wednesday for a two-day session at the Baptist church here. The association is made up of churches in Mitchell, Colquitt, Baker and Grady counties. The Rev. S. O. Thomas, of Harmony church, is to be the moderator at the Hinsonton meeting, and the Rev. G. T. Hunt, of the Hopeful church, is the clerk.

Now Lose Fat a Pound a Day on a Full Stomach

Do Just These Two Simple Things—Fat Melts Away

NO tiring exercise, no starvation. Instead, a full stomach and never a hungry moment! Yet fat melts away. You can easily lose from four to seven pounds weekly, see the contours of your face replaced by the refined lines of slenderness—and feel better than you ever felt before in your life.

WHAT YOU DO

There are just two simple things you do: Clear your system and keep it clear of waste matter, toxins and depleting poisons with ordinary JAD SALTS obtainable at any drug store. Start with a teaspoonful in a full glass of water tomorrow morning—a sparkling and pleasant drink.

Then EAT YOUR FILL—as much as your appetite can stand—of meals consisting of the following foods: At breakfast eat two oranges, or the juice of two oranges. Eat also two slices of toasted whole wheat or bran bread. Eat rolled oats (with milk, not cream.)

never notice it. Drink water or not as you like.

4 Members of Family Ill From Poisoned Milk

HARLEM, Ga., Oct. 26.—(P)—Four members of the family of Julian Blanchard, of Leah, in Columbus county, were ill today from poisoning which relatives said had been placed in milk by a negro woman, apparently deceased.

Dr. Gordon Blanchard, brother of Julian Blanchard, said Mrs. Blanchard and three children were stricken ill shortly after breakfast Sunday. The husband did not drink any of the milk. The children ill are Julian Jr., 14; Harold, 8, and Gordon, 10. Dr. Blanchard said all would be well shortly unless complications developed. Leah is not far from Augusta, Ga.

METHODIST DELEGATES GUESTS IN SAVANNAH

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 26.—(P)—Methodists who attended the Methodist ecumenical conference in Atlanta last week reached here Monday and toured the many interesting places associated with John Wesley, founder of Methodism, and who lived in Savannah during Oglethorpe's time.

Bishop W. N. Ainsworth, who some years ago was pastor of Wesley Memorial church here, was leader of the 100 delegates who made the trip to Wesley shrines in Savannah. They saw the site of the little tabernacle at Bull street and Bay Lane, now occupied by the federal customs house, where John Wesley preached. They saw the site of the first Sunday school in Georgia which he established located now where Christ Episcopal church is, and of which John Wesley was rector in 1736-37, as a priest of the Church of England.

They visited the site of Wesley's home, a tablet to that being on the John Wesley hotel here. Wesley's home was a two-story frame structure, a pretentious building in those days when small, one-story cabins were more in vogue than any other kind of architectural construction. They visited the federal post office, which was the site of the last service held by Wesley before he left the colony never to return. It was at that location that he made his last prayer on American soil.

The delegates were given luncheon by the Savannah Methodist ministers and this afternoon and evening departed for their homes in different parts of this country and abroad. There were delegates present from as far west as Washington state. The chamber of commerce took the visitors on an automobile tour of the city and county.

Bus Routing Asked.

WAYCROSS, Ga., Oct. 26.—The Colonial and the Greyhound Bus Companies have made application to the Georgia public service commission for a routing from Macon to Jacksonville by way of Hawkinsville, Eastman, McKee, Lumber City, Baxley and Waycross. The application is to be heard Tuesday.

MASSONS WILL OPEN CONVENTION TODAY

More Than 1,000 Delegates Expected To Attend Sessions in Macon.

MACON, Ga., Oct. 26.—(P)—W. G. Meador, of Gainesville, grand master of the grand lodge of Georgia, Free and Accepted Masons, will call to order more than 1,000 Masons from sections of the state, for the 145th annual convention of the grand lodge at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning in the Masonic temple here.

Two sessions will be held Tuesday and election of officers for 1932 will be held Wednesday morning. The board of directors of the Georgia Masonic Home here met Monday morning under the direction of its chairman, Dr. Joe P. Bowden, of Atlanta, past grand master. Mr. Bowden presided over the work of the Masonic home.

"The financial statement of the board of trustees shows a saving in operation which has been great as to build up a substantial balance, with which to take care of future improvements," he said. "The Masonic home has taken a new life since its reorganization, and extensive developments have been effected in equipment and additions to the staff."

The program Tuesday will include an address by W. D. Haas Jr., grand senior warden of the Grand Lodge of Louisiana, who, with E. E. Sykes, grand master of the Grand Lodge of Louisiana, and Milton W. Boylan, junior grand warden of the lodge, is an honor guest at the convention.

Committee meetings today were the financial committee, headed by E. H. Johnson, Columbus; the jurisprudence committee, General Robert J. Travis, Savannah; chairman; general welfare committee, Paul G. Mendenhall, Macon; and the committee on appeals and grievances, John W. Bale, Rome, chairman.

NEGRO BAPTISTS HEAR ADDRESS BY HOLMES

GREENVILLE, Ga., Oct. 26.—The colored people of this section were gathered in southwest Georgia to hear the address of the Rev. J. H. Holmes, president of the National Baptist convention, Sunday morning in the Springfield Baptist church.

"Giving your children a Christian and practical education, establishing churches, schools, buying farms, establishing businesses and making your locality more attractive conditions in the rural districts," he told the delegates.

"Second, you must learn to live within your means and save what you make and not make obligations you cannot successfully meet," continued the speaker. "No farmer can succeed when he buys what he needs from the merchant when it can be raised on the farm."

The Rev. Holmes has been invited to deliver a series of lectures to farmers in southwest Georgia and Alabama on the subject of how to best meet the economic condition. The Rev. W. S. Simmons, pastor, said the Holmes Institute was a blessing to the colored people who live in rural districts and are unable to attend other institutions.

HISTORY OF NURSING IN STATE DEPICTED

Silver Jubilee of Nurses Is Celebrated at Meeting in Savannah.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 26.—(P)—Twenty-five years of organized efforts in public nursing in the state found the Georgia Nurses' Association celebrating its silver jubilee here today with an extensive program devoted to professional subjects, a pageant depicting the history of nursing in the state for the benefit of the general public and many social events connected with the convention.

The nominating committee has selected its slate and will offer Miss Alice F. Stewart, of Augusta, for the presidency. The executive committee has chosen Miss Florence Pund, of Augusta, as secretary, to fill the unexpired term of Miss Minnie B. Wood, Macon, resigned. This term ends in 1932.

Other nominations to be voted on the last day of the convention, Wednesday, include the following:

For second vice president, Miss Lillian Cumber, Atlanta; Miss Shirley Hamrick, Dalton.

For treasurer, Miss Jane Van De Vrede, also executive secretary, Atlanta; Miss George Hamilton, Decatur.

For councilor, Miss Hattie Lou Banks, Macon; Miss Lucia Massee, Outhart, retiring president.

Officers are elected for alternate terms of two years each, the remaining officers to be chosen at next year's convention.

Monday's professional subjects meeting was featured by an address by Miss Mary Roberts, editor of the American Journal of Nursing, in which she advocated that nursing education be undertaken by the state. This question is expected to develop considerable interest and discussion at the convention. She insisted that public nursing was as important to the state as that of other vocations.

Miss Roberts also spoke to the student nurses in the city this afternoon on the "Art of Nursing," describing how their profession has kept march with medicine and surgery.

Monday night's program was devoted to the silver jubilee exercises presided over by Miss Lucia Massee, president, and presentation of the pageant, written by Miss Lucy Hall, of Savannah.

ATLANTA-GREENVILLE MOTORCADE PLANNED

TOCCOA, Ga., Oct. 26.—(P)—Celebrating the completion of the last link in a paved highway from Atlanta to Toccoa, a motorcade will go from Atlanta to Toccoa and Greenville, S. C., November 3.

The last four-mile stretch of concrete between Toccoa and the Tugalo river, which forms the Georgia-South Carolina boundary line at that point, was thrown open to traffic last week. It provides the first all-paved highway from Atlanta to any point in South Carolina and on to the east.

Workmen now are constructing guard rails and building shoulders and planting grass on the roadside. Also, it is being marked.

Towns along the route have arranged programs honoring the motorcade and at Greenville elaborate preparations are being made to entertain the party. Governor Blackwood, of South Carolina, a party of South Carolina and Greenville officials are to go to Toccoa to meet the motorcade and lead it into Greenville.

Kingston Child Killed By Accidental Shot

KINGSTON, Ga., Oct. 26.—(P)—A rifle, which he had placed between his legs while he ate peanuts, was accidentally discharged Monday causing almost instant death to Joe Ben Jolly, 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Mary Jolly.

The accident occurred at the home of the youth's aunt, Mrs. Ora Branson. The youth had told his aunt he was going to kill a bird and had stopped on the steps of the house to eat the nuts. Funeral services will be held Tuesday.

GASKINS RESENTENCED TO DEATH IN CHAIR

METTER, Ga., Oct. 26.—(P)—English Gaskins was resentence to be electrocuted at Milledgeville Friday, November 13, for the slaying of his estranged wife. He was recently denied a new trial.

The killing of Mrs. Gaskins occurred in front of her parents' home while the two were seated in an automobile. He stabbed her to death and escaped afterward, being captured in a few hours.

HATCHER-HADEN TRIAL JURORS ARE SELECTED

MACON, Ga., Oct. 26.—(P)—Two panels of veniremen, sworn in Monday in Bibb superior court for the trial of Charles R. Haden, 23, on a charge of criminal assault, were exhausted late Monday afternoon with 10 of the required 12 trial jurors in the box.

The remaining two men will be selected tomorrow morning from 60 additional veniremen drawn by Presiding Judge Malcolm D. Jones after exhausted panels had forced an overnight recess of court nearly a half hour before the regular time of adjournment.

Of the 92 sworn jurors today, 52 of them disqualified for cause, 10 of them were opposed to capital punishment, 23 were partial, 19 were prejudiced.

SUNDAY SCHOOL GROUP MEETS IN BALDWIN. MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Oct. 26.—The Baldwin County Sunday School convention was held Sunday at the Black Springs church. The principal speakers were the Rev. A. G. Harris, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Milledgeville; Miss Margaret Daugherty, primary superintendent, Haygood Memorial Methodist Sunday school, Atlanta; Rev. Freely Baum, associate superintendent, Georgia Sunday School Association; and pastor of a Presbyterian church in Atlanta; Mrs. J. J. Simpson, superintendent of the Georgia Sunday School Association, and A. M. Smith, of Atlanta, founder and former teacher of Agona Bible class.

CHATHAM HIGH COURT OPENS OCTOBER TERM. SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 26.—(P)—Judge Peter W. Meldrim delivered a charge to a new grand jury in superior court Monday and formally opened the October term.

Tuesday morning a three-day session of the divorce docket will begin during which 170 cases are assigned for a hearing, including those in which first and second verdicts are sought, annulment is asked and dismissal of some libels.

The criminal session begins next week when several important murder trials will be held, including Miss Bragg, charged with murder of his wife, Estelle Bragg, on the streets of the downtown business section a few weeks ago.

U. D. C. MEETING TO OPEN TODAY

Three Rays' Sessions Will Be Crowded With Reports, Work of Group.

DUBLIN, Ga., Oct. 26.—(P)—Members of the United Daughters of the Confederacy of Georgia began arriving here Monday night for the 30th state convention of the organization which will be held Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

All three days will be crowded with work of the organization, reports of officers, presentation of cups and awards with addresses and with musical performances. Business sessions of the convention will be held in the high school auditorium. Registration will be in the lobby of the Fred Roberts hotel.

Registration will begin at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, and before the opening session of the convention is held at the hotel at 5 o'clock. Following the opening session a reception will be given at the home of Mrs. W. W. Robinson by the Oconee chapter.

Mr. J. J. Harris, Dublin, state president, and Mrs. Bluford B. Page, president of the Oconee chapter, will preside at the opening session.

Social features of Wednesday's sessions will be a press breakfast at the Fred Roberts hotel; a luncheon given by the John Laurens chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, at the home of Mrs. A. W. Garrett, and a barbecue at the Dublin County Club by the Dublin Lions Club.

A registrar's breakfast in the new Dublin hotel; a Georgia products luncheon at the Fred Roberts hotel by the Women's Study Club and the Oconee chapter; a tree planting; afternoon tea, and observation of a closing session as "historical evening" will be features of Thursday's activities.

Mrs. Walter D. Lamar, Macon, past president of the state U. D. C. organization, will make the principal address Thursday night. Her subject is "When Time Shall Have Softened Passion and Prejudice." Miss Caroline Paterson, Macon, will introduce her.

ANNUAL FAIR ENDS IN GREENE COUNTY. GREENSBORO, Ga., Oct. 26.—The Greene county fair, considered one of the best ever held here, ended Saturday.

Corn, grain, hay and other home-grown products made up the individual county exhibit which was arranged by Miss Whaley and Mr. Howard, home demonstration and county agent, respectively, was creditable, according to the hundreds who viewed it.

The fair was sponsored by the 4-H clubs, farmers, civic organizations and businessmen of Greensboro. There were no admission charges and no prizes awarded this year.

NEW CHURCH BUILDING PLANNED AT LESTER

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Oct. 26.—Presbyterians of this section are asking to contribute to a fund to be used to build a church at Lester, near here. The Rev. Ralph Gilliam, state superintendent of evangelism for the Presbyterian synod of Georgia, has undertaken the task of raising the funds and directing plans for building the church house. A lot on which to erect the church has been deeded by J. H. Hillhouse, of Worth county.

She merely pinned a note to one of the frocks saying—"Will be in soon to make another selection."

Uses... she returned ALL of them...

The sales-person had mentally jotted down her small commission on the sale expecting, of course, that one of the dresses would prove satisfactory.

But to her dismay all of them were returned with a curt note saying, "will be in soon to make another selection."

Having been out of stock for nearly a week, perhaps tossed about and tried on several times, the dresses came back mussed—the freshness all gone.

The sales-girl was disappointed, to be sure. The store was put to the unnecessary expense of delivering and then later calling for the package. The dresses were returned to stock and later sold, no doubt at a reduced price... because they were "off sale" so long.

If women would but THINK, they would not heap such abuses upon stores, wanting to oblige the trade by sending goods to the home on approval.

Take all of the time necessary for your decision when making selections, but do try to avoid having goods sent on approval when in doubt about keeping them.

Just remember... the average cost of handling a return package for credit is around FIFTY CENTS each.

How much is 34 per cent of YOUR heating costs?

YOUR heating costs.

Is it enough to warrant an investment in modernization—an investment that quickly pays for itself not only in reduced heating costs but in greatly improved heating service as well? Consider in temperature throughout the building.

Steam or vacuum heating systems, regardless of age, type or size may be converted to Improved Webster Systems with results comparable to those of other the Retail Credit Co. of Atlanta (just one among thousands) . . . After converting their heating system to an Improved Webster System they had the Georgia Power Company, which supplies "street steam" to the building, check the
